Close Call The UNC women's soccer team survived a scare in California this weekend. Down 2-0 at the half to No. 4 Santa Clara, the Tar Heels rallied for a 3-2 win. Tisha Venturini (left) and Mia Hamm, UNC's all-time leading scorer, had big weekends for UNC.

NFL Football

New Orleans . 16 Indianapolis ... 23 Chicago 47 Tampa Bay 17

L.A. Rams 28 Houston ... Seattle. Cincinnati 10

> N.Y. Jets New England .. 7

Monday, September 27, 1993

Virginia Is For Lovers, But Not For Tar Heels This Weekend Mental Lapse Gives No. 1 UVa. Go-Ahead Goal With 31 Seconds Remaining | Field Hockey

ASSISTANT SPORTS FOITOR

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. - For 89 minutes, the North Carolina men's soccer squad played the top-ranked team in the nation dead even.

But the clock runs 90 minutes - and a mental lapse by the Tar Heels enabled Virginia to escape Klockner Stadium with

14th- | Men's Soccer Junior Nate

nudged the ball in from three yards out with 31 seconds left to lift the top-ranked Wahoos to a thrilling

Virginia upped its record to 8-0, 3-0 in the ACC.

Virginia sophomore David Fitzmaurice crossed the ball into the box to defender Clint Peay, who blasted UVa.'s initial shot from six yards away. Tar Heel goalkeeper Roger Componovo deflected Peay's shot to his left, but Friends was waiting to knock it in.

"We always follow up our shots and (Componovo) didn't grab hold of it,"

"The near post was wide open, all I did was point it there," Peay said. "I didn't even know (Friends) was there." The goal itself was difficult for the UNC defense to stop - the cross, however, was Fitzmaurice found himself all alone in the right corner as he received a pass downfield. Tar Heel defender Chris Lyn got to the area late, enabling Fitzmaurice to dribble all the way to the goal box before he got rid of the ball.

"It was out of the transition and we had disorder in the backfield," UNC head coach Elmar Bolowich said. "The right middle wasn't challenged, and he could serve a pice hall"

Please See MEN'S SOCCER, Page 7 the ACC. No. 19 UNC fell to 5-3-1, 0-1 in Against State Lifts Burden Off Players

BY JOHN C. MANUEL

RALEIGH - The Streak was all North Carolina State fans had left.

Wolfpack fans have held their football team's success over the heads of UNC fans for all of five years now. It was constant, like death and taxes. State beat Carolina in Pack fans used to count on the basketball team to have some success, but with another national championship on the Tar Heels' ledger and another losing season on the Wolfpack's, those days are over.

But in football, State reigned supreme. Five straight, including three in a row at Kenan Stadium.

Now even the Streak is history

'We wanted to end the Streak very badly," UNC senior linebacker Bernardo Harris said. "Being from Chapel Hill, I know how heated this rivalry is and I just said to myself before the game, 'There's no way I'm leaving UNC and not beating

Don't worry, Bernardo. North Carolina outplayed its heated rival Saturday at Carter-Finley Stadium, scoring the game's final 28 points en route to a 35-14 win. The Victory ended State's five-game skein victory ended State' against the Tar Heels.

"I'm just so glad we finally beat State."

Head coach Mack Brown was probably thinking the same thing. Bringing a program from 1-10 to a Peach Bowl win may have been satisfying, but the Tar Heel coach still carried a 0-5 record against the opponent that means the most to alumni.

and often to prospective recruits.

Brown has tried to downplay the Streak's significance. But the losses to the Wolfpack—by scores of 48-3 in 1988, 40-6 in '89, 12-9 in '90, 24-7 in '91 and 27-20 last year kept coming, and Saturday's win had to

Please See STREAK, Page 5

Greg Black (56), Kerry Mock (57), Bernardo Harris (24), Bracey Walker (27) and Jimmy Hitchcock (18) celebrate a Rick Steinbacher (45) tackle

Stanicek Leads UNC In Relief of Thomas

BY STEVE POLITI SPORTS EDITOR

RALEIGH — Both Mike Thomas and Jason Stanicek stood on the sidelines before Saturday's game at Carter-Finley Sta-

Thomas was preparing to quarterback North Carolina in its biggest game since, well, last week. He was going over plays, throwing passes, talking to coaches, etc.

Stanicek was kicking a towel. Stanicek, the junior quarterback who has moved UNC's offense so well this into the game after he bruised his shoulder in UNC's 33-7 loss to Florida State. owing warmup passes hurt his arm, and he was taking it out on a defenseless

'In warmups, it was so sore, just be cause I probably had to get it loosened up," he said. "But after I got it loosened up and the adrenaline started flowing, it was Still, Stanicek didn't expect to play "I wasn't totally healthy," he said.

"Mike was healthy. And you need the most healthy person out there.

And head coach Mack Brown didn't expect Stanicek to play.
"I really felt like Mike would play good,

and we wouldn't play Jason today."
Injuries have taken UNC's quarterback lottery to new heights. Before the two quar-terbacks started getting banged up, at least one person knew who would start each week. Now Brown doesn't even know.

Because even before Thomas threw his first pass, he injured his ribs. The sophomore quarterback left the game after the first series and didn't return "I saw him get up pretty slow, and ually Mike hops up fast," Stanicek said. "When he came off the field, I didn't even know he was hurt until (quarterback) coach (Gerald) Carr told me to go in. I was surprised because I didn't know why. Then he told me Mike was hurt." Thomas sustained severely bruised ribs and is listed as doubtful for UNC's game with Texas-El Paso.

Stanicek didn't know how to feel after the game, other than exhausted.

"Honestly, right now I don't know how I feel because I'm so excited from the win," Please See STANICEK, Page 7

Volleyball

Leon Johnson (12) eludes State linebacker Gregg Giannamore (55). Johnson gained 64 yards against State.

Fails to Score In 2 Games

BY JON GOLDBERG STAFF WRITER

NORFOLK, Va. - Much was different. A different stadium in a different city with different fans. Different opponents with different coaches. But, much to the North Carolina field hockey team's dismay, one thing remained the same.

No goals.

UNC's offensive woes continued this weekend as it lost its first game of the season 2-0 to top-ranked Penn State Sunday and tied No. 3 Old Dominion 0-0 Saturday at Foreman Field. Saturday's game drew 1,938 Field Hockey fans, the largest regular-season crowd in NCAA history.

North Carolina (5-1-2)

Old Dominion

failed to score for the third straight game and has scored only once in the last four games. This marks the first time in UNC's history that the Tar Heels have been shut out in three straight games.

Despite the loss, UNC head coach Karen Shelton remained optimistic.

"We played the No. 1 and No. 3 teams me played the No. 1 and No. 3 teams neither are going to give a lot up," she said. "The goal scoring will come."

Defense dominated Saturday's contest against the Monarchs as Peggy Storrar and Cinda Carpenter starred to shut ODU down. Storrar made two diving saves off of penalty strokes and stopped 11 others to insure the tie.

"I just clear my mind and keep my head down to concentrate," Storrar said. "I just go on reaction."

Shelton added: "Peggy's as quick as a cat. She had presence and made those two In the first half, both teams had oppor-

th the first hair, both teams had opportunities to score. UNC's best chance was thwarted when ODU goalie Kim Decker stopped an ealry Kelly Staley shot.

The second half and the two 15-minute overtime periods were different stories al-together. The Monarchs had plenty of chances to score besides the penalty strokes. With 20 seconds left in the second half,

ODU's Dewi van der Vaart intercepted an errant Meredith Lawrence pass and drove down the field. After several shots, ODU was awarded a penalty corner, but time At the 9:40 mark in the first overtime period, Storrar came out to make a save and ODU recovered the ball in position to score. With Storrar out of position, UNC midfielder Sharon Moore knocked the ball out of the circle to stop the pressure.

"It was a tremendous battle both ways," Shelton said. "I'm really proud that we official sales and the sales are s Monarch head coach Beth Anders was proud of her young team's performance.

"As play went on, the kids kept stepping up and stepping up and getting more con-trol and more control," she said. "I give credit to UNC. They played great defense."

The Monarchs took Sunday off and watched Penn State defeat UNC 2-0. The Tar Heels started slowly, allowing two penalty corners in the first five minutes "We came out flat from the very first whistle," Shelton said. "We looked tired."

The Lions' Christine McGinley scored the first of her two goals at the 4:19 mark in the first half. Penn State outshot UNC 12-3 and had six penalty corners while the Tar Heels managed only one.

Even though Penn State was idle Saturday while UNC battled ODU, Shelton refused to accept fatigue as an excuse.

"At the Final Four we have to play back to back," she said. "We've been playing two games a weekend all season. We should be able to play back to back."

Volleyball Team Overcomes Georgetown, Auburn

BY RODNEY CLINE

After a disappointing loss to Duke last Thursday night, the UNC volleyball team was looking to get back on track this week-end in Carmichael Auditorium.

The Tar Heels did. And in a hurry UNC, now 9-5 overall, survived a couple of non-conference thrillers, defeating Georgetown Friday, 15-7, 15-13, 11-15, 16-14 and Auburn Saturday, 15-12, 5-15, 15-11, 4-15, 15-9. You want heroes? On this weekend, they were easy to find.

Colette Dingens. If a MVP was named for the Auburn match, Dingens would have won it hands down. Her stats were phenomenal: a Georgetown1 career-high 23 three errors, a Auburn hitting percentage of .328, and a team-high 17 digs. But it was her play at crunch-time that put the Tar Heels in the win column.

In the crucial fifth game, Dingens recorded consecutive kills to put UNC up 5-2. Another kill made it 7-4, and a block gave the Tar Heels breathing room at 13-9. Then, with the crowd of 200 on its feet, Dingens won the game with yet another 15-10 UNC. Match to the Tar Heels.

"I think she came up big in the whole match," UNC coach Joe Sagula said. Whenever we needed a side out, she really came through for us. She was really good. It was a great individual perfor-

Kristin Kruse. A new attraction appeared in the Carmichael Auditorium stands Friday night — the Kristin Kruse Kill Klub. Well, Kruse's supporters had plenty to cheer about over the weekend. She bounced back from a subpar performance against Duke (6 kills) to record 20 kills and 22 digs in the Georgetown match and 10 kills against Auburn.

Kruse also provided the big point against Georgetown. UNC was down 14-11 in the fourth game, but a Hoya net violation and a Sarah Ward service ace made it 14-13. Then, Kruse slammed down a kill to tie it

The kill took the life out of Georgetown two hitting errors made the Tar Heels 16-14 winners Kruse, along with Dingens, provides UNC with two quality outside hitters Sagula said.

"Our outside hitters were great," he said after the Auburn match. "We had trouble connecting in the middle, but our Please See VOLLEYBALL, Page 5

Wed., Sept. 29 —	Men's Soccer: Davidson, 7:00 p.m. Women's Soccer: Duke, 5:00 p.m.
Thura., Sept. 30 -	Men's Tennis: at National Clay Courts, at Oxford, MS, All day
Fri., Oct. 1 —	Volleyball: at Maryland, College Park, Md., 7 p.m. Women's Tennis: at South Carolina Tournament, Columbia, SC, All dat
Set., Oct., 2 —	Football: Tekas El Paso, 1:30 p.m
	Field Hockey; at Virginia Commonwealth, Biotherood, VA. 1 p.m. Vollopbell: at Virginia, Charletteville, VA. 7.30 p.m. Man's Goff: at GoffWeek Previous Instances, Mickings, TX, Pulmer Man's Goff: at GoffWeek Previous Instances, Mickings, TX, Pulmer
Sun., Oct. 3 —	Men's Soccer: Duke, 3:30 p.m.
	Women's Soccer: Connecticut, 1 p.m. Field Hockey: at Virginia, Charlottesville, VA, 2 p.m.
	Events in Chapat Hill unless otherwise appoints: