LETTER

Mrs. Martin's letter of resignation is as follows: Board of Trustees of Warren General Hospital Warrenton North Carolina

Gentlemen:

Feeling very keenly the recriminations and personal enmities in which the Board of Trustees of Warren General Hospital has been dealing for many months without decisive action thereby, in my opinion, doing not only Warren General Hospital, but also the community which it serves, a great injustice, I hereby tender to the Board of Trustees my resignation as Executive Secretary thereof effective immediately.

It is with feelings of mixed emotions that I so do for, as you all know, I have been with the Board of Trustees since its formation in May 1948. I have not always agreed with the action of the Board, but, of course, as Executive Secretary, I have no voice in those actions. My chief duty has been to record and transcribe the minutes of each meeting of the Board as matters transpired therein.

This I have always done to the best of my ability. I have never let my personal feelings or likes and dislikes for any individual enter into my services to the Board of Trustees of Warren General Hospital. My main concern in all of my associations with the Board has been the welfare of Warren General Hospital, and that I feel should be the main concern of all people in Warren County.

During my years of service with the Board I have seen the Hospital flourish when fully staffed with a surgeon and supporting general practitioners; this, of course, being the "back-bone" of any hospital. I have also seen the Hospital struggle to remain open when these services were not available and practically impossible to obtain. I saw the Hospital, in spite of overwhelming obstacles, remain open through the efforts of the Board under the able leadership of a former Chairman of the Board, the late Honorable John Kerr, Jr., and through the faithful and dedicated work and service of the late Dr. Frank P. Hunter, and the coming to Warren General Hospital of a most competent and skilled surgeon, Dr. Charles Bunch, who chose to

Birds Winging South In Autumn Migration

WASHINGTON - That harbinger of winter-robin red-breast-is on the wing, flying south.

For Guatemalans, the first robin can be as sure a sign of coming winter as it is a traditional herald of spring when it flies north with the melting of snow in Illinois and New Jersey.

The robin is only one among the thousands of species of birds billions strong now taking to the air in another repeat performance of one of nature's greatest spectacles; the twice-yearly migration of the birds.

After centuries of watching in wonderment, man still does not exactly know how or why birds may fly perhaps a third or more the width of the world every autumn, and then return to their breeding grounds—sometimes to the same nest—in the spring.

But scientists think they finally may be closer to solving the mystery, with theories that may sound as fanciful as the explanations of the ancients, the National Geographic Society says.

Aristotle and other philosopher-naturalists of Greece noted the migrations, but thought swallows and some other birds spent the winter in hibernation or sleeping in hollow trees, caves or even beneath mud in marshes.

New England's famed Puritan preacher, Cotton Mather, proclaimed "The Wild Pigeons on Leaving us Repair to Some Undiscovered Satellite Accompanying the Earth at a near distance."

Sparrows and some robins seldom migrate at all, braving the snow and cold, and bobwhite, quail, and cardinals may never fly more than 10 miles from the nest where they were hatched.

Other birds make epic flights: The arctic tern migrates from the land of the snowy owl to the South Polar home of the penguin, then returns as the seasons change, perhaps flying 25,000 miles a year.

Most bigger birds fly by day, a few thousands of miles without stopping to feed. But 90 percent of the migration is at night, including that of most small birds, despite the legend that they hitchhike on the backs of the bigger fliers.

Flocks of migrating birds do ride prevailing north and south winds.

How do birds navigate? Scientists' elaborate experiments indicate that some birds, at least, may actually use sightings of the sun and stars.

Other theories indicate they may find their way by somehow sensing the varying forces of gravity and magnetic attraction around the Earth, or by reacting to the Coriolis force produced by the Earth's rotation.

But birds are also apparently not above taking shortcuts on their migrations. Swiss birdwatchers have reported swallows flying through a four-mile mountain tunnel to Italy—better than flying over the 8,000 foot Alps.

settle in our community rather than another which may have been more lucrative to him. The records speak for themselves in showing what Dr. Bunch has meant and still means to Warren General Hospital and the community.

In resigning from your midst, I do hope that the Board will reflect on these retrospective remarks made by me and put the welfare of Warren General Hospital and our community ahead of any personal feelings and animosities it as a body or as individual members may have for any individual. Our community now, more than ever, needs men to medical ability and skill. Let us forget self and go forward instead of backward.

With kind regards and good wishes to each of you, I am, Sincerely yours,
