A major sign of cystic fibrosis is a high salt content in the perspiration.

The local chairperson emphasized that the two-fold campaign is designed to alert parents to the symptoms of CF and other lung-damaging diseases of children and to collect funds in support of medical-scientific programs at the 116 care, teaching and research centers in the United States.

Many of the 150,000 North Carolina youngsters who suffer with one or more lung diseases are treated at the Duke CF Center which is supported by campaign funds.

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation sponsors research, education, teaching and patient care at more than 100 CF Centers in the United States.
