JOHN M. OGLEBERRY, City Editor. CONCORD, N. C., JULY 8, 1910

The deadlock in the Fifth congressional district is probably the most stubborn that has ever occurred in the State, with the exception, of course, of the memorable State convention two years ago, and the convention of the twelfth Judicial district at Gastonia bids fair to keep it company.

If it were to do over again, and Balthasar had to be appointed to something, Mr. Taft would probably nominate him for buttonhole inspector at Timbucto.

Airship lines, however, will not seriously affect the passenger business of the regular trains, yet awhile.

What Roosevelt is not going to do furnishes almost as fine a field for speculation as what he is going to do.

In New York a marriage license costs $1.00 and a dog license $2. Well, the man secures possession of the dog for a year at least.

Brazil to Grow Cotton. The Brazilian Minister of Agriculture has made arrangements to send to the United States a well known specialist in cotton growing to visit the Southern States to study American methods of cotton growing and obtain a number of American experts to go to Brazil to further the interests of cotton cultivation in that country according to a report of Vice-Consul General J. J. Siechta, of Rio Janeiro.

The Minister of Agriculture wants these American experts to travel throughout the cotton-growing sections of Brazil and act as inspectors and especially as instructors. "In view of the fact that Brazil is probably the only country other than the United States which possesses lands capable of cotton production on a really large scale this step is of considerable significance," says the Consul.

Fifty Thousand Turtles. Fifty thousand live diamond-back turtles were shipped from New Orleans recently in a tank car to New York. B. W. Wiebels, who operates one of the largest turtle-breeding plants in the world, in Jefferson Parish, across the river from New Orleans, filled the tank car with filtered clean water and put in the necessary food to supply the creatures during the trip. To fill the large order in so short a time it was found necessary to resort to artificial incubation, 200,000 eggs being put into warm water for the purpose. Most of the turtles are from three to six months old, the age at which they are most desirable. Each year the demand for sea food seems to increase until that business has grown to enormous proportions, especially in the civilized portions of the world.

Speakeasyship. The Mooreville Enterprise announces in this issue that in an interview with Mr. Zeb V. Turlington it learns that he will be a candidate for the next speakership of the House of Representatives. Mr. Turlington has distinguished himself in the halls of the General Assembly, and during the heated Justice Dewey fight in 1907, he was urged by his friends in the legislature to make the race for the position then, but he would not consent, says the Enterprise. He has represented Franklin county for the past six years, and has a strong following throughout the State, friends who are now urging him to make the race.

ENDURANCE RACE NEXT IN AVIATION SCHEDULE.

Long Island Plans Contest For Twenty-four Hours.

An endurance race between aeroplanes, to start at sunrise and end at sunset, is the latest proposal to show the development of heavier than air flying craft. A course two and one-half miles in circumference will be built at Garden City, N. Y., by Gage E. Tarbell and suitable stands, fences and automobile parking spaces erected.

Count Ferdinand de Lesseps, who recently flew from France to England, but was unable to return within the twenty-four hours stipulated for the Matin's $2,500 prize, and the Hon. C. S. Bolls, who in a Wright machine was the first man to make a double crossing of the English channel in an airship of any kind, probably will be among the starters in the proposed race.

Charles K. Hamilton, Captain Thomas R. Baldwin, M. J. Seymour, Clifford B. Harmon, Harry S. Harkness and others whose machines are being constructed or assembled at Garden City have intimated their desire to compete in this race.

The endurance contests will be conducted very much as are the twenty-four hour automobile races. Judges, stationed all the way around the two and a half mile course, can see that corners are not cut, and the winner will be the flier who completes the greatest number of laps. Aeronautes will be permitted to make any repairs they choose and to come down for repairs, supplies or rest as often as they desire.

FIRE AT FALSTAFF HOME SITE

London Relic of Shakespearean Character Destroyed.

Few of those who visited the scene of a fire in Vine street, London bridge, recently knew that the building occupied the site of the town house of Sir John Falstaff, the original of Shakespeare's Falstaff, who in his day was a continual butt for the jests of the town and borough of Southwark.

Though he had fought at Agincourt, when Jack Cade invaded the borough, he displayed great cowardice. When Cade was yet some way off Falstaff had armed and fortified his house and garrisoned it with veterans of the French wars. On the arrival of Cade, however, he withdrew his garrison and fled to the Tower, leaving his neighbors to the mercy of the rebels.

Falstaff's matrimonial adventures seem also to have been another source of unpopularity, for, having married a widow named Scrope, he seized her property and kept his stepson out of his inheritance during his own lifetime.

SUES FOR DIVORCE IN RHYME

Spokane Man Says Wife "Tells Not, Neither Does She Spin."

Whether G. H. Forth, plaintiff in the suit, or his counsel, J. C. Kleber, is responsible for establishing a precedent in the Spokane (Wash.) county superior court by telling his domestic troubles in rhyme is not known, but in the following lines incorporated in the complaint are the several charges preferred against Della Forth in an action for divorce:

The defendant tells not, neither does she spin. In her leisure hours ether hearts doth she win. Against the wish and without a husband's consent. Neither time nor affection on him has she spent. Till patience no longer such conduct can endure. And a wronged spouse now a divorce would procure.

The Forths were married in Spokane in November, 1904, and have a four-year-old child.

FISH MAY EAT SKEETERS.

Harvard Professor Has Scheme to Rid New England.

Dr. Samuel Garman of Harvard and other scientists have put forth the proposition of exterminating the mosquito pest in New England by the introduction and acclimating of goldfish and the species of cyprinodonts into lakes and ponds where the mosquito abounds. The goldfish, of which there are already many in the Charles river, are great lovers of mosquitoes and their larvae.

About 200,000 deaths are caused annually by the bites of mosquitoes infected with germs. Dr. Garman believes that in addition to the Fundulus magalis, Zygonectes nottil and the Zygonectes olivaceus, the more prolific species, the Heterandria formosa and the Gambusia holbrooki, can be brought and bred in the northern countries and do away with the mosquito pest.

YOUNG MORSE NOW COWBOY.

Convicted Banker's Son Leaves Yale For Wyoming.

Erwin E. Morse, the second son of Charles W. Morse, the federal prisoner at Atlanta, whose wife is making a fight to obtain his pardon by the president, was graduated from Yale this year in a class of which one member was the son of President Taft. Young Morse is a fine, large, manly fellow with his father's alert mind and New England temperament and the body of a trained athlete. Following graduation he left New York for Wyoming, where he is to begin life as a cowboy on a ranch thirty miles square.

Young Morse had the choice of commencing life in New York, getting into some office and working his way up the ladder. With his father's many friends he could have found ready advancement had he chosen to become a city man.

"COUVERT" TOLL IDEA ANGRERS GOTHAM DINERS.

Separate Charge For Knife, Fork and Bread Presented.

Might as well try effectively to toll the curfew in New York as to collect the "couvert" toll—that's the composite opinion not only of hotel customers, but of hotel men themselves, regarding J. B. Regan's plan, quoted in dispatches from Paris, to make persons dig deeper than ever before into their pockets when eating in his hotel.

The "couvert" toll is a gentle custom in vogue on the continent of Europe whereby nothing is "thrown in" at service in restaurants. You are charged in separate items for the use of knife, fork, spoons, tablecloth and even your napkin. For sugar it costs no much, for cream so much more, for a drop of ketchup or a dash of vinegar, for pepper and salt you pay so much more, and there's even an individual tax for the bread you eat with your soup.

Without by so much as a nickel reducing the prices for food as they now stand on the bill of fare, Regan says he will institute this toll on his return to America. You will have to pay 25 cents for the privilege of sitting at a table and having the usual accessories spread on the cloth.

As a prominent guest at New York hotels and restaurants and, as she says, "a regular gourmet thing" Miss Marie Dressler uttered a loud cry when she heard of Regan's plan.

"Give me the smelling salts and a highball," she gasped, "and—well, you needn't mind the smelling salts. Isn't life enough of a gamble without turning our restaurants into jack pots where it costs you a quarter to look in? And you poor boys get the worst of it."

"We girls can keep our bonnets pinned on, but there's a little highwayman at the door of every restaurant looking for yours, and then it's a couple of dollars to make the head waiter see an empty table, and it's a dollar at least at the finish if you are going to win a little, coy smile from Francois, and—well, I can see the finish all right."

"They'll be charging a dollar for a flower vase on your table and a dollar apiece for every flower you put in it, and it will be a dime to have a foot-stool, and gilt chairs will be extra, and champagne with two pieces of ice in the pail will be $9 and with five pieces of ice $10.10, and the first thing you know if you go into a hotel for a Swiss cheese sandwich and a glass of beer you'll have a $1,000 bill hollering for help!"

HIGH PRIEST TO LIVE AGAIN.

Beheaded by Mistake, Tibetan Is Officially Reincarnated.

A curious example of the Tibetan and Chinese idea of justice and the belief in restoration of life through reincarnation came to light recently in the case of a Tibetan Hotookato, a high priest of Buddhism, who lost his head when he incurred the displeasure of the since deposed dala lama, the religious head of the Buddhists, who fled from Lassa, the capital of Tibet. The beheaded high priest was reincarnated and his titles and wealth restored. This was ordered in an imperial edict.

The edict sets forth that the Hotookato—that is, one of the saints of the highest class—was decapitated three years ago. The throne finds now that it was deceived by the dala lama, who secured the execution on the ground that the high priest had attempted the former's life by sorcery, a profession in which these saints are reputed to be especially gifted.

The process of reincarnation will be similar to that of a dala lama. Infants of a certain blood displaying signs that they possess the same soul as that of the deceased will be assembled and their names written upon slabs of wood and sealed. These will be placed in a large urn of precious metal from which the high lama will draw by chance one of the names. The identity of the reincarnated will be greeted by the populace with shouts of joy.

The edict further provides that the saint Dhooq of the Hotookato shall be restored and that his treasure confiscated by the dala lama shall be returned to the infant Hotookato.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It sets directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. FOREST HONORED BY FRANCE

Inventor of Explosive Motor Profits Only by Distribution.

Bernard Forest, seventy-nine years old, who lives at Buresnes, has just been recognized by France as the real inventor of the explosive motor and has had the cross of the Legion of Honor conferred upon him. The explosive motor at first, nearly fifty years ago, was regarded as a mere toy, and capital for development could not be secured. One after another his patents expired, and when the automobile industry began to avail itself of them M. Forest did not profit in the least.

Famous Catalpa Still Alive.

The famous specimen of the Catalpa bignonioides in the historic gardens of Gray's inn, London, is again in leaf. It was falsely reported dead some years ago. The patriarch, said to have been planted by the great Lord Bacon, has not bloomed profusely since 1900. A slip secured in 1829 by a United States official in London is now one of the finest catalpas in the neighborhood of Washington.
