

SOCIAL & PERSONAL

Luncheon Given by Miss Coltrane.
Miss Jenn Coltrane was the charming hostess Thursday to a luncheon given prominent members of the D. A. R. Among the guests was Mrs. J. P. Caldwell, of the Charlotte Observer, who published the following account in this morning's paper:
At her beautiful home in Concord, Miss Jenn Coltrane yesterday extended to a number of prominent members of the Daughters of the American Revolution hospitality that was at once beautiful and charming. The personnel of the guests including many of the highest officers of the Daughters of the American Revolution in the state, all personal friends of Miss Coltrane, and ardent admirers of her and her record in Washington as historian general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; also her work in her own state—official and unofficial—for the cause which is one of supreme interest to thousands of patriotic women of the United States.
The Coltrane home is beautiful in setting, in furnishing, the perfection of taste and elegance. The house is in a mass of flora, wonderful magnolia trees and banks of blooms that harmonize in all their beauty of tone and color. Every detail of the lovely home proclaims beautiful taste and magic touch of the beautiful and charming woman, who is the lady of the manor.
Miss Coltrane met her guests yesterday in a stunning sport costume of white dundee crepe which was wondrously becoming, accentuating her beauty and charm.
The lovely home was fragrant with beautiful flowers and in every point of elegance the exquisite taste, the charming mind of the hostess was pronounced.
An elaborate course dinner was beautifully served, at a table of rich old mahogany, with exquisite mats, and silver candlesticks holding pink candles, the centerpiece being a mound of lovely blooms running the gamut of red-purple tones.
Miss Coltrane graced one end of the table, her visa-vis, a woman beloved and honored by the D. A. R. of North Carolina as none other is—Mrs. W. N. Reynolds, former vice president general from North Carolina.
Other guests were Mrs. Edwin Gregory, of Salisbury, former vice president general from North Carolina; also one of the state's most beautiful and brilliant women; Mrs. John Van Landingham, of Charlotte, former vice president general from North Carolina; Miss Anna Blair, of Monroe, state historian of North Carolina; D. A. R.; Mrs. Clay Williams, of Winston-Salem, regent of Joseph Winston chapter of Winston-Salem; Miss Cordelia White Phifer, of Charlotte, former state historian; Mrs. R. L. Mauney, of Salisbury, vice state regent; Mrs. of Salisbury, vice state regent; Mrs. Robert S. Young, regent of the Cabarrus Black Boys chapter, of Concord; Mrs. Lafta C. Johnston, former regent of Mecklenburg chapter; Mrs. Mattie Stewart, present regent of Liberty Hall chapter, and Mrs. J. P. Caldwell, member of Mecklenburg chapter.
Others included in Miss Coltrane's invitation were Mrs. E. L. Kessler, former regent of Mecklenburg chapter, and Mrs. W. O. Nisbet, former regent of Liberty Hall chapter.
Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Gregory were house guests of Miss Coltrane.
Many phases of the national and state work of the D. A. R. were interestingly discussed, new ideas being advanced, and new interest and loyalty to the cause pledged.
The Charlotte party, which also included Miss Blair, returned to the city about 4 o'clock.

"SOME WILD OATS"
To Be Shown at the Pastime Theatre July 25 and 26.
"Some Wild Oats" is coming to the Pastime Theatre, starting July 25, for a limited period. It will be the only showing of this film in this town.
This is a picture which, for daring and plain talking, has seldom been equalled, especially when it is considered that the delicate subject of sex hygiene is handled in so sympathetic and inoffensive a way as to remove all objection from even the prudest, and to win the commendation of health officials all over the United States.
"Some Wild Oats" is a film that should be seen by everybody. It is a film that bares the dangers and snares that beset young men and young women who stand on the threshold of life, with everything to learn and no experience to guide them.
The picture has an all-star cast, featuring William Jefferson. While the picture is entertaining and instructive in a way, yet it is called the most daring and sensational motion picture yet attempted.
The picture deals with the miserable, and often fatal, effects resulting from a chance acquaintance of men and women on the streets of New York City, or any other big city, and drives home its lessons by showing the adventures of a green farm boy who comes to New York to take his last fling before joining the navy. A friend, who has trodden the primrose path before him and partaken of the bitter fruits, saves him from any real harm by a ruse—but that is another story that the film must tell itself. Many scenes of New York life are shown, including widely known dance halls, resorts and cabarets along Broadway.
Owing to the delicate nature of the subject and the plain speaking in the sub-titles, it has been thought best to segregate the audiences.

Warning!
On account of the delicate subject and scenes, men and women will not be admitted together to see this picture.
