Legal Teams Begin Jury Selection in Los Angeles for Simpson Murder Trial

LOS ANGELES — O.J. Simpson faced his first wave of prospective jurors Monday, a group of more than 200 people ordered to fill out 75 pages of questions about their personal lives and their thoughts on the murder case.

Those reporting for jury duty had to pass a phalanx of news crews demonstration.

pass a phalanx of news crews, demonstra-tors and entrepreneurs outside the courthouse hawking everything from T-shirts and caps to buttons reading: "O.J. Juror Reject, Didn't Make the Cut."

Before distributing the questionnaires, Superior Court Judge Lance Ito dismissed a batch of jury prospects that included at least one physically disabled person and others who said their employers would only pay them for as many as 10 days of jury service. The trial could last as long as

"Five dollars a day doesn't quite make it," Ito said of the money the county will pay jurors to serve.

The judge had potential jurors fill out so-called hardship questionnaires before even getting to the 75-page questionnaires. The more detailed questionnaire has not been released to the public. Of the first batch of 219 prospective jurors, 65 said they could endure a long trial and the possibility of being sequestered away from their families. Ninety-one said it would be a hardship, and 63 said they weren't sure if they could do it.

Also Monday, prosecutors asked Ito to postpone individual questioning of jury property and individual questioning of jury property with lafter a concil hearing on prospects until after a crucial hearing on the admissibility of DNA evidence. The judge scheduled a hearing Wednesday to consider that request.

consider that request.

Ito has said he will decide whether to sequester the jury after hearing from the prospective jurors how publicity has affected them.

Simpson, who was present as the jury candidates filled out the 75-page question-naires, is charged with hacking to death his sex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman on June 12.

Ito has proposed selecting 12 jurors and eight alternates then sending them home eight atternates then sending them nome during the DNA hearing. But prosecutors contend the hearing could take a month, during which jurors would be exposed to publicity and conver-sations that might prejudice them.

They suggested having prospective ju-rors fill out the questionnaires then go home until sometime in November, when they would return for personal question-

Some 1,000 people have received summonses for the trial: they are being brought into court in smaller groups because of a

In one case, Ito was going to drop a woman who said she was diabetic and cared for her 85-year-old mother and a husband with heart problems. But defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. asked that the woman be questioned further, and Ito

Ito also amended his decision on how jury selection would be covered by the media. He first said only one reporter and no TV cameras would be allowed. But he let three reporters cover Monday's session and said that as seats became available, he would allow as many as five reporters in.
TV cameras were still barred.

Throughout jury selection, a closed-cir-cuit audio feed will pipe some of the pro-ceedings to a courthouse press room, but the feed cannot be broadcast.
