

Story Of Zebulon Drug Co

For more than a quarter of a century, Zebulon Drug Company has served the people of Zebulon and the surrounding community. During that entire period the store has been under the management of E. C. Daniel.

Back in 1905, before Zebulon came into existence, Dr. Z. M. Caviness, now of Raleigh, and E. C. Daniel established a drug store in Wakefield. Shortly after Zebulon was founded, the firm of Caviness and Daniel moved their business into a new store building in Zebulon, in 1907. The original store is now occupied by M. T. Debnam, hardware dealer.

In 1912, after Dr. Caviness moved to Raleigh, the name of the business was changed to Zebulon Drug Company and E. C. Daniel became sole manager.

In those early days of the town, Zebulon Drug Company was considered one of the finest drug stores in Eastern North Carolina. But the new building which was constructed in 1920 to house the drug store was even larger and finer than the old store.

Zebulon Drug Company is still one of the best drug stores in this section of the state. It is the largest and most complete establishment of its kind in the trading area between Raleigh and Rocky Mount and Wilson.

Quite often, in fact, visitors to Zebulon remark that Zebulon's drug store would do credit to a much larger town. Equipped with beautiful mahogany fixtures and furniture and large soda fountain, it presents a clean, attractive appearance. Although the store carries a more complete stock than the average small town drug store, it is still spacious and roomy.

Through prosperity and depression, Zebulon Drug Company has maintained its high standards of excellence. Its customers include not only the people of this immediate community but also a large group in outlying communities who have heard of the store's reputation for integrity and completeness of facilities.

During the entire 27 years of its existence, Zebulon Drug Company has been actively managed by E. C. Daniel. Outlining the policy under which he has directed the affairs of the company since its establishment, Mr. Daniel says, "It has always been our policy to give the people of the community the best of everything that a good drug store can offer: a clean, comfortable store; a large and complete stock of quality merchandise; and service that excels in courtesy and reliability.

"In accordance with the best principles of the independent drug trade, we believe that the honest merchant has a right to demand a fair profit on the goods he sells. We have endeavored to give the people of the community a good drug store. In order to do that we have found it necessary to sell our goods at standard prices. However, we will always charge the lowest prices consistent with a fair profit.

"Whenever possible we always pass on to the public any savings which we can make possible by quantity buying. It is our policy to offer at least one special bargain a week on staple merchandise.

"We believe, however, that our reputation for reliability and superior service, especially in the compounding of prescriptions, is worth much to our discriminating customers."

For almost ten years, Mr. Daniel has had Julian R. Horton as his principal assistant in the management of Zebulon Drug Company. Mr. Horton's ability, courtesy and helpfulness are widely appreciated by the customers of the store.

to ours occasionally. We cannot change human nature. We can however keep on working in the interest of our community. We can be honest in our endeavor to see that the tobacco sold on our warehouse floor brings the market price and that this market price goes to the man who sells the tobacco.

Most of the surrounding towns have been hit just as hard as has ours. But all of them expect to come back. So does Zebulon and its surrounding territory expect to come back. The agricultural interests of our community are the foundations of our progress. We should endeavor to find a market outlet for everything that the farms of our community produce.

We have been rather fortunate in this endeavor. Although prices have been low, chickens, eggs and other side crops have been sold in Zebulon most of the year. Some of our citizens deserve credit for their efforts in this direction.

Just now we are centering our efforts on making Zebulon a leading market for tobacco and cotton. Somehow we have the feeling that the entire town is going to work harder for the success of these markets this year than we have in many seasons.

During a rainy season (not this year) a visitor in a small town annoyed by constant rain, asked an old settler, "Will the rain ever stop?" It always has, was the reply. We might ask now, "Will good times ever return?" They always have. If we are to keep pace with gradually increasing progress, we must keep at the job of making our town a place for the sale of market produce brought in from the farm.

We have talked with many of the citizens of the town and surrounding community during the last few days. Perhaps we have never found a more willing spirit to work together. This spirit of working together will do much to bring the confidence we need to make our community a progressive one.

AUSTRALIA WANTS BIBLE

A dispatch from Adelaide, South Australia, informs us that the state parliament is to be asked to pass legislation for the introduction of Bible reading in schools, as well as the Education Department is being urged to consider the inclusion in the school reading books of a number of Scriptural parables and reading.

In the private schools of South Australia clergymen attend every morning and give Scriptural lessons to the pupils, but such instruction is not permitted in the state schools. The Methodist Conference, however, is urging a change in this respect, which sentiment is shared by the Council of Churches, including representatives of nearly every religious denomination.

Somebody is always getting in the way of the man who is in the pursuit of happiness.

Silence may be golden, but a good deal of speech is brazen. Many things may be preserved in alcohol, but law and order are not on the list.

GROUP MEETING AT WAKEFIELD

On last Sunday at 3:30 p. m. there was held at Wakefield Baptist church a meeting of representatives from the group of church societies supervised by Mrs. W. A. Smith of Raleigh.

This was the first of these meetings held and the attendance and interest were encouraging. Mrs. Smith presided, Mrs. D. D. Chamblee led the devotional service, an address was made by Mrs. J. W. Bann of Raleigh, and a round table discussion was conducted by Mrs. Gough of Wake Forest, supt. of the missionary societies in the Central Association. Miss Jane Hoyle sang a solo.

The program was considered unusually good.

Some workers from the Wendell church were welcomed, and the attendance of quite a number of men was much appreciated.

The next of the group meetings will be held at Millbrook.

Suggestions And Advice

By E. H. Moser

Some of us have travelled around enough to lose faith in the belief that the grass is greener in the pasture across the fence. We have reached the conclusion that this community offers just as much that is good and beautiful as any other place one can find. We do not mean to boast about what we have. But it is our opinion that the advantages we have, have been covered up because we have been looking for something to drop out of a clear sky to make our condition better.

Take our tobacco market, for example, we boost a little while and then flop because other markets seem to get the weed that we should sell. If we look at the matter squarely we find the other markets are sticking through thick and thin to hold on. There is no reason to become discouraged because a few loads of tobacco
