Brilliant Reception.

One of the most brilliant and elaborate parties of the season was the reception given Monday evening by Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Coltrane, Sr., at their home on South Union street, in compliment to their sister, Miss Elizabeth Coltrane, whose marriage to Mr. Robert Eldridge Jones, of Franklin, Virginia, will take place at Central Methodist Church this evening at six thirty o'clock.

The guests were met at the front door by Mrs. L. D. Coltrane, Jr., Mrs. E. T. Cannon, Mrs. J. A. Cannon and Mrs. G. L. Patterson and were received in the living room by Mr. and Mrs. Coltrane, Miss Coltrane and Mr. Jones, Miss Jenn Coltrane and Mr. D. B. Coltrane, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cannon, Miss Cora Vaughn and Mr. Franklin Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dusch, Mrs. D. A. Garrison and Mr. C. C. Vaughn III, and Miss Alice Brown and Mr. Burks Withers.

The living room and hall were beautifully decorated with vases and bowls holding sweet peas and larkspur. Miss Adele Pemberton directed the guests from the receiving line to the dining room and receiving at the dining room doors were Mrs. G. B. Lewis and Mrs. D. L. Bost. Assisting in the dining room were Mrs. A. G. Odell, Mrs. Grace Brown, Mrs. V. A. Means and Mrs. R. P. Gibson.

The dining table was covered with a fluted cloth and the centerpiece was a silver bowl filled with snapdragons in the pastel shades. Pink tulle was suspended from the chandelier to the corners of the table and was held in place by tulle butterflies. Silver candlesticks at each end of the table held lighted tapers and silver dishes held confectios. On the porch the guests were received by Misses Nell Herring and Mary Pemberton, and here they were served punch from a bowl that nestled in a bed of Dorothy Perkins roses. Misses Margaret Morris, Marjann Coltrane, Frances Ridenhour and Cottrell Sherrill served.

When the guests had departed the receiving line and those assisting in serving assembled in the dining room, where much merriment was created by the drawing for the prizes hidden in the bride's cake. The following toast to Miss Coltrane and Miss Brown was given by Mrs. Coltrane:
To a girl with Midnight eyes
This toast I give
We love this girl and we call
Her "Lib."
Let's drink to her health
And her love beyond measure
To her heart's dearest treasure
My friends she makes
"No Bones"
Of lavishing all this
On Jones.

And here's to sweet Alice
Of the grey blue eyes
Drink deep to the love
That within them lies
Would you know her secret?
Then I bid you come hither
She has given her heart
Where love never "Withers."
Now friends, before your reason has flown
Let's drink to the only manly perfection known.
Let us hope for the best
But confess to the shivers
When we read of the bride-Jones
And Brown-Withers.

The toast to Miss Coltrane was responded to by Mrs. D. A. Garrison and the toast to Miss Brown was responded to by Mrs. M. L. Cannon.

Reports from Atlanta Monday stated that the condition of Mrs. Jacob Stirewalt, who has been seriously ill there for several days, is greatly improved. Mr. Stirewalt, who has been in Atlanta since last week, expects to return to his home here during the week if Mrs. Stirewalt continues to improve.

Two Weddings Here This Evening.
Two weddings of interest not only to North Carolina society but to Virginia society as well, will take place in Concord this evening.

At 6:30 o'clock Miss Elizabeth Coltrane will become the bride of Mr. Robert E. Jones, of Franklin, Va., and at 8:30 o'clock Miss Alice Brown will become the bride of Mr. Burks Withers, of Norfolk, Va.

Miss Coltrane and Mr. Jones will be married in Central Methodist Church, by the pastor, Rev. W. A. Jenkins, who will be assisted by Rev. E. K. McLarty, of High Point.

Mrs. Victor B. Means, of Concord, will render the bridal music; and before the ceremony, Mrs. R. U. Rawls, of Franklin, Va., will sing two solos, "Because," by Guy D'Harleot, and "To You," by Olney Speaks.

The bride's attendants will be two dames of honor, her sisters, Mrs. Charles A. Cannon, of Concord, and Mrs. Frank Dusch, of Norfolk, Va. It is an interesting coincidence that Miss Coltrane's wedding day is that of both her sisters, Mrs. Cannon and Mrs. Dusch.

Mr. R. P. Rawls, of Franklin, Va., will accompany Mr. Jones as best man. He is an uncle of the bridegroom. The groomsmen will be: Mr. Frank Dusch, of Norfolk, Va., Mr. Charles A. Cannon, of Concord, Mr. C. C. Vaughn, III, of Franklin, Va., and Mr. Frank Edwards, of Franklin, Va.

Master William Cannon will be ring-bearer; Miss Miriam Winslow Cannon flower girl and Master C. A. Cannon, Jr., train bearer.

Miss Coltrane will be given in marriage by her father, Mr. Daniel Branson Coltrane.

Following the ceremony Mr. Coltrane will give a reception at his home, 891 North Union street for the bridal party.

The wedding of Miss Brown and Mr. Withers will take place in All Saints Episcopal Church, the rector, Rev. T. N. Lawrence, to officiate.

Mrs. John Reid will preside at the organ, and prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Robert Kyle Smith, of Salisbury, will sing "O Perfect Love."

Acting as ushers will be: Mr. Earl Brown, Jr., Mr. Sterling Brown, of Concord, Mr. Edward Withers, of Norfolk, Va., and Mr. Thornton Withers, of Gastonia.

Mrs. Martin L. Cannon, sister of the bride, will be her only attendant. Mr. Penn Withers, of Norfolk, Va., will accompany Mr. Withers as best man.

Miss Brown will be given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Earl Brown.

The bride's three pretty little nieces, all of whom are named for her mother, will be flower girls. These are Miss Mary Frances Barnhardt and Miss Frances Ann Cannon, of Concord, and Miss Frances Martha Davis, of Winstonsboro, S. C.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Cannon will be hosts at a brilliant ball at the Merchants and Manufacturers Club club for the bride and groom and their attendants. Five hundred guests have been invited. Music will be furnished by the celebrated Mark Goff orchestra, of Charlotte.

Chicken Stew Tonight.

The Luther League of St. James Lutheran Church will give a chicken stew tonight in honor of its new members, and its girls and boys recently returned from college. All of the members are asked to meet at the church at 6:15 o'clock.

Mr. T. T. Smith is spending today in Rock Hill, attending the commencement exercises of Winthrop College, where his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Smith, is a member of the graduating class.

Services at Tucker's Chapel.

There will be service at Tucker's Chapel Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock as usual. Sunday school at two o'clock. Rev. W. F. Steamy, of Charlotte, has come to see Rev. Mr. Blackwelder and they have decided to run services on the premises of the conference will be over in a few days and we are going to have a revival meeting. All members are urged to be present Sunday. The public is cordially invited to attend.

REV. HENRY T. BLACKWELDER,
Pastor.

DO YOU WONDER?

Asks This Lady, "That I'm a Believer in Cardui?"—Had Been So Weak She Had to Go to Bed.

Osawatimie, Kans.—Mrs. E. E. Keast, formerly of Illinois, residing here, says: "We moved to this state eleven years ago, and I had good health for a long while; and then some year or so ago I had a bad sick spell."

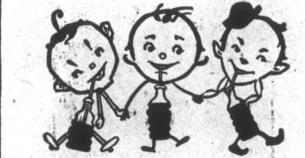

"I got so weak I couldn't go. I couldn't stand on my feet at all. I had to go to bed. I suffered a great deal. I was so nervous I felt I couldn't live. I tried medicines, and everything; had the best of attention, yet I wasn't able to get up. I lay for three months, not able to do anything."

"My husband is a bill poster and has circulars distributed. One day there came to be a Ladies Birthday Almanac among his circulars. I read it, and told some of the family to get me a bottle of Cardui."

"I quit all other medicines and took it (Cardui) faithfully, and two weeks from the time I began to take Cardui I was out of bed—better than for months."

"I kept it up and continued to improve until I was a well woman."

"Do you wonder that I am a believer in Cardui? I certainly am. And I am sure there is no better tonic made for women than Cardui." NC-151

Clever Police Dog Quickly Discovers Stowaways on S. S. President Roosevelt

Doland, the Terror of Stowaways

New York, June 5.—Since the war, employment conditions in various countries of Europe have caused a big influx of immigrants to the United States in search of remunerative work. Though the number who have come here has been great, the number who cannot come, because of the lack of steamship fare has been much greater. This has been no deterrent in hundreds of instances, however, and as a result steamship companies have found the number of stowaways they bring from European ports steadily increasing. Extra guards on ships in port and increased vigilance has resulted of late in the preventing of stowaways from getting aboard ships bound for this port to a great extent, but as yet the efforts of would-be free citizens to smuggle themselves aboard and remain hidden for days, continues to thrive.

The United States Line captains and their staffs have been very successful in ferreting out stowaways, both at sea and in port, having made a study of the stowaway and his habits, searching squads know just where to look for those who desire to make the trip without the trouble of paying passage or obtaining passports, and consequently have reduced the number of men intent on getting to America without observing the usual formalities to the minimum.

On board the President Roosevelt there is one sleuth who can find stowaways, no matter how clever they are, when everyone else has exhausted themselves without avail. This clever individual is "Roland," a police dog owned by Chief Steward Bordes, which has been trained to distinguish those who rightfully belong aboard the President Roosevelt and those who do not.

Roland knows all the executive staff of the big liner well, and before the vessel sails from New York or Bremen is made acquainted with any new members of the crew who are signed on. The dog is taken into the officers' mess when the crew are signing the articles, and with eyes and nose "registers" their identity on his keen canine brain.

On sailing day Roland is stationed at the first cabin gangplank and looks over all the passengers coming on board. As soon as the vessel leaves her pier he is busy in the third class quarters, making himself acquainted with every man, woman and child there. Then, having learned who is entitled to travel either as a member of the crew or as a passenger, Roland starts his read work.

Accompanied by the President Roosevelt's Master-at-Arms, he visits all quarters of the liner from forecastle to stern, the engine room, the boat deck and the cargo hold. It is then that the dog's wonderful intellect comes into play. The presence in any part of the ship of any person whom he has not seen before is immediately noticed by the dog and a bristling of the fur about his neck indicates the fact. If the person so pointed out proves by chance to be one that has purchased passage, but who might have been overlooked in Roland's inspection, everything is OK, but this seldom happens.

Often in the third cabin Roland has found some man who has hidden away a dog or so before the vessel sailed and, who once the President Roosevelt is at sea has mixed with the passengers, hoping to be overlooked. Roland's recognition of the presence of such individuals is very prompt and resulted in an involuntary worker being added to the ship's crew.

From life boats and cargo holds, cabins supposed to be unoccupied, and linen closets, Roland routes out the non-paying "guest," and when he shows an inclination to cause hunting, the ship's officers are well convinced that all stowaways have been discovered.

No successful has the clever dog been in carrying out his duties that other dogs, trained as he is, may be placed aboard all the vessels of the United States Lines. When Roland has completed his official duties aboard the President Roosevelt he mingles with the cabin passengers and speedily establishes himself in their affections. Those who see the big dog playing with some child on deck find it hard to believe that Roland is the clever detective whose reputation is causing stowaways to give the President Roosevelt a wide berth.
