That's it—
Put Yourself
in His Place!

It's almost never too late to put yourself in the other driver's place. But of course it can be done more comfortably beforehand. For instance, if Mr. A had driven a little more slowly, he could have seen that Mr. B would be forced across the white line. Poor, careless Mr. A! Poor, careful Mr. B!

MEET THE LATE BILL BROWN

That thoughtless Bill Brown is likely to be later than he thinks. First he forgot his appointment, and now he's forgetting the other people on the road, and forgetting that 60 is too fast. Soon a lot of people will forget him too, except those he's just run into.
