WOOL CARPETING COSTS

"You get what you pay for" is an old and reliable axiom. To a great extent, it's as true for the carpet business as for any other. If you want real quality, it will be reflected in the price you'll have to pay for it. In some cases, however, there are other factors besides quality in determining costs.

Take wool carpeting for example. It's considerably more expensive than comparable carpeting made with manmade fibers. Part of this high cost is due to demand (quality), but part of it is also due to the inadequacy of wool production throughout the world. Australian and American wools for example are, for the most part, considered too fine and soft for use in carpet production. Wool from Iran, Iraq, Afghanistan, on the other hand, are some of the finest in the world for carpets—but not very reliable sources.

Sure, wool carpets are great, but there are other fine carpets which might be better buys.
