Cover your kitchen table with linoleum instead of oilcloth when your old cover wears out. It will last much longer and cleans just as easily...

Pot holders made like thick pockets will protect the hands from steam and spattering hot grease...

Large casters with good bearings attached to a small kitchen table will save much lifting. Roll the table to the refrigerator, stove and sink instead of making dozens of trips between them...

Clean windows with a rag dipped in paraffin and you'll have a brilliant high polish. Use tissue or any soft paper for a polisher...

Two-thirds boracic acid and one-third powdered sugar sprinkled on shelves and baseboards will kill roaches and water bugs. The combination is poisonous to them. Keep your stored silver free from tarnish by simply placing a bit of camphor ice along with it...

Silver that is not badly tarnished is easily cleaned by boiling it in an aluminum pan with salt water. Drain, and then rub with a piece of chamolis...

Though all three of the winter-growing legumes commonly planted in North Carolina each fall are nearly equal in value for forage and soil improvement, it appears that this is the year to plant heavily of Austrian Winter peas...

Blair says the price of crimson clover seed is nearly three times and the price of vetch seed is over twice that being asked for Austrian winter peas. Assuming that 20 pounds of either clover or vetch or 30 pounds of Austrian peas is the right amount to sow on one acre of land, the cost of seeding the vetch is 50 per cent more than for the peas and the cost of seeding crimson clover is about 200 per cent more...

He suggests that all growers planning to sow a winter cover crop this fall, investigate the possibility of planting the Austrian peas...

More Income From Improved Poultry The rapid increase in egg production over the increase in the number of hens in North Carolina during the past decade attests a decided improvement in the quality and management of poultry flocks...

Yet there is still more room for development in the State's poultry industry, says Roy S. Dearstyne, head of the State College poultry department...

The income of $13,200,000 from the sale of chickens and eggs in 1933 is far short of the figure which can be reached by taking full advantage of the opportunities awaiting development, he continued...

The chief factors in the further development of poultry raising are: increasing the size of farm flocks, developing commercial poultry farms, developing local markets and better means of reaching national markets, improving the quality of eggs and fowls sold, reducing poultry mortality, and exercising more care in breeding, feeding, and general management...

The size of most farm flocks should be increased, Dearstyne said. Too many farmers have only small flocks to supply eggs and birds only for consumption on the farm. The money-making possibilities of poultry are all too often overlooked, since it is hard to realize any appreciable profit from small, neglected flocks...

Careful grading and marketing of high grade eggs and birds will build up the demand for North Carolina products...

Poultry mortality, however, is probably the most acute problem facing the industry, Dearstyne said. Special work is being done in this field. But more co-operation from small growers is needed. An increase in livability will reduce overhead costs and leave more net profit for the poultrymen.
