Football practice set to begin Aug. 9

Staff report
Football season is back.

North Carolina begins preparations for the upcoming 1993 season next week, with freshmen checking into fall camp season next week, with freshmen checking into fall camp Aug. 3 for physicals and testing.

Upperclassmen return Saturday, Aug. 7, with practice beginning on the 9th. The players will work out twice daily in shorts for three days, then start dreaded two-a-days, with pads, August 12. Two-a-days last unit! classes begin Aug. 25.

The defending Peach Bowl champion, UNC registered a 9-3 mark last season, its fifth under head coach Mack Brown.

Eight starters return on offense, five on defense. Brown hopes the dog days of August can yield some depth for his team.

"We'll use the first part of fall practice to solidify our two-deeps," Brown said. "Developing back-up help is one of our bingest tools."

biggest goals.

"We want to test our young secondary early," he said. "Our offense is going to be a little different without Natrone (Means) and Randy (Jordan) at tailback."

UNC has its earliest season-opener ever this year, facing Southern Cal Aug. 29 at the Disneyland Pigskin Classic in Ababasia.

Ahaheim, Calif. Ananeim, Cain.

The Tar Heels have no major injuries heading into practice. Offensive lineman Curtis Parker and quarterback/punter Mike Thomas, who both underwent off-season surgery and missed spring drills, will be ready when drills begin.

Basketball schedule released

Staff report
The defending national champions won't be taking it easy

next year.

UNC announced its 1993-94 men's basketball schedule

this week, and it appears again that the Tar Heels will face one of the toughest schedules in college basketball.

North Carolina head coach Dean Smith will take his 33rd team into a schedule with 21 possible games against teams team into a schedule with 21 possible games against teams that participated in post-season play last season.

That includes a possible 18 games against NCAA Tournament teams, depending on the outcome of the preseason National Invitational Tournament.

The Tar Heels open the regular season Nov. 17 in the Smith Center against Western Kentucky in that tournament. The Hilltoppers, coached by Rick Pitino-disciple Ralph Willard, lost to Florida State in overtime in last year's NCAA Sweet Six other NCAA teams from a year ago — California, Cincinnati, Kansas, Massachusetts, UC-Santa Clara and St. are in the preseason NIT, as well as postseason NIT champ Minnesota.

"With an experienced team, it's good to have a difficult schedule like this," Coach Smith said. "We may well lose some games in the first part of the year, but hopefully that will help prepare us for March and post-season play."

The Tar Heels return four starters from the 34-4 team of

1992-93 — leading scorer Eric Montross, point guard Derrick Phelps, forward Brian Reese and Final Four MVP

Donald Williams.

Donald Williams.

That nucleus will open play Nov. 6 in the Blue-White scrimmage at the Smith Center. UNC plays in the preseason NIT Nov. 17-26, with the finals in New York's Madison Square Garden. The Tar Heels then return home for an exhibition game against a Ft. Bragg AAU team Nov. 29.

Highlights of the rest of North Carolina's schedule:

Dec. 3-4, UNC plays in the Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions. The Tar Heels face another Sweet 16 team, George Washington, in the opener. The Colonials feature 7-foot sophomore center Yinka Dare and an outstanding young head coach. Mike Jarvis.

ung head coach, Mike Jarvis.

The other TOC participants are South Carolina and Brigham Young.

The Tar Heels travel for one of three road nonconference games during the season Dec. 20. UNC faces Big East power Pitt at the Civic Arena in Pittsburgh. The Tar Heels alsovisit Notre Dame Feb. 23.

Notre Dame Feb. 23.

UNC returns to the Louisiana Superdome, site of its last two national championship victories, Jan. 22 to face LSU Smith is 6-0 lifetime at the Superdome.

Dale Brown's Tigers will be without heralded prep guard Randy Livingston, who tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee last weekend at the U.S. Olympic Festival in San Antonio, Texas.

Duke visits the Smith Center Feb. 3. The Tar Heels wrap up their regular season against the Blue Devils in Cameron Indoor Stadium Saturday night, March 5.
