PRESIDENT OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN AT NEW YORK

Executive Will Deliver Address at Luncheon of the Associated Press.

Washington, April 23.—Departure of President Harding from Washington tonight for New York, where he will speak tomorrow at the annual luncheon of the members of the Associated Press, marked the real beginning of a series of speaking trips to be made by the Executive during the spring and summer to various parts of the country.

Through these addresses, of which about fifteen will be made during a trans-continental tour starting in June, the Chief Executive expects to account for his stewardship again, to restate and reaffirm the purpose of his administration and to announce and explain the policies he plans to pursue during the remainder of his tenure of office.

Important Address.

White House officials, as is customary, have given no inkling of the nature of the address Mr. Harding will make tomorrow at the Associated Press luncheon, which will be attended by a large proportion of the newspaper editors and publishers of the country.

Presidential Party.

The President will be accompanied by Mrs. Harding, George B. Christian, Jr., his secretary; Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, his personal physician, and Chairman Baker, of the Shipping Board. He plans to spend the morning quietly at his hotel, after breakfast on the train. After the luncheon at which in addition to speaking he will renew acquaintances with a number of fellow editors, he will return to his hotel to spend the late afternoon in receiving callers. It is expected that he and Mrs. Harding will attend the theatre in the evening, going from there to the station to board their train.

An Agent's Defense.

"Now here," said the agent "is a fine farm of 160 acres of land in a fine district, and—"

"Why do you say 'acre of land'?" interrupted the fussy customer. "What kind of acres are there except of land?"

"Well, said the agent, 'I once got into a lot of trouble for selling a stranger 160 acres of water, and now I'm taking no chances.'"

Where, Oh Where! Attorney—And where did you see him milking the cow? Witness—A little past the center, sir.

On Her Way. Tommy—"Mother's throwing plates at father." Visitor—"Is she angry with him?" Tommy—"No, but she's working up to it."

Matter of Taste. A—"Must I put the stamps in myself?" B—"Suit yourself about it. However it's customary to put them on the letter."

AID FOR FARMERS

Dean Williams Suggests Mays Bankers Can Aid the Farmers.

(By The Associated Press.) Raleigh, N. C., April 24.—Bankers in North Carolina may render assistance to farmers in at least six different ways, C. B. Williams, dean of the agricultural school, North Carolina State College, in making public a reply to a letter of inquiry from W. R. Dodson, dean of Louisiana State University, declared today.

Mr. Dodson is to speak before the bankers association of his state tomorrow and wrote Dean Williams asking for information relative to the lines of help extended to farmers in North Carolina by bankers.

Asserting that there is not only a growing inclination on the part of bankers to pay heed to the financial needs of agriculture, but to aid in the adjustment of the farming industry, Mr. Williams outlined the following ways in which assistance may be given:

"1. Helping honest and industrious farmers to buy farms and to provide cheap and adequate buildings and equipment to handle the farm to advantage. Of course, the protection the farmer can give is very great in this connection so that the farmer will get a farm which is suitable for the purposes he is to put it to. It should be remembered that except in intensive types of agriculture, like floriculture, trucking and poultry raising, the land area in cultivation should be sufficient to assure the farmer adequate net returns to give at least a good living and some surplus. This cannot be done as you know, with small acreage in general farming (as is frequently sold by land promoters) except where an intensive system of agriculture is to be put into operation. Of course, a man practicing an intensive type of agriculture will have to have acquired knowledge and skill in that particular line in order to stand any chance of success.

"2. Make loans on farms which have already been paid for as early as possible for profitable returns. For instance, if a man is going to do something which will require a little more money than he has to build up the productivity of his soil, then it would appear to me that the banker might encourage loans within proper limits for these purposes.

"3. Help the farmer as far as possible to adopt the best methods of crop rotation; to use the most suitable types and varieties of crops for his particular condition; to use the kinds and amounts of fertilizers that will offer the greatest net returns, and to buy them, if needed, with considerable caution; and to have a limited amount of livestock which would appear to be needed to make farming profitable. Great care should be exercised in advising with reference to the kind and amounts to purchase, for too many farmers have bought stock at too high prices and of the kind that are not suited for their particular kind of farming.

"4. Help farmers to organize themselves in associations for marketing their products, civic improvements and for recreation.

"5. Lend aid to farmers in protecting them from exploitations of all kinds.

"6. Help the farmer to secure the most reliable information with reference to the type of farming he is practicing and to encourage him to put into practice the very best methods. Radical changes, however, in the system of agriculture are very hazardous. My observations are that usually the strengthening of the weak points in his present system is a much safer plan to follow than is a radical change to some other type about which he knows nothing or little. The level headed local banker who knows something about agriculture may play a very important part in bringing about beneficial changes in local systems of farming. If a banker, however, is of the type that wishes to establish in the community a method of agriculture which is practiced in a distant state, which has entirely different conditions from those of his locality, is doomed to a dismal failure as a selling proposition to the farmers of the community."

Electrical Shocks Applied by the Soviets to Rev. Dr. Tikhon.

Riga, April 23.—Reports arriving here from Moscow are to the effect that the soviet political department is subjecting the Most Rev. Dr. Tikhon to electrical shocks, hoping to extort from him a declaration that he recognizes the soviet government as Russia's legal government, and communist doctrines as compatible with the highest religious principles.

It is asserted that the strict prison regime has seriously affected the prelate's health, and that the bolsheviks are attempting to shatter his nerves by giving him graphic accounts of the execution of Butchkevich and also by telling him of the demands which have been made by Bishop Antonin of the "living church" and Bishop Vedeniski, head of the Unified Apostolic Church, for his punishment.

Intellectual Manufacturing Institutions Dealing With Human Material

By DEAN OTIS E. RANDALL, in New York Herald.

Our colleges are in a sense great intellectual manufacturing institutions. We deal with very precious human material which comes to us from all parts of the world and which varies widely in quality. Out of this material we are expected to produce human machines which shall stand the highest tests and which shall efficiently meet the complex and ever increasing demands of the world about us.

This human material does not come to us in its original form, but is subjected to a great variety of transforming or molding processes before it is brought to that stage where we can profitably begin our work upon it. The quality of the material in this stage, which has so much to do with the quality of our finished product, depends very largely, if not wholly, upon the treatment which it has received before it is brought under the influence of the college.

If the great leaders in the industrial world have found it necessary to make such a careful study of the nature and the quality of the raw material which enters into their material production, should we, as leaders in the educational world, show any less concern than they about the quality of the material upon which we are to work and upon which the quality of our output is so dependent?

Lake of Everlasting Fire Active.

The great spectacle of Halemau-mau, popularly known as the "Lake of Everlasting Fire," in Hawaii national park, is again to be seen. In May, 1921, the boiling lava rose slowly until within 40 feet of the rim of the crater. Then earth-quake opened subterranean vents and the surface subsided at the rate of a foot an hour until the whole lake disappeared, leaving a rumbling, smoking chasm 1,000 feet deep and nearly 2,000 feet across. During this sinking the walls of the pit, lacking the support of the living lava, began to collapse. During the subsidence the old craters of Makapuhi and Napau became active but did not continue long. They are now dried out again.

Oh, Willie, Willie!

Little Willie had been hearing his new car and its ability to take the steep hills. At the Sunday supper table he suddenly astonished his parents by demanding: "Pa, does the Lord Almighty own a 'Rolls-Royce,' too?" "Great Scott, no, son. Whatever put that into your head?" "Well, at Sunday school we had a hymn that went, 'If I love Him, when I die He will take me home on high.'"
