Miss Lippard Entertains

Miss Lippard Entertains.

A most elaborate affair was the one given Monday evening by Miss Agnes Lippard when she entertained a number of her friends on a straw-ride followed by a delightful party.

The crowd left town about 7:30 o'clock and motored to Landis. They returned about nine o'clock to Miss Lippard's home on Ann street. Upon the party's return delicious ice and fruit courses were served in the yard, which was beautifully decorated with Japanese lanterns. Following the refreshments, numerous games were played. Those enjoying Miss Lippard's hospitality were:

Misses Margie Elliott, Ruth Philips, Grace and Mary Hidenhour, Carrie and Myrtie Petrea, Nora Ellen Lippard, Era Hillard Linker and Bertha Roberts: Messrs, Bascom Philips, Elmer Elliot, Eugene Robinson, Ray and Ben Beaver, James Ridenhour, and Fisher Miller.

Big Plenic Thursday Night.
Epworth Leaguers of Concord, Mt. Olivet and Kannapolis will stage their second annual pienic at Mt. Olivet Churchyard Thursday night of this week. The pienic last year was held at the Jackson Training School and was attended by hundreds of young peoeple.

Mt. Olivet is ideally located for this purpose. The home of the Mt. Olivet chapter, one of the largest in this section, and midway between the towns of Concord and Kannapolis. It is expected that one of the biggest crowds of the summer will be there.

In order that all the people wishing to attend may have ample time to get there, supper will not be served till 7:30 o'clock. However, it is supposed that many will arrive before that hour.

Rev. J. Frank Armstrong, president of the Association of Epworth Leaguers, is enthusiastic over the prospect for a great occasion and urges the fair sex to bulge the baskets with eatables.

WANTS NORTH CAROLINA ADVERTISED TO COUNTRY

WANTS NORTH CAROLINA
ADVERTISED TO COUNTRY
People of State Should Be Taught First and Then Rest of the Country.
Asheville, N. C., July 30.—"It would seem that the best way to acquaint North Carolinans with the state would be through the method of visual education," declared Sims Jamieson, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Raleigh, Chairman of the Advertising Committee of the North Carolina Association of Commercial Secretaries, in session here.
The committee was appointed to study the best method of advertising North Carolina within and without the state,
"The authority for this statement," continued Mr. Jamieson, "is based upon the fact that many advanced educators are equipping educational institutions in both rural and urban communities with projecting machines and instructors everywhere are illustrating and supplement, ing their lectures with movies.

"We all know that in the department of education this state operates a section of visual education. Through the director of this department projection machines will go into every school in the state which can manage to pay for one.
This director is an expert, not only does he furnish films for the schools, but he makes them. Between this date and January 2, he will make 25,000 feet of film of North Carolina. He will screen growing crops, waterways, industries;
highways, retail and wholesale districts, historic spots, in fact, everything in our state which we believe to be of more state in the contract of the contracts.

"They will be the property of the state of the contract of the ntire state

"They will be the property of the State Department of education. If the State Department of education. If the Secretaries will co-operate with this department and the public schools, movies of each town will be made available for the whole state and brought to each town for the enjoyment and edification of citizens and our membership. I believe that after a few months of showing North Carolina, in movies, at our meetings, and in our schools, to our people, they in turn will want to tell the world and will join heartly in the expense of the telling."

The second part of Mr. Lawiesen,

The second part of Mr. Jamieson's re-port dealt with commercial advertising

The second part of Mr. Jamieson's report dealt with commercial advertising of the state.

"There has been placed here for your observation," he said, "specimens not of advertising context exactly, but rather, types of advertising used by firms who have a vision of the real import of a national advertising campaign and are presenting it graphically to the nation, "A thorough knowledge of our great state with all of its limitless resources and its potential wealth, given to a real advertising expert," could be presented with such power that would burn the consciousness of the nation. It could start a stream of gold and people to us which would surpass our wildest dreams, our waste lands would be populated, our goads wind through thriving and large villages, the standard of our civilization elevated and a supreme commonwealth result.

"This campaign should be projected through the properties."

"The Rolling."

"The Rolling of Perfect Playground in North Carolina."

"The Boulevard of North Carolina.
"North Carolina, the Titian of the South.

"North Carolina is 99 per cent. American.

"This campaign should be financed by the whole state, Chambers of Commerce, Merchants Associations, Civic Clubs, Municipalities and County Governments, contributing. An equitable financial plan should be evolved through which each community should participate to the extent of its resources and benefits. The advertisement should appear monthly and the whole operation should be conducted in a professional manner. It should be planned and executed in a carefully designed campaign bringing maximum results to minimum expense."

He next took up the type of advertising which should be developed to reach the "reader and the thinker."

"To this class of folks we should tell the "Tales of Tarheelia" and place this piece of literature where it should be of easy access. Perhags a well edited magazine maintained by advertisers throughout the state should be the story telling medium. Our crops, our fruits, our roads, our fish, our timber, our pottery, our hills, our history, our schools, our cotton, our tobacco.

"This story of our progress, our resources, the wealth of our products, the condition of our people will make more lasting impressions by an honest telling. "The "Tales of Tarheelia' should not be an empty dream but a thriving, throbbing, living instrument, to tell an expectant nation the glory of our com-

President's Illness, However, Reported to Have Responded to Careful Treatment and Complete Rest.

Presidential headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, July 30.—President Harding's condition became grave tonight and an announcement was made to that effect after a consultation by physicians in attendance upon the chief executive.

The ph physicians declared in a state-

The physicians declared in a statement that "definite central patches of broncho-pneumonia had developed in the right lung as indicated clinically and by the X-ray."

The development of pneumonia was the one thing which Brigadier General Sawyer, the President's personal physician, had said less than two hours earlier that he feared almost above all else, as a complication.

The bulletin, issued at 9:10 a. m. (Pasific time), read as follows:

"Definite central patches of broncho-oneumona in the right lung, as indicated clinically and by the X-ray.

"Nourishment is being taken regular-y and the adbominal symptoms are less

"(Signed) C. E. Sawyer, M. D.; Ray Lyman Wilbur, M. D.; C. M. Cooper, M. D.; J. T. Booie, M.; D.; Hubert Work, M. D."

Soon after the issuance of the bulledin, Lieutenant Commander Boone went out for a walk, which he said might well-be interpreted as meaning that no crisis was immediately expected.

Announcement was made that there would be no further consultations or bulletins issued during the night unless there was a decided change in the condition of the chief executive.

Secretary Work, one of the consulting physicians, left the President's room plainly disturbed by the change in the President's condition. He was joined by Secretary Hoover and with one of the physicians, Dr, Ray Lyman Wilbur, went to another floor of the hotel to talk over the situation.
