GEORGIANS STUDYING THE OLD NORTH STATE

North Carolina Has Attracted Attention Everywhere. (By the Associated Press.) Raleigh, N. C., May 2.—Hal M. Stanley, commissioner of commerce and labor, and Sam J. Slate, member of the industrial board, both of Georgia, have been spending several days in North Carolina studying the state's industrial progress in connection with a campaign for manufacturing enterprises to be conducted in Georgia.

The two Georgians spent Sunday and Monday in Raleigh, leaving here in company with M. L. Shipman, commissioner of labor and printing of North Carolina, after conferring with other state officials. Mr. Stanley and Mr. Slate were scheduled to be in High Point today where they planned to inspect manufacturing plants, hold conferences with manufacturers and city officials.

"North Carolina as a result of its great progress in recent years has attracted the attention of the entire country," said Mr. Stanley. "Georgia has been going forward at a faster pace this year and we believe the time is opportune for a concentrated program of progress."

"We are studying conditions in North Carolina and other states in order that we may be fully prepared for our work. Owing to different conditions and circumstances in Georgia, we may not be able to proceed along the same line North Carolina has followed, but we are sure the methods allowed here have been and will continue to be an inspiration to all southern states."

Mr. Stanley also is president of a newly organized association in his state—"Georgians Incorporated." The association was formed to obtain manufacturing industries for the state.

In discussing conditions in North Carolina, Mr. Slate declared he had watched progress here with "much satisfaction." He formerly resided in Virginia and a son is thoroughly familiar with North Carolina.

BIG CROWD PRESENT FOR MOUNT INQUIRY

Coroner's Jury Trying to Determine Way Young Student Met His Death Near Lake More Than Year Ago.

(By the Associated Press.) Chicago, May 2.—Students and other persons crowded the Evanston police station today for the coroner's inquest into the death of Leighton Mount, Northwestern University freshman, who disappeared after a class fight in 1921, and whose skeleton was found under a pier in Lake Michigan on Monday.

Coroner Wain planned to summon Dr. Walter D. Scott, president of the University, as a witness, it was said. Arthur Persinger, a sophomore in 1921, who during the Freshman Sophomore clash, was bound head downward to a piling in the lake, and who was reported nearly to have drowned, was present to testify, as was Carl Oldberg, a classmate of Mount, who is said to have been one of those who last saw him alive.

Magistrate Fails to Get Speeding Fine. Guilford Young Man Proves to Court That He Hadn't Been in Wayne.

Greensboro, April 30.—An attempt to force W. O. Carlyle, of this city, to pay $18, made by a Wayne county magistrate, failed when Judge W. F. Harding this morning passed favorably upon a writ for habeas corpus requested by the young man.

Carlyle was charged with speeding on a Wayne county road on April 15, the warrant being issued by Magistrate G. D. Sassoon, of Goldsboro, sworn out by J. H. Thomas, evidently a constable. However, Carlyle swore that neither he nor his car have ever been in Wayne county, there evidently being a mix-up in number. He was able to prove it.

It developed that Sheriff D. R. Stafford, of Guilford county, wrote to Magistrate Sassoon about the matter and received a letter in reply stating in substance that if Carlyle would pay $18 the matter would be dropped. However, Carlyle did not care to pay anything, hence the habeas corpus proceedings.

Judge Harding in announcing his decision flayed authorities who try to capitalize good roads by illegal levies upon motorists.

Home For Defective Kids at Asheville. Asheville, May 1.—Asheville has been selected as the location of a national school for the treatment of mentally deficient children, and at least $100,000 will be expended as an initial investment, with arrangements to care for 50 children, according to Dr. D. C. DeGroat, noted psychologist of Tampa, Fla., who has been in the city for the past few days looking over the field.

While Dr. DeGroat said that he is not ready to announce the names of his associates, Asheville has been definitely chosen as the site for the school, due to the ideal climate for the children handicapped in life's battle as a result of being deaf, dumb or mentally deficient.

ANNUAL FARM CENSUS.

Afforded a Seventy Per Cent. Degree of Completeness Last Year. The outstanding new addition to North Carolina's agricultural progress is the annual farm census. Although begun on a voluntary basis only five years ago, it afforded a 70 per cent. degree of completeness results last year and a better is expected this year.

The skepticism at first, by farmers and others interested, has given way to strong endorsement by county commissioners, co-operative marketing, farm bureaus, extension service, bankers and progressive farmers. The voluntary overwhelming results were reimbursable for the law being passed requiring this through the tax lists.

Those in charge of this, both locally and in the Department of Agriculture, claim that the present difficulty is one the part of the farmers themselves. Although we own one or more farms, the tax lists find that our confidential knowledge of this non-taxable farm work is sadly lacking.

It is definitely proven in all commercial industries that failure would be certain if planned as the farmers do their planting. Only an inventory of built can show what we are doing. The best seeders and losses may be found, especially if records of sales and purchases are maintained.

Mr. W. A. Felt, county tax supervisor, requests that each farm owner make a list of his own and his tenants crop acreages, etc., and carry with him when he lists his taxes. This will be for the separate Farm Census list which has nothing to do with taxes.

The Farm Census this year needs the following information of each farm owner, including his tenants: Acres owned, cultivated, lying out, improved pastures and timber, which are an essential basis for the crops. The acres of each crop grown even to the one-tenth acre field crops; each kind of hay to be harvested this year; the number of bearing fruit trees; tons of fertilizers and manure for this year; number of sows; ewe sheep; milk cows (milking age); work stock and hens are called for.

Even if our farmers did nothing more than prepare such a list each year for their own information, it would prove very valuable. To have it by counties will be more so, when used and protected as it is. If we are to succeed, this work is invaluable as an aid in economic production and marketing.

Help the listers by bringing prepared lists of the above information. CLUB WOMEN OF STATE MEET IN TWIN CITY.

NORTH CAROLINA RAPIDLY ADVANCES

All the Department Officials Have Set Themselves to the Task of Keeping Pace With Progress of Events.

MAKES AN ADDRESS TO LABOR OFFICIALS

Mentions Measures Adopted by Recent Legislature.—Labor Measures That Were and Were Not Enacted.

Richmond, Va., May 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—"North Carolina is blessed with able, forward-looking executives in its business life, and is rapidly progressing along all lines of industrial endeavor, and in governmental circles all departmental officials have set themselves to the task of keeping pace with the progress of events," M. L. Shipman, commissioner of labor and printing, North Carolina, declared today in addressing the tenth annual convention of Government Labor officials of the United States and Canada.

"Our department steered its barque through the legislative maelstrom of 1923 and reached harbor with a new bureau and an increased appropriation for the further development of a state system of employment in conjunction with the United States Employment Service," said Mr. Shipman.

"Seven branches of the Free Employment Service are now in operation, the seventh having been established as an emergency office in New Bern to assist in relieving acute unemployment conditions in that city following a disastrous fire last November.

"The machinery provided in the statute creating the Free Employment Bureau enables the department to assist in bringing the jobless man and the manless job together in a service which reaches all classes of employers and all classes of employees. Offices were established in the larger industrial centers of the state, and rendered invaluable service during the depression period following the conclusion of the World War."

"The aggregate number of applications for employment in the six big offices in operation during the year 1922 was 28,985, of whom 23,317 were males and 5,668 females. The total number of persons applied for by employers during this period was 24,720. The number of placements reported was 23,251.

"The new bureau created in the department by act of the General Assembly of 1923 will concern itself with the welfare of the deaf citizens of the state. Its activities are not to be confined to securing employment. It is proposed, in addition, to obtain facts, information and statistics touching the conditions in the life of our deaf population with a view to their general uplift. A capable deaf man has been placed at the head of the bureau and will devote his entire time to the development of the bureau along all feasible and proper lines.

"Another humanitarian measure enacted by the General Assembly of this year was a mother's aid bill, to be administered by the department of public welfare. An appropriation of $50,000,000 per year, to be matched by the counties, was made to aid worthy mothers who are deprived of the support of their husbands. This will enable widowed and dependent mothers to rear their children at home instead of surrendering them into other hands. This meritorious measure, and the act creating the bureau of the deaf, mark a distinct forward step in the state's plan for caring for its dependent children and aiding a class of unfortunate who deserve the special assistance of the state in overcoming physical handicaps.

"North Carolina has no new crop of labor laws to report," Mr. Shipman continued, "nor amendments to those already in operation. During the recent session of the General Assembly, labor appears to have contented itself with opposing the enactment of objectionable legislation, instead of attempting to secure the passage of bills for its future protection. The two workmen's compensation bill presented, met the usual fate. Capital and labor failed to agree, and the state is still without a workmen's compensation law.

"The General Assembly declined to pass a bill giving mortgages priority over laborers' liens, and rejected a proposition to amend the garnishment law. Neither did the legislature look with favor on the bill to reduce the work day for children in industry from sixty to fifty-five hours per week. The tendency to 'stay put' predominated, and a few reform measures of any character received serious consideration. Labor was modest in its demands. It expected little, and is nursing no special grievance on account of the result.

"Compared to the protection accorded labor in other states, the laws of our commonwealth relating to industrial subjects, indicate a lack of interest compared with that manifested throughout the North and West. This condition may partially be accounted for by the fact that labor leaders have been less active and employers generally more considerate in North Carolina than in some of the
