Premiums At Fair Shared By Many

For generations men and women alike have marveled over getting the best harvest, best needle work or best pig ready for the County Fair.

This year at the Warren County Fair there is no exception. The largest collard, largest watermelon,

Wreck Reported

Warrenton Police Chief Freddie Robinson reported that C. E. Champion of Louisburg was injured and taken to Warren General Hospital after striking a parked vehicle on Plummer Street on Tuesday.

Robinson said Champion was driving east on Plummer Street about 8:47 a. m. Tuesday morning when the sun obstructed his vision and he ran into a parked car owned by Mrs. Fred Hardy of Plummer Street. Robinson ruled the accident unavoidable.

most delicious grapes and tenderest stringbeans baffled judges early Tuesday morning. While a selection was being made, other judges were sampling home-made taffy, preserves, pickles and other delectables prepared by Warren County women.

Arts and crafts were not neglected. Almost a dozen crewel or hand-painted pictures are exhibited along with quilts and spreads and articles of clothing.

Richard Holtzman, Richard Holtzman, Jr., and Mrs. Ellen Moseley took top honors in the premiums in the various categories.

The Holtzmans won the best of the field crops department. Other first place winners to receive cash premiums were Debbie Walker, Julius Henderson, Alonza Yancey, Mrs. Donnie Mulchi and Richard Webb for tobacco. W. A. Connell, Mrs. James Clark, Mrs. Thelma Howard, Irvin Halthcock and Mrs. Roy Shearin won the most first-prize entries for the horticultural department. Junior winners in this division were Debbie Walker, David Connell and Claude Odom. There were many first place winners but only those receiving at least four or more first prize premiums were included.

Blue ribbons were also tacked on Edward Conn's watermelon for the largest in the senior division and one entered by Claude Odom for the junior division. Revis Lynch won the blue ribbon for the best watermelon.

Richard J. Holtzman entered the largest pumpkin in the senior division with Paula Pulley winning the blue ribbon for the largest in the junior division.

Mrs. Ellen Moseley was the top winner for the ladies' entries. She won more first place ribbons than anyone else. Mrs. Moseley received eight blue ribbons in the pantry division followed by Mrs. Frank Kilian with five.

Mrs. L. H. Clary received the most first-place ribbons in the canning division. Mrs. G. C. Robinson, Mrs. J. B. Russell, Mrs. Frank Kilian, Mrs. Randy Curtis and Mrs. L. R. Harris were also winners of more than four blue ribbons in this category.

Mrs. W. R. Hayes won four blue ribbons for the most in the flowers division. Other winners with several blue ribbons were Mrs. Fred White and Mrs. Carl Lynch.

In the needlework, arts and crafts department Mrs.

Ellen Moseley again took top honors. Other winners with several blue ribbons were Mrs. Julia Williams, Mrs. Frank Twitty and Mrs. Thelma Howard.

Of 102 exhibitors there were 687 entries in this year's fair. In flowers, pantry, needlework and arts and crafts there were 472 entries with 215 horticultural entries.

Last year 907 entries were brought to the fair by 140 exhibitors. This indicates a decrease of 220 entries or about 25 percent for this year's exhibits.

The booths, designed by local organizations, also deserve merit. Functions of various organizations or how to recycle beer cans can be observed in the exhibit hall.

Winning first place in the Civic Club category was the Town 'N Country Garden Club. Their original exhibit was how to recycle beer cans into beautiful flowers. Second place in this category went to the Ideal Club; third place to the Golden Age Senior Citizens Club; and fourth place to the Warrenton Junior Woman's Club.

The Golden Star 4-H Club won in the 4-H booth entry with the Zion 4-H Club placing second.

The Olive Grove Extension Homemakers Club took top honors in that category. The Inez Extension Homemakers Club won second place.

The Future Homemakers of America (F.H.A.) of Hawkins Junior High won the Vocational Home Economics booth with the F.H.A. of Norlina High School placing second.

Hawkins Junior High School also won the high school booth competition.

The Friendly Four won the community club division and the F.F.A. of Norlina High School in that division.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Warrenton Rural Fire Department succeeded in the first place competition in the fire division with the Warrenton Ladies Auxiliary winning second place.

All of the industrial booths won blue ribbons. They included Cochrane, Harriet-Henderson, Carolina Sportswear, Eller's Mum Gardens, Peck Manufacturing, and Norlina Manufacturing.

The Warren County Soil Conservation Service and the N. C. Forestry Service also received blue ribbons for their entries.

Other retail exhibits complete the exhibit hall.
