Instructor Attends Meet

Miss Joy Lockhart, co-director of the Lockhart School of Dance in Warrenton, has just returned from an extensive 10-day dance session in New York City.

She attended a special technique dance convention at the Professional Dance Teachers Association. The P.D.T.A. is a national organization of dedicated dance teachers who are interested in the creative possibilities of the present and the future and who are concerned with improving themselves as dance teachers, choreographers, as business people, and as leaders in their community.

Miss Lockhart also attended two annual dance workshops of talented, master teachers, whose newest ideas, techniques and routines in dance, will be used in her studio this fall. Each day consisted of eight hours of ballet, tap, jazz, and modern technique and dance routines, plus three hours each evening of ballroom dance, which also included the newest disco, hustle, rope, bus stop and others for the teenagers and young adults.
