Death Followed Ilmess of Several Weeks,—Funeral Services Held This After noon.

Mrs. M. J. Johnson, well known woman of this county and wife of a prome nent farmer, died has night at her home her farmer, died has night at her home her farmer, died inst night at her home himself with her farmer her After the toast Dixie was started upand the light of the countenance of this hoary-veteran lighted up as he too joined in the military song while his step

Short talks were made by Dr. J. E.
Smoot and Mr. F. C. Niblock, who journeyed thither to mingle their laughter and tears with many that were known of yore. Dr. Smoot, for the assembly, assured the aged couple that their lives lived in the quietude of the hills while their footsteps followed the path that leads to God, had not been lived in vain;
but that their sons and daughters had gone forth to carry on and today rise up

Back Creek Home Coming.

For the benefit of those who wish to attend the home coming at Back Creek, notice of which was in The Tribune some time ago, the national highway is closed between Harrisburg and Back Creek Church and leaving Concord they should go the old Salisbury, Concord and Charlotte road near the Mecklenburg County Home, thence to the national bighway via Newell to Back Creek. Also the Rocky River road to A. B. Christenbury's place, following sand clay road to Back Creek.

leads to God, had not been lived in vain; but that their sons and daughters had gone forth to carry on and today rise up to call them blessed. He then dwelf upon hallowed memories and friendships and vicissitudes of life and, in the realization of the lowering of the sands in the hourglass, of time, assured the old and young that "the best is just ahead."

Mr. Niblock dwele beautifully upon the spirit of national devotion in this sad hour of our common fallen President and, the spirit of friendliness and neighborthiess. "Old time" muster was sung on the lawn and we reluctantly left this scene of pleasure.

"Such are some of the recollections which link the memories of a man who has lived his half century, to those of the preceding age, and which serve to remind him how one generation of men after another break and disappear on the shores of the eternal world, as wave after wave breaks in foam upon the beach, when storms are rising, and the grand swell sets in heavily from the sea."
