agricultural editor for the State College and Department of Agriculture, spent last week in Piedmont North Carolina making photographs of farm scenes for the purposes of showing the various lines of agricultural work being promoted and developed by workers of the State College and Agricultural Department.

In a statement issued Thursday, Mr. Jeter said that an average of about 40 photographs was taken each day of the five days' trip, and farming operations in Alamance, Rowan, Iredell, Catawba and Cleveland counties were used as subjects. Special attention was devoted to the progress being made by the farmers in these counties, and live stock breeding, food and forage crop production, home beautification, pasture development, boll weevil control and club work.

Some of the fine Jersey and Goursey herds of cattle were photographed in each of the five counties. Farm flocks and the improved methods of handling poultry were also used as objects for the camera. It is expected that the 20 or more photographs taken in these five counties will be used in the various agricultural publications issued by the Extension Division and be distributed by the United States Department of Agriculture, at Washington. The photographs will not be available for about four weeks, said Mr. Jeter.

Arrangements probably will be made, Mr. Jeter said, to have Mr. Ackerman return to North Carolina at some time in the future to take photographs of agricultural subjects in the western and eastern section of the state. North Carolina farming should receive wide advertising from this work, he continued.

BUSINESS BLOCKED BY LACK OF ADVERTISING

Stores, Banks and Other Business Enterprises Miss Contact With Public—No Substitute For "Ads."

New York, Sept. 21.—Continued lack of advertising space in New York's newspapers will be reflected in all branches of finance, commerce and industry, in the opinion of business executives who have observed the effect of the walkout.

In competent financial quarters today the fear was expressed that unemployment might result from longer crippling of the daily liaison between merchants and buyers.

Department store heads, even those catering to permanent customers, said the inability to promote sales through the newspaper columns was proving a serious handicap at the opening of the fall season. And Wall Street, always dubious as to the real value of the small amount of space it uses in the dailies, was convinced its clients had learned to depend on newspaper advertising for this information on financial offerings.

Several big offerings of bonds, which were to be put out this week, were postponed because of lack of advertising space.

Stores depending on special advertising were more seriously affected. Nearly all the leading department stores began printing circulars for distribution among persons entering their establishment and for their mailing lists.

Their executives, however, found the handbills lacked anything like the pulling power of space in the newspapers. Bernard P. Gimbel, vice president of Gimbel Brothers, Inc., was quoted in published statements as saying he thought the strike would be injurious to both large and small stores.

"We depend upon newspaper advertising for much of our selling power," he added. "It is the newspaper advertising, combined with the standing of the store doing the advertising, which makes the buyer realize his need of some article which otherwise he might have neglected to purchase."

Others are quoted as follows: Harold W. Bonwit, secretary of Bonwit, Teller and Company: "I have no doubt that if the strike lasts much longer we will feel a huge effect. Newspaper advertising is doubtless the most valuable advertising in the world, and as the retail stores are deprived of this medium they will feel the loss more and more. There has been a slight falling off of sales in our store. The discontinuance of full news about events in this country and abroad has a most disturbing effect on the minds of customers, and causes uncertainty and unrest, which is reflected in their buying."

P. A. Conn, vice president Saks and Company: "The loss of newspaper advertising is especially important at the beginning of the season, as now, when the stores are introducing their new styles and paving the way of the new season."

James McGrover and Company: "Newspaper advertising is the corner post of sales promotions and we hope the newspapers will return to normal soon."

Hearn W. Street, one of the executives of Blair and Company, a leading Wall Street banking house: "Investment bankers were not certain until the pressman's strike began that newspaper advertising played a big part in their business. We know now what invaluable service the newspapers render us. It is next to impossible to put over a big bond issue without advertising. Our clients expect advertising, and will not bother to read circulars."

Southern Deacons Regular Dividends. New York, Sept. 20.—Directors of the Southern Railway company today declared the regular semi-annual dividend of $2.50 on the preferred stock but took no action on the common. While official comment was withheld, directors' dividend reports that minority stockholders were organizing to demand a resumption of dividends on the common stock on the theory that it was justified by current earnings, adding that the subject had not even been discussed. Net earnings of the road after taxes, in the first seven months of this year totalled $17,450,001, compared with $12,450,000 in the corresponding period of 1922.
