Baptism and Temptation of Jesus. Lesson for Jan. 14th. Matt. 3:1-4:11. Golden Text: Hebrews 2:17.

The baptism and temptation were critical periods of decision for the Master. Occurring at the very threshold of His public ministry, they are formative events of the highest the certainty that He would land significance.

The baptism reminds us of the river Jordan, whose impetuous current is a symbol of the speed with which the career of Jesus approached its climax at Calvary. But more impotant than the Jordan is the figure of the Baptizer, the rugical prosperity.

And now turn to the central figure. Remember the gentle insistence Norfolk, Va., and Nina Rhodes of of Jesus, "Suffer it to be so now." Recollect the striking vision that came to Him immediately after the baptism, the vision of God's Spirit descending dove-like, with the heavens opened, and the divine voice assuring the Master that He was indeed the Son of the Most High. Why was Jesus baptized? Is the baptism a melodramatic announce-Nat Williams. Mr. Rea Williams ac- ment of His Messiahship? No. Is it
