Warren Gets Bad News On Proposed Line

Notification of Warren's from Second Instruct Congressman, I. H. Fountain to telephone calls from Hayes Region K director, to see if alternative funding routes pressed optimism following Monday's series of calls

We seem to be back where we were two years are. Haves said That was before Warren was approved and then disapproved for first round funding, later led to believe that the county had a chance when the second round began in late the money was exhausted Along the line, county ifficials made numerous trips to Washington and to HUD's regional office in Atlanta. At one point it was hoped that a special reserve fund-set up for errorsould be tapped However, Hayes said, the error provision covered computer error but not human error Warren's preliminary application appeared to have been disapproved because of human error, he said.

Fountain told Hayes that he "sincerely regretted" the decision not to fund the $900,000 line "especially after we apparently had been led to believe that fundine under Round II might be forth, on u.g.
