That Justice May Ever Have A
Champion; That Evil Shall Not Flourish Unchallenged.

Entered at the Postoffice at Warrenton, North Carolina, under Act of Congress of 1879.

Have Consideration: And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to do good works.—Hebrews 10:24.

Wealth should come as the reward of hard labor of mind and hand. That is what we call a profit system.—Franklin Roosevelt.

Wednesday of last week ended the half-day holidays which the merchants have been observing since the first of June, and business is going on as usual every day in the week now. We do not think that persons who trade here have been inconvenienced by the half-day holidays, and we feel that the business heads and their employees have enjoyed them. Although this office did not close, we have favored the holidays. Let us have them again next year.

LIGHT TRUCK AND AVOID ARREST

With the opening of tobacco markets large trucks heavily loaded with tobacco and frequently drawing trailers begin to travel the highways leading to the warehouses where the crop is to be marketed. Hoping to prevent farmers of this county from being arrested by a patrolman or causing an accident which might result in the loss of property or life, we remind them that there is a law requiring not only trucks but also trailers to carry a light on the rear which may be easily seen at night. The wisdom of this law is readily seen and we trust that the farmers and warehousemen of Warrenton will cooperate to the fullest in seeing that it is carried out.

The truck drivers should also see to it that their vehicles are equipped with a rear-view mirror. The law is also plain upon this question, and the convenience to the traveling public would be greatly increased if it was carried out to the letter.

WELCOME COMPLETION OF NEW HIGHWAY

Despite the fact that this county was treated somewhat like the proverbial red headed step-child in regard to the matter, the hard surface road linking Warrenton and Louisburg has been completed after more than ten years of advocacy and promises. This comes as good news to Warrenton and Warren and should prove of tremendous benefit to the traveling public by relieving some of the present congestion on U. S. No. 1 between Norlina and Henderson.

This highway, which follows the old stage coach road and cuts the distance to Raleigh, not only falls in the true purport of the law—"connecting county seat with county seat"—but also opens for travel and trade an area which has long felt the need of a good highway.

We are glad to greet our neighbors of Franklin without having to travel around "the elbow to get to the thumb," and recommend this beautiful drive through the pines and rustic beauty of the country-side to those traveling north and south.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Turning to the Gentiles.
Lesson for September 6th. Acts 14:8-13.

Golden Text: Acts 13:47.

The Golden Text strikes the keynote of our lesson. Because the Jews rejected the gospel message proclaimed by Paul, he and Barnabas turned to the Gentiles. The great-hearted apostle was very eager to convert his own countrymen. One need only read his letters to the churches at Rome and Corinth to realize how zealously Paul labored for the salvation of his own people. Indeed the apostle was anxious to surround every man, whether Gentile or Jew, with the saving embrace of the gospel.

But Paul came to believe, if not at the time of his conversation, certainly during the later years of his career, that he was especially commissioned to devote himself to the Gentile world. The hostility of the Jewish hearers during his first missionary journey strengthened his conviction that his work was to be, in the main, with the Gentiles. Such proved to be the case, for his greatest successes were won with those outside the Jewish fold. And so it came to pass that Gentile Christianity overshadowed Jewish Christianity and thus today Christendom is a Gentile community.

How did Paul promote the cause of Christ among the Gentiles? Not, it is clear from the record, by sensational methods necessitating striking publicity and a loud blaring of trumpets, but by quiet, personal hand-to-hand work. To be sure there was much public preaching in the synagogues and elsewhere. But Paul did his most effective work in the homes of the folk whose lives he touched. In this way Christianity acted as a leaven quietly changing the lives of ordinary citizens, and binding them all together in the bonds of faith.

There is reason to believe that the church of the future must depend, in the main, on intensive work with individuals. The day of steadily large congregations seems to be passing. But the need for a pastoral, intimate ministry with needy souls was never more evident.

Warns Against Ginning Wet Cotton

It's poor policy to raise good cotton, then damage it in the ginning process.

Yet that's what thousands of farmers do every fall, said Glenn R. Smith, cotton marketing specialist of the N. C. Agricultural Experiment Station.

It's not the fault of the ginners, he added, but of the farmers who take their cotton to the gin in a damp condition.

When cotton is picked too early, or while wet with dew or rain, it should be dried out before being placed in storage or taken to the gin, Smith declared.

When damp cotton is ginned, the saw teeth cut and tear the lint, greatly reducing it in quality and grade.

If cotton must be picked while green or damp, he continued, it should be spread out in the sun to dry. If the weather should be so cloudy and damp that this is impossible, the cotton should be dried indoors.

Smith also warned that long staple cotton should not be fed to the gins at too fast a rate. If necessary, the feeder drive should be slowed down.

Both the air blast and the brush gins do better work when the cotton is fed slow enough for the seed roll to be loose.

Setting the seed boards wide open also helps, as this permits a rapid discharge of seed and thus tends to keep the seed roll loose.

North Carolina cotton mills consume about twice as much lint as is produced in the state, he added. This gives the farmers a good potential market at home, but to sell in it they must produce good uniform staple.
