MRS. RICHARD POWELL

Mrs. Powell Named Clubwoman Of Year

Mrs. Richard Powell (Ann) was named "Clubwoman of the Year" at the annual Christmas dinner of the Norlina Junior Woman's Club on Thursday night.
The honor is given annually at the dinner, this year held at the Middleburg Steak House. Mrs. Pete Fleming, president of the club presented the award to Mrs. Powell.

Attending the dinner meeting were Mrs. C. C. King, Jr., Mrs. Jimmy Brant, Mrs. Wayne Paynter, Mrs. Randy Curtis, Mrs. Richard Powell, Mrs. William Dickerson, Ms. Mary Lou Lewis and Mrs. Pete Fleming.
After the meal, the members exchanged presents and enjoyed a social hour.

Christmas Is Theme Of Meet

Circle No. 1 of the Norlina United Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. R. G. Norwood Monday, Dec. 5 at 3 p.m.
The meeting was opened with Mrs. Gladys Perkinson at the organ rendering Christmas selections.

A scripture reading taken from the book of John was given by Mrs. Norwood and Mrs. C. O. Ivey offered a prayer.
Mrs. Norwood then presented a program entitled "Christmas Affirmation of Faith" and a Christmas reading authored by Henry VanDyke.

Miss Patricia Hicks, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Perkinson, sang a solo "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly."
Mrs. C. O. Ivey, chairperson, took charge of the business meeting.
A special offering was taken for a Christmas gift for a shut-in in the community.

Gifts from under a beautiful lighted Christmas tree were exchanged.
During the social hour, refreshments in keeping with the Christmas season, were enjoyed by all.
Miss Hicks assisted the hostess in serving the guests.

Charles Edwards, Norlina native, is one of three newly created executive vice presidents announced by Harker Collins, president and chief executive officer of Bandag, Inc., of Muscatine, Iowa. The three vice-presidents will assume their new duties on Jan. 1.

CHARLES EDWARDS

Appointed as executive vice presidents in addition to Edwards were Eugene E. Seyb and Harold H. Vischer. In their new roles these officers will continue to serve as members of the executive committee of the company, along with Harker Collins, who is chairman of the committee.

Collins, in making the announcement, said the three executives will report to him and be responsible for all major functional areas of the company activities.
Although the current organizational structure has served the company well, Collins said, sales have quadrupled during the past four years. He further stated that "With our sales approaching $200 million, the increased complexity of our business makes these changes a positive move for the future."

the future."

Edwards, formerly senior vice president of operations, becomes president of Bandag's Rubber and Equipment Group. He also serves as chairman of the board for the following subsidiaries of Bandag: Master Processing Corporation; Emblex Industrial Hose; Bandag Europe, N. V. and Bandag Canada, Ltd., Shainigan, Quebec. The latter two manufacture tread rubber for Bandag dealers.

Edwards, 49, is a native of Norlina, the son of Warren County Commissioner Clyde R. Edwards and the late Lorene Hayes Edwards, and is a graduate of the Norlina High School. He joined Bandag in 1969 after serving 19 years with the Dayco Corporation, where he held various executive manufacturing and engineering positions in both the international and domestic divisions. He was elected to Bandag's board of directors in 1973. He is a graduate of North Carolina State University with a degree in mechanical engineering.

Edwards is active in numerous civic and professional activities, including chairman of the board for the Muscatine Power and Water Company. He and his wife, the former Linda Williams of Norlina, reside at 2118 W. Bay Drive in Muscatine. They have two grown children.

ber, 1979, targeted.

The project was split into three work phases due to inadequate funding. Although the school board has $2 million to spend, a 900-student school of this size and scope is projected to cost approximately $4 million or more.

In a called session Nov. 8, preliminary building plans were presented and accepted. At that time, the board approved a 34-classroom and office central unit with a substantial media center in which other teaching stations may be devised.

Also approved was a cafeteria with kitchen facilities. Set aside for future construction were gymnasium and theater plans as recommended by the planning consultant.

Gymnasium facilities at the existing high schools in Warrenton and Norlina can be used until the school board acquires the necessary funds.

The board will convene for a regular session Dec. 12.
