Long Range Plans Call For Agricultural Building

A new agricultural building to house federal agencies in Warren County will probably be built on the Hendricks lot on Front Street now leased by the county with a purchase option.

The court square and be used by that agency until new quarters can be built.

However, it will probably be at least two years before construction on the building starts. Meanwhile, ASC offices will be renovated in the basement of the agricultural building on eral places of business here and in Norlina, including the Boyd-Boyce Motor Company building at the corner of Market and Front streets, the Scoggin Motor Company building and the Allen building on Main street, and several vacant store buildings at Norlina. They were unable to find suitable quarters at reasonable rent without a long-time lease, the committee reported. Reams said that the committee had also inspected the Hendricks house but it did not contain sufficient room on the downstairs floor. The committee suggested that this building could be removed to the back of the lot, and new quarters constructed on the front of the lot.

This was decided by the board of county commissioners in the August meeting here on Monday when they discussed with a committee appointed in July to discuss better quarters for the ASC office.

on the Hendricks property for five years and expected to purchase the property before the lease expires. However, he said, that the lot could not be purchased until the Legislature again meets, when a special act could be passed allowing the county to make a special levy to purchase the lot. Should there be a special session to call for a school bond issue, as seems likely, enabling legislation could probably be passed at this session, he said. Otherwise, there would be two years wait.

Harris Named To Planning Board

Walter J. (Jack) Harris, an employee of the Warrenton Insurance Agency, was appointed by the county commissioners on Monday as a member of the Warren County Planning Board. He succeeds Howard Jones of Warrenton, who resigned as a member of the board in order to return to school.

Julian Farrar, Welfare Superintendent, explained to the commissioners that this donation would go elsewhere unless used in Warren County. He said that the Welfare Board had approved the money being spent in Warren County for salary increases, equipment and for the employment of another case worker. Farrar said that so far he had not been able to find a case worker. Requirements for a case worker is that he or she have four years of college training. Farrar asks that anyone interested in this work contact him.

Commissioners Chairman Amos Capps told the committee that the county had a lease

Capps advised, and the other commissioners concurred, that the ASC group plan to stay in the present quarters for the next two years, after renovating the basement. The committee was instructed to draw up plans necessary for temporary occupancy and to report back to the commissioners.

631 Sign Up In Labor Survey At Littleton

LITTLETON — It was very clearly established here Wednesday that residents of Littleton and surrounding areas desire an industry. A total of 631 white and colored women filled out applications for work during a labor survey held here all day Wednesday.

who helped with taking the survey throughout the day and for the coverage received through the media of press and radio. They described the turnout "impressive."

men who can qualify as machinists or cloth cutters. Joe Newsom, a member of the Littleton Development Company, said he was pleased with the response to the labor survey.

The survey, held in the Browning Drug Store building, began at 8:30 a. m. A line had formed when the doors opened, and by 10:30 some 500 prospective workers had filled out applications. Each was interviewed briefly.

A survey of men will be taken shortly, it was said. Results of the survey will be tabulated by the Bureau of Statistics and the officials of this firm say they will revisit the town in the near future and expect to be able to tell at that time just what the labor survey indicated.

The industrial prospect manufactures women's sleepwear. The name of the company has not been disclosed, but the proposed manufacturing operation will require a building with approximately 70,000 square feet of floor space and will employ some 200 women.

Two officials of a company making women's sleepwear were here to take applications, as were John R. Fish and Col. Jack Frost, both of the Employment Security Commission of Roanoke Rapids, and Hunter Poole, a representative of the Conservation and Development Department of Raleigh.

The labor survey was sponsored by the Littleton Development Company in cooperation with the industrial prospect and the Employment Security Commission office in Roanoke Rapids. Persons who were unable to register Wednesday and who are interested in employment in Littleton may fill out the application form which is reproduced in this edition of The Warren Record.

Members of the Littleton Development Company have been working with representatives of the Commerce and Industry Division of the State Department of Conservation and Development in Raleigh for several months in an effort to attract new industry to this area.

The firm, which has indicated an interest in locating in Littleton, is well established elsewhere and is almost half a century old.

Both men and women are invited to fill out the form. Although the prospect who is interested in Littleton will employ women primarily, there will also be a few jobs for

The prospect now considering the town is the first concrete result of those efforts.

Deadline Set For Nomination Of Committeemen

Persons eligible for membership on community committees of the various townships of Warren County may be nominated by petitions signed by ten or more eligible voters. T. E. Watson, ASC office manager, said yesterday.

The State Highway Commission was requested to add to the county road system a road in Warrenton Township known as "Downtin Street."

Chairman Amos Capps was authorized to invest $25,000 of surplus school funds at the best interest possible consistent with legal requirements and maximum security. This money is capital funds being accumulated for the construction of a school.

Nominations will be received at the county ASC office until August 21. Community elections will be held on September 11.

The commissioners ordered that a quit claim deed be given to the Virginia Electric Power Company releasing any and all interest the county has in a tax foreclosure proceeding entitled Warren County vs. W. A. Moseley et al and all other persons claiming any interest in the lands described in the judgment of foreclosure dated February 5, 1940, recorded in Judgment Book 8, page 368, Clerk of the Superior Court of Warren County.

The house, used as a rooming house for several persons employed at the Gaston dam, was part of the estate of Martha Carroll, administered by Lula Jerman of Norlina.

Watson said that the names of persons nominated—and incumbent committeemen may be included in the notice—will be included in the slate of nominees if found willing to serve and eligible.

The Warren County Rural Fire Department answered the fire call but too much headway had been made by the flames upon their arrival.

Hurt in the fire was James Cook, asleep in an upstairs room when he was awakened by smoke. Cook suffered minor burns from the flames and an eye injury and bruises when he jumped from an upstairs window. His injuries are not considered of a serious nature.

If a person nominated by petition is found ineligible he will be notified of such determination prior to the completion of the slate of nominees and that he may appeal to the county committee any time prior to the date set for the completion of the late of nominees. The community committee will make such additional nominations as are required or as it determines to be desirable.

Three ASC county committeemen and two alternate committeemen are also elected in each county after completion of the community elections.

The commissioners gave their approval for an addition to the welfare budget of $6,500, said amount to be appropriated in its entirety by the state and federal governments.

Rocky Mountain Fever Is East, Says H. Dept.

The Warren County Health Department this week warned that ticks carry Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever which has made its way east of the Mississippi and which has been found in North Carolina.

As an added precaution, dogs and other pets should be treated for ticks. Persons removing the ticks should avoid coming in contact with them with their hands, and the ticks should be carefully disposed of.

"In fact," a health department spokesman said, "cases have occurred in Warren County."

"This type of care will help decrease still another outdoor hazard," the health department said.

The health department also called attention to the fact that summertime and fall are seasons when most people are out of doors, engaged in recreational activities. Because of this, the department said, it is well to be aware of possible exposure to disease or accidents, and take steps to prevent them. Swimming in safe water only, protection of food, water safety, are some things that should be considered, among other, while enjoying a vacation or holiday.
