

New Indians Regaining Past

The Kwakiutl Indians thought it was more blessed to give than to receive long before the first European missionary set foot in North America.

The Kwakiutl people, who for centuries lived along the coastal waters of western Canada and Vancouver Island, believed that generosity brought honor to the giver. They expressed this belief in elaborate potlatch, or giveaway, ceremonies that still survive.

In the old days a chief gathered his wealth and invited guests from the island villages. Through days of singing, dancing, feasting, and giving away blankets, canoes, and other valuables, the chief

A Kwakiutl Indian in Western Canada dons a bizarre ceremonial mask to perform the "Animal Kingdom" ritual. Stephen Tiger, originally from the Miccosukee Tribe in Florida, bridges the gap between two worlds as a painter, rock composer, and performer. Other young Indians learn traditional skills, such as raising a tepee, at a large tribal encampment near Alberta, Canada.

National 4-H Council Formed, Koonce Reports

The National 4-H Service Committee of Chicago and the National 4-H Foundation of Washington have combined to form the National 4-H Council. George W. Koonce, Extension Agent, 4-H, stated this week.

Announcement of the merger of the two 4-H agencies was made recently by Omer G. Voss, chairman of the new organization, which became fully operative on Feb. 1.

Council is a private non-profit educational institution incorporated to strengthen the 4-H program and enhance its positive influence on youth and adults. The 4-H program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service of the State Land-Grant Universities and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, now involves more than 5.8 million young people and more than 550,000 volunteer leaders. Council support to 4-H is provided primarily from the private sector.

Private support of 4-H has been a major factor in the development of this youth program which now reaches young people in every geographical area, farm, rural and urban, and of every race, color and creed. Additionally, programs similar to 4-H exist in 82 nations around the world.

Council brings together two organizations with a long tradition of private support to 4-H through training, research, recognition, information and development programs. The Service Committee was founded in 1921; the Foundation in 1948. The merger comes after five years of discussion, study groups and organizational work with leaders in the private sector and the Cooperative Extension Service.

"Council will build on this tradition of service to expand and strengthen the role of the private sector as effective partners in the 4-H program," Mr. Voss said. "The merger will bring about greater efficiency and effectiveness in development of resources and in services to 4-H members, leaders and staff."

At a meeting in Chicago last week, the Executive Committee of Council's Board of Trustees approved a 1977 budget of more than $8,000,000. Mr. Voss added.

Bean Yields Show Signs Of Drought

The full effect of the dry weather that occurred in North Carolina late in the 1976 farming season is reflected in the final figures on the size of the Tar Heel soybean crop.

Growers averaged only 21.5 bushels per acre from 1.1 million acres for a total crop of 23.7 million bushels.

Many fields were not harvested due to meager bean production caused by the dry weather.

The size of the U. S. soybean crop was 1.3 million bushels, down 18 per cent from a year earlier and the fourth largest crop on record. The average per acre yield was 25.6 bushels or over three bushels less than the record high of 28.8 in 1975.

They tell us that the ladies of the garden clubs had a mighty fine and enjoyable meeting here. There is nothing like ladies and flowers to improve a town.

More than 30 years ago people were making Hunter's a favorite gathering place at just about any time of the day. We welcomed our friends then, and we welcome them now. Throughout the years quality and courtesy have been two reasons why Hunter's has become a name worth remembering.

The damp weather yesterday had

The farmers are mighty interested in the new farm bill. We don't know the particulars but we certainly hope that it will help them.
