

Dress Right To Keep Coolest

Free summer air conditioning is available if you dress right to keep cool. Because the body gives off more than three pints of water a day for health and comfort, fabrics that carry this water away from the body and allow it to evaporate into the air will keep the wearer cooler, says Judy Walker, extension clothing specialist at North Carolina State University. Cotton and linen are both good fibers for this because they "breathe." Some synthetic fibers can slow down or retard moisture escape, and will cause that hot, sticky feeling.

Rayon, to some extent, is a cooling fiber, as is polyester. When used in blends with more absorbent fibers, polyester is a fair conductor of heat.

Fabrics should also be loosely woven. The more tightly woven the fabric is, the more you tend to get overwarm and uncomfortable.

Hearings Lack Participation

All was quiet on the municipal front for two Warren boards holding public hearings Monday night.

At Norlina, where the Board of Commissioners sat to hear comments on a proposed budget for the 1977-78 fiscal year, no citizen put in an appearance, and commissioners transacted no other business, Mayor Bill Perry reported. Warrenton's commissioners were likewise lacking public comments, as a hearing on proposed expenditure of the town's federal revenue sharing funds failed to produce a visitor.

Norlina commissioners are expected to adopt their budget Monday night, while Warrenton commissioners will conduct a public hearing on their tentative budget the same night.

Mrs. Clayton Wins Re-Election

Anna Butler. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Patsy Hargrove, who had previously called the roll of delegates and alternates. Precinct officers were presented by Alvis Fleming.

Mrs. Clayton was elected as Warren County's representative on the Warren County Executive Committee.

In her report to the convention Mrs. Clayton said that 1977 was a very good year for Democrats throughout the Nation, North Carolina and Warren County, and that Warren County Democrats have reasons to be proud and pleased by their accomplishments. She said that the party had worked to involve other persons in its activities. "We were actively involved in the Democratic nominee campaign, including, national, state and local," Mrs. Clayton said, adding that the local committee had purchased advertisement in newspaper and radio during the November election. Mrs. Clayton said the Warren County Democrats sponsored its first "Meet the Candidate" affair where the candidates discussed their views with citizens of the county. She said the number of registered Democrats greatly increased in 1976.

"Warren County Democrats," Mrs. Clayton continued, "have supported that State Democratic Party by attending the many fund-raising activities. We also gave a $100 donation during the November election."

"We have made an honest effort to communicate with the precinct leaders. We now have a postoffice Box 109. We ask that you communicate with us also."

"The greatest achievements have been the involvement of new persons and the formation of two new Democratic organizations."

Mrs. Clayton concluded her remarks by saying that "These accomplishments are just the beginning. Warren County Democrats will come alive and active to insure that we are one of the best Democratic organizations in the state."

Floyd McKissick, Jr., president of the Warren County Young Democratic Club, and Mrs. Anna Butler, president of the Warren County Democratic Women, each reported on the organization and growth of their clubs and asked for continued support. In her talk Mrs. Patterson told of the organization of the Democratic party by Thomas Jefferson, and its growth in service to the nation. Its present and future is bright, she said.

She mentioned her work with the Guilford County Executive Committee, where conventions last from seven to nine hours or more, and told of how she came to Raleigh at the request of Governor James Hunt, and of her work in the successful campaign of President Jimmie Carter in North Carolina. She praised the work of Carter as president and mentioned several interesting anecdotes about the President during her contacts with him in Washington.

One of the pleasant goals of the Party, Mrs. Patterson said, is the retirement of Republican Senator Jesse Helms and the replacing of him with a good Democratic Senator. She said it would be successfully accomplished.

Budget

Pope, and George Robinson. Pope confined his brief remarks to need for the change in operation of school buses as he complained of too frequent stops. George Robinson had no comments.

Fleming said that he feels that the commissioners should sell the Allen home, continue to rent office space for its employees, reduce payments to the Extension Department, not hire another man for Soil Conservation and suggested that the rescue squads might do the work of the Warren County Ambulance Service and that the county has enough schools. He said that it was imperative that the commissioners hold down the tax rate.

Jules Banzet, when called upon said, "Mr. Fleming has largely expressed my view."

Judge Banzet agreed that the Allen home should be sold and expressed his dissatisfaction with the idea of tearing down the Hendricks building, now being used for office space. He said he had often been in the magistrate's office in that building which he found very comfortable. He complained of the "excessive" valuation placed upon his real estate.

County Manager Charles Hayes defended the purchase of the Allen home, explained the need for more office space, said the Hendricks building was an eye sore with obsolete offices and was an embarrassment to those who were jealous of the good name of the county. He said that he had gone over the budget carefully with the commissioners in an effort to hold down taxes, and that it is now a choice between tax rate and service. He said that in his opinion the 68c rate was as low as the tax rate should be cut.

Following a meeting with the representatives of the Department of Transportation here on last Thursday night, the board again met for further study of the budget. They reduced the proposed tax rate from 68c to 60c, cutting from the tentative budget more than $100,000.
