BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE RIGHT ATTITUDE.—O come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord our maker.
For he is our God: and we are the people of his pasture.—Psalm 95: 6, 7.

TO DECORATE GRAVES OF WAR DEAD.

The American Legion is to undertake the raising of $100,000 to provide for the decoration of graves of our dead overseas on each Memorial Day.

WHAT WILL BE DONE WITH THEM?

Automobile production in March increased and was the highest on record, exceeding by 64,006 cars and trucks the highest productions of last June, according to reports received by the Department of Commerce through the Bureau of the Census, in co-operation with the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

THIRSTY AMERICANS.

The people of the United States are pouring out fortunes each year for soft drinks. Consumers of mineral and soda water boosted the value of products in that field from $38,400, 000 in 1914 to $115,577,000 in 1921, according to figures compiled by the Census Bureau, an increase of 98 per cent. during the period. The year 1921, however, was the banner period for soft drink manufacturers, for trade during that year was valued at more than $135,340,000.

This classification covers all kinds of carbonated and fruit beverages, root beer, ginger ale, and other so-called soft drinks, but does not include natural spring waters. In addition to the value of products shown for the classified industry, establishments under other classifications added to the figures by reporting the manufacture of carbonated and fruit beverages worth $8,000,000 in 1914.

And yet there are people who say we are spending too much for our Churches and schools. We are not overburdened with necessities when we can spend such vast sums each year for drinks.

CODES OF STANDARDS

Governing Business Relation Are Essential to Progress.

Hot Springs, Ark., April 25.—Experience has shown written codes of standards governing business relations to be essential to the progress and development of every trade and profession. Henry M. London, North Carolina legislative reference librarian, declared today in an address before the Rotary section of the American Library Association in session here.

Each vocation requires rules peculiar to itself, but whatever the business or profession covered, the servicable code is characterized by the fact that it is a set of definite, concise rules of conduct—not beliefs, aims or aspirations," he continued.

"Statistics recently compiled by Joseph A. Turner, show that within the year and a half, 130 trade and professional associations are writing or revising their codes or standards of practice as a result of activities of their Rotary members. Conspicuous among the important professional associations which have not yet adopted a code of ethics, or code of standards of practice is the American Library Association.

"Codes will help more than any other thing in the establishment of standards, and business and professions should develop traditions which give prestige and self respect.

"Only recently the daily papers announced that the golden rule in baseball would prevail in a large western conference, the games to be conducted under a code of 'sportsmanship and courtesy' instead of rowdiness.

"A code of ethics will draw men of standards to a profession and men of standards will help to maintain the code. Service is the guiding star of a Rotarian and may likewise be applied to a librarian who serves the public.

"The experience of those organizations having a code of ethics has shown a great improvement in the business methods of such organizations.

"Along with the development of a quicker business men in various trades and professions have begun to feel the necessity for codes of standards of correct practice.

"No better outline of a code of ethics should be given than that known as Rotary's standard skeleton code, which is as follows:

"The relation of employer and employee.

"The relation of craftsman with those from whom he makes purchases.

"The relation of the craftsman with his fellow craftsmen.

"The relation of the craftsman with professional men whose professions are interlocked with the craft.

the public generally, including the government.

"The relations of the craftsman with the purchasing public.

"The making and executing of contracts, with special reference to specifications.

"Wrong practices—commercial graft, and

"A concluding section requiring observance of the code for continued membership in the association.

"In conclusion, as an act of service to business and to mankind, is it not worth while to adopt a code of ethics and to work and to live up to it, thus insuring a larger measure of friendliness and good will among ourselves and the public and putting into practice in our daily routine the principles of the golden rule.

PRISON CONDITIONS TO BE FULLY DISCUSSED

At Raleigh Friday by State Board of Charities and Public Welfare.

Raleigh, N. C., April 24.—Decision as to whether an investigation will be made of charges by E. E. Dudding, president of the Prisoners Relief Society, Washington, that improper conditions exist at the State Prison, Raleigh, will be reached by the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare in its session here Friday, according to officials.

The meeting had been called by board officials to meet in Greensboro on Friday, but Governor Morrison announced last night that he wished to have the members meet with him in the executive offices at the capital. In addition to the Dudding matter the Governor said he had "many other things" he wished to discuss with the board.

While no authoritative statement has been given out on the subject, it has been reported in official circles that the board also will take up the question of making an investigation of conditions in county convict camps. Officials of the State Public Welfare Department, in Raleigh, when questioned as to this report, said they had no statement to give out until after the board meeting.

In refusing to investigate conditions at the State Prison, following the publication of Dudding's charges the prison board of directors issued a statement in which it was asserted an examination conducted by the department of public welfare, or any other agency or agents of the law would be welcomed.

"Dudding is not a citizen of this state," the board's statement read, "and ought not to be heard in interference with our governmental affairs; further his record is notoriously bad.
We are of the opinion that no investigation should be made for the further reason that each and all of us know his statement to be untrue and sensational."

The statement contained an assertion that seven prisoners, one of whom was a fifteen-year-old negro girl, had been whipped at the central prison, Raleigh, during the two years of uprilement George Pen's administration. No account was given of the number of whippings, if any, were administered in state camps.

Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, commissioner of public welfare, who had suggested to the chairman of the board of directors of the prison that an investigation be made of Dudding's allegations, was called into a special conference which the body held with Governor Morrison, at the latter's call.
No details of her remarks to the directors were given out.

Chairman W. A. Blair, of the board of charities and public welfare, also was in the conference. Mrs. Johnson stated the day after that if any action were taken by her department, decision would be reached at the quarterly meeting of the board in Greensboro. The session here was not called specifically for considering Dudding's charges, but is a regular meeting, she said. Mrs. Johnson further stated she had brought no charges against the state prison.

"It seems to us that those responsible for prison conditions in North Carolina," Mrs. Johnson wrote the prison board chairman, "cannot afford to disregard Dudding's charges any longer, especially when as a result of the conditions found to exist in Florida, the whole south is in the limelight in a more or less disgraceful way. We are writing, therefore, to suggest that the prison board of North Carolina make such investigation of Dudding's charges that they will either be proved or disproved to the satisfaction of the public."

Mrs. Johnson led an unsuccessful fight at the recent session of the general assembly to have flogging abolished in the state's prison system. She was publicly opposed by Superintendent Pou. "Prisoners are whipped in nearly every county for trivial offenses," a bulletin issued by the department of public welfare asserted, adding that "brutal beatings are not uncommon."

Dudding's allegations that "women are being flogged by guards as badly as in slavery times," and that other improper conditions and methods are practiced at the state prison, brought from Governor Morrison the statement he did not "believe a word of the charges." The governor stated Durding had written him an insulting letter a year ago, threatening to place his suggestions in the hands of the Ku Klux Klan to be carried out, if the executive did not comply with them.

AMNESIA VICTIM ON WAY TO BALTIMORE

Walter G. Farnsworth Doesn't Know His Name Nor From Whence He Came.

Charlotte, April 25.—Feeling positive that his name is Walter G. Farnsworth, but unable to get just where he came from, the victim of amnesia, who arrived here last Friday from Florida, from which state he has made his way by traveling on trains and in automobiles following the accident near Plant City, and who has been cared for by Charlotte citizens, left this city tonight for Baltimore, Md., where he hopes some one will recognize him.

He had, he stated before leaving, to visit the banks and hotels of Baltimore tomorrow, feeling sure that he will be identified. He is expected to arrive in Baltimore tomorrow morning.

X-ray specialists here took X-ray pictures of his head today, and found that there were no fractures or blood clots on the brain. It was at first thought that his amnesia resulted from a blow on the head, as when he came to himself near Plant City, Fla., he had only a gripful of soiled clothes, only $30 in money, and his watch and complained here of a pain in the back of his head.

His memory seems to be coming back stronger each day, and just before leaving Charlotte he addressed a letter to a lady here thanking her for a kindness, and involuntarily signed it "Walter G. Farnsworth."

Little doubt that "Jacko" Conroy will prove a handy pastime for the Braves. In exhibition games the ex-Harvard captain played well in the infield and hit for .400.

George Gibson, a National League for many years, is now in the American league. The former catcher and late manager of the Pirates is coaching Donie Bush's Senators.

West Point looks to have about the finest lacrosse outfit to be found among the college teams this year.

Mothers of Famous Men

The Mother of Millard Fillmore.

There seems to be something about the atmosphere of the old frontier that bred greatness in men, for so many America's finest products came from what was known in the seventh century as "The Far West." Also, it seemed to produce fine women. A great proportion of the mothers of these very same great men faced life on the frontier with a tremendous courage, and a notable example of this was Phoebe Millard Fillmore, mother of the thirteenth president of the United States, Millard Fillmore.

Although she was far from being a strong woman physically, Mrs. Fillmore faced the hardships of life on the frontier without fear or complaint.
She worked hard and tirelessly, and brought her children up in fear of God and love for their country. She was a woman of great good sense and a strong spirit of piety and patriotism.
She was kind and brave and loyal, and she never gave in to weaknesses.
She was a companion and friend to her children, who worshipped her, not because it was expected of them, but because of her tremendous power to create an atmosphere of love around her.

By nature she was sunny and cheerful, no matter what befell her. She made every effort to stave off the physical collapse which came upon her as a result of her too strenuous efforts when her children were young.
Finally, however, she could hold out no longer, and became an invalid.
She died before her son reached the crowning glory of his political career, but she lived long enough to be glad-dened by his eminent success in public life.

Weather Conditions Better in Cotton Growing States.

Washington, April 25.—The weekly weather and crop review of the United States department of agriculture issued today contained the following report on cotton and other southern crops:

"The first half of the week was too cool for best results in the eastern portion of the cotton belt, but much warmer weather prevailed during the latter part and there was less rainfall in most central and western cotton growing districts. In general, these conditions gave a rather marked improvement in the cotton growing states.

"The week brought more favorable weather for field work in Texas and Louisiana, although the soil continued too wet in many localities, particularly in central and southeastern Texas.
Chopping was in progress in southern Texas northward to Corpus Christi and the progress of the crop was reported as generally fair except in the wet areas. Planting made satisfactory progress in Oklahoma and excellent advance in Arkansas, extending to the northern portion of the latter state. Considerable cotton was planted in Mississippi, though mostly in soil too wet for best results, while planting was completed in some southern sections of Alabama."
