OUR NAVY.

The Atlanta, the new vessel built for the United States by John Roach, has been greatly injured by the trial of her eight inch guns.
The New York Herald says: "It is estimated that a few more discharges would have made the vessel unseaworthy, if it did not split her from stem to stern." There is just about one thing that is certain about the Navy of the future, and that is that it must have larger guns and fewer. If we break down when we try to make a ship that will endure the recoil of an 8-inch gun, what will we do when we try to compete with the Italian 120-ton guns? But misery loves company, and the following editorial from the New York Herald will show that England has her troubles in this line, too:

On Tuesday the British ironclads Ajax and Devastation collided with each other. Yesterday the Agin-court and Black Prince had a similar experience. None of the four went to the bottom, but at least two were seriously damaged.
According to the plan for the great naval review to take place at Spithead next Saturday the Agin-court leads one line of battle, followed by the Black Prince, while the seventh ship astern is the Devastation, which is followed by the Ajax. Evidently, in spite of the admirable seamanship of the British navy, these ironclads could not be made to manoeuvre in the line of battle in close order without running each other down.

Speaking about the navy at Welhampton several weeks ago, Lord Randolph Churchill said:

In the last twelve or thirteen years eighteen ships have been either completed or designed by the Admiralty to fulfill certain purposes, and on the strength of the Admiralty statements Parliament has faithfully voted the money. The total amount which either has been or will be voted for these ships is about ten millions and it is now discovered and officially acknowledged that in respect of the purposes for which these ships were designed and for the purposes for which these ten millions either have been or will be spent the whole of the money has been absolutely misapplied, utterly wasted and thrown away.

Commenting on this speech, the London Times said: "In his main contention we acknowledge that Lord Randolph Churchill is right." Perhaps it is just as well that we have waited until now before building our navy.

North Carolina's Confederate Dead.

Richmond (Va.) Dispatch.
North Carolina is moving in regard to erecting a monument to the memory of her 49,000 Confederate dead. The papers have taken hold of the matter with great earnestness, and their editorial advocacy of it is being supplemented by strong letters from other citizens.
One gentleman offers to contribute $1,000 to the monument if it shall be erected at Raleigh, or $2,500 if it shall be placed at Durham. The movement is one that every true man should rejoice to see take practical shape. No State made a more glorious record in the late war than North Carolina. Her name appears in imperishable letters in the story of every battle from Bethel to Appomattox. And the monument should be of a design and character that would typify especially what was known as the staying qualities of the North Carolinians. While the North Carolina soldiers were in all other things the peers of any Southern soldiers, some of the commands from the Old North State gained for her a distinctive reputation for bulldog tenacity in holding a position. Only a few nights ago we heard a Virginian who was on A. P. Hill's staff during the war, and who is a man of careful and most intelligent observation, and not given to idle words, speak in glowing terms of the valor of the North Carolina troops and comment particularly on the North Carolina "grip." Referring especially to the brigades of Cooke, Scoble, Lane and McKee, he remarked that you could place either of the three in a position and go away with absolute confidence that it would stay there so long as there was a man left.

In Rock Hill, S. C., they value a keg of whiskey as equal to five years in the penitentiary. Jim Massey stole a keg from a car and the sentence was five years.—Carolina Spartan.

Jim does not keep abreast of the times. Had he appropriated $50, 000 or more to his private uses and taken a season's rest in Canada, he would not now be languishing in a South Carolina prison. Oh! Jim, why did you not take a live daily and see how the "racket" is worked?—Charlotte Observer.

"Violet, dearest, do you play that tune often?" asked Hugh Montresor of his affianced. "Yes, pet, and when we are married I'll play it all the time." Then Hugh went out and shuddered himself to death.

Republican Testimony

(N. Y. Herald, 18th.)
The Toledo Blade, a respectable but eccentric republican newspaper, has been at some pains to ascertain from its readers their republican Presidential preferences. From the States and Territories, Utah excepted, reports are given—in all 21,390 expressions of opinion. For President Blaine has 11,010; Sherman, 5,684; Lincoln 2,237. The next highest candidate, Allison, has only 387 votes, Edmunds dropping to 117. The illustrious General Sherman has 74, and our eloquent and venerable statesman Evarts, a beggarly 78. For the Vice-Presidency Robt. T. Lincoln has 7,395 votes, Channey M. Depew coming next with 1356. Sherman, as showing the sincerity of republican respect for the military record of Presidential candidates, has only 56 votes.
Fairchild, with his three blooming palsies, drops at 44.

The leadership of the republican party, therefore, so far as is here voiced by public opinion, rests with James G. Blaine, John Sherman, Robert T. Lincoln and William B.
Allison. Mr. Blaine, Mr. Sherman and Mr. Allison are politicians pure and simple who entered public life as poor young men and are now rich, as is believed from the opportunities of public life. Mr. Lincoln is a name, a patriotic and noble memory. He is a colorless politician, a placid Secretary of War—but a Lincoln. Mr. Depew is a new sensation, an orator, a gentleman, a railway president, who has never written letters which his correspondents were desired to burn.
He is therefore a useful name on the season's cards. Three rich politicians, a season's sensation and a memory—that is all!

Note likewise the gentlemen who are distanced in this interesting race. Conkling is not even mentioned, nor Hoar nor Dawes. Edmunds, the finest intellect in the Senate, has a sorry following; Gresham, Harrison, Evarts, Cameron, Ingalls, scarcely complimented.
None from the South, none from the Pacific coast. And this fervent republican love for the soldiers! Is it to be seen in these paltry votes for Sherman and Sheridan, or even in the small contin-gent attracted by the palsies of Fairchild or the mild military achievements of Hawley? We have heard of republicans like James Russell Lowell, L. P. Morton, William D. Kelley, R. J. Oglesby, Leland Stanford, John A. Kasson.
Surely these gentlemen might have at least the courtesy of recognition in republican councils. And poor little Mahone away down in Virginia—he might have had one vote!
But not a vote. Republican councils seek other fruition—three rich, not over-scrupulous politicians, a summer sensation and a memory—that is all!

Remember likewise that this is the party of Abraham Lincoln, William H. Seward and Salmon P.
Chase. Is it not a sorry record?
The soldiers of republicanism, whose names are forever blazoned on the tablets of the nation's glory; the men who have swayed reluctant, impatient Senates; statesmen whose work is seen in reconstruction, the integrity of the finances and honorable peace; the gifted leaders of republican opinion on the rostrum and in the press; the young leaders who should be hurrying to the front with the loud, cheery voice of assault and triumph—republicans, in short, whose names are synonymous with heroism, eloquence, culture and statesmanship—where are they? The republican party is polled by a republican organ, and the answer comes back from 21,390 republican voices:—"We have had enough of oratory and genius in debate, culture, military fame.
Give us our three politicians whose most impressive achievement in public life has been making money.
Give us these as the supreme embodiment of republicanism. If you care to throw in a memory like Lucifer or a summer sensation like Depew, very well, Flavor the mixture as you please, so the spirit remains: With Blaine to lead and Sherman and Allison as henchmen we are prepared for the campaign."

This, assuredly is a somewhat sorry outcome for the grand old republican party, as we have heard it called. It is, to be sure, none of our business as to whom among the republican gods the followers will worship. There might be a better lookout as the country may announce by and by. This Ohio newspaper canvass and summary is suggestive, and to give it full value our readers must not fail to remember that it is republican testimony from an extreme republican newspaper.

Jacob is more likely to fall in love with Rebeckah if she be drawing water from the well to feed the flocks, than if she be sitting on the well flirting with the young men passing by.

A mitrailleuse is being tried in the Austrian army which will fire 1,000 bullets in ninety seconds.

A handsome woman is a jewel; a good woman is a treasure.

Ohio Democratic Convention.

T. E. Powell was nominated for Governor and his nomination was made unanimous. The platform is as follows: "The Democratic party of Ohio, in convention here assembled, proclaims its hearty and unqualified endorsement of the patriotic and economical administration of President Cleveland. We demand such judicious reduction of the present burdensome tariff as shall result in producing a revenue sufficient only to meet the expenses of an economical administration of government, the payment of liberal pensions to Union soldiers and sailors, and the payment of the interest and principal of the public debt, and if necessary we favor such reduction of internal revenue, except on liquor, as will prevent the accumulation of a surplus in the national treasury, and we denounce any attempt to abolish the tax on liquors for the purpose of keeping up the present unjust, unequal and onerous tariff system. We call attention to, and offer as sound doctrine and policy, the following emphatic and patriotic language of President Cleveland: 'Our public domain is our national wealth, the earnest of our growth, and heritage of our people. It should promise limitless development, and richest relief to a crowding population and homes to thrift and industry. These inestimable advantages should be carefully and enlightened policy on the part of the government should secure them to the people.'

"We demand that all lands of the government be held for actual settlers who are citizens of the United States, and for those who declare their intention to become such. We are in hearty sympathy with all people struggling to free themselves from the environments of despotism, and especially does the long and gallant struggle of Ireland, for the priceless boon of home-rule and the rights of manhood, wake our warmest applause, and command our heartiest good wishes for speedy success. Labor being the chief factor and great conservator of free and liberal institutions should enjoy its full share of the common benefits derived therefrom; therefore we favor such restrictions of the centralization and encroachment of corporate power as will bring the best possible protection to honest labor, and at the same time conserve the interest of unemployed capital. We favor such legislation, on the question of immigration, as will prevent the landing for permanent residence, of aliens who are not willing to declare their intention of becoming citizens of the United States. We declare our opposition to the importation of contract labor and we demand speedy punishment of all persons inciting riot and revolution against Republican institutions. We denounce the Republican State administration as weak, partisan, personal and unbusinesslike. We call upon the people of Ohio to turn out of power a State government whose only apparent mission is to augment expenditures, multiply officers, create deficiencies and increase taxation, with the bankruptcy of the treasury as the ultimate result." The remainder of the platform is devoted to local affairs.

The Tragic End of the Roman Catholic Bishop of Alaska.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—Information has reached here from Onulaska that Bishop Seghers, a Catholic missionary, was murdered by his companion one night in November last. The scene of the tragedy was on the banks of the Yukon river, about five hundred miles from its mouth, and fully sixty miles from any habitation.
The murderer is Frank Fuller, a young man from Portland, Oregon, who accompanied the Bishop as companion and servant. He gave himself up. No cause for the deed is given. The Bishop was formerly of Baltimore, Md., and prior to being named Bishop of Alaska was archbishop of Oregon and Washington Territory. He left for Alaska last summer to perform missionary work among the Indians, but was allowed by the Papal See to retain his honorary title as archbishop.

Tied to a Stake Until the Sun Killed Him.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 18.— News of a most inhuman murder comes from Riverside, Ark. It seems that a man living near that place had a step son, five years old, whom he badly disliked. He was known to treat him cruelly, beating him in a terrible manner, once putting the little fellow's eyes out, while whipping him. A few days ago he beat the child in a horrible manner, then tied him by the wrists to a stake in the hot sun, without food or water, until he died. Just how long the child was there is not known, but the cords at his wrists had cut in two, and the flesh and wounds were filled with worms. The fiend, finding his victim was dead, armed himself and took to the woods. The child's mother seems indifferent over the affair.

The Rich Men of Gotham.

Who is the richest man in New York? is a question often asked.
John Jacob Astor, undoubtedly, says the Brooklyn Times. His fortune is placed at $200,000,000. A tidy sum, indeed, but Jay Gould is pushing him pretty hard, and the Vanderbilt boys are close behind the king of Wall-street. Here is a list made up by a Wall street broker that is as nearly accurate as any such estimate can be: Cornelius Vanderbilt, $100,000,000; W. K.
Vanderbilt, $60,000,000; Russell Sage, $60,000,000; Winslow, Lanier & Co., $50,000,000; D. O. Mills, Whitlaw Reed's father-in-law, $20, 000,000; J. Pierpont Morgan, $18, 000,000; Bob Garrett, $20,000,000; Fred Vanderbilt, $15,000,000; Sidney Dillon, $10,000,000; Addison Cammeck, $8,000,000; John Rockefeller, the Standard Oil man, $10, 000,000; H. Rockefeller, his brother, $8,000,000; August Belmont, $20,000,000; Cyrus W. Field, $10, 000,000; Deacon S. V. White, member-elect of the new Congress, $7, 000,000; R. P. Flower, $6,000,000; Washington Connor, Jay Gould's old broker, who has just married the divorced wife of the ex-lottery King, Simmons, $3,000,000; Victor Newcomb, $4,000,000; Henry Hart, who is manipulating Pacific Mail, $10,000,000; Oswald Ottendorfer, editor of the Staats Zeitung, $5,000,000; James Gordon Bennett, $10,000,000; Erasmus Wiman, $3, 000,000; and there are a score of others who are worth from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000 each. But why go on? Jay Gould is likely to make $50,000,000 more in five years, and the men named above will add to their vast wealth if they live a few years. A plain, ordinary, everyday sort of a millionaire counts for nothing here. You can stand in Trinity steeple and throw a stone in any direction and hit a millionaire. They are very common and are really considered of no account.

Georgia Asked to Pay $3,000, 000.

A special from Atlanta says:
"Developments in the State legislature were decidedly sensational yesterday. They grew out of a demand from United States Senator Joseph E. Brown, president of the Senators of the Western & Atlantic Railroad company, for $3,000,000 for improvements. The Senator shows that when he took possession of the road it had only 600 interior cars, while now it has 1,400 latest style cars. This proportion holds good all the way through. The information was that if the State did not pay for these improvements they would be removed. Ex-Congressman William H. Fullon, who is a member of the legislature, at once moved that an injunction be served upon Mr. Brown, and that attachments be served upon all the appearances of the road. A bill to the same effect was also reported.
Both will be acted upon later.

Running the Presses by Water Power.

Says the Charlotte Chronicle: One of the prettiest machines in the city is the water motor which was yesterday placed in the Chronicle office and which is now used to run the newspaper and job presses. The motor was supplied by the Mecklenburg Iron Works and was placed in position and set to work by that skilled mechanic, Capt. Culpeper.
Connection was made with the water main late in the afternoon, and at the first draw of the throttle the motor moved off smoothly, turning the presses in the prettiest possible manner. It is a very simple machine, yet with a powerful one, and can be regulated to any desired speed, or capacity, running a light job press and a heavy power press separately, or both together if desired.
The water supply is more than abundant, and the power is sufficient to run half a dozen presses at full speed.

Perfect Hair

Indicates a natural and healthy condition of the scalp, and of the glands through which nourishment is obtained.
When, in consequence of age and disease, the hair becomes weak, thin, and gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will strengthen it, restore its original color, promote its rapid and vigorous growth, and impart to it the lustre and freshness of youth.

I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a long time, and am convinced of its value. When I was fifty years of age my hair began to turn gray. I commenced using the Vigor, and was surprised at the good effects it produced. It not only restored the color to my hair, but so stimulated its growth that I have now more hair than ever before.

take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine will restore physical force and elasticity than any tonic yet discovered.

For six months I suffered from liver nourish me, and I became weak and very much emaciated. I took six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and was cured.
