BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

CURSE or BLESSING, WHICH?
He that witheth corn, the people shall curse him; but blessing shall be upon the head of him that seldeth it.
-Proverbs 11:26.

THE CABARRUS FAIR.

The Hickory Record says:
The Cabarrus county fair, with a $20,000 race track and large purse, boasted an attendance on the first day of 15,000 people. That shows what horse-racing will do for a fair. Hickory ought to put in a standard track and join the procession.

THE PRESIDENT AND PROHIBITION.

It was not necessary for President Coolidge to make public utterance as to his stand on prohibition enforcement. Mr. Coolidge is President of the United States. Therefore he is a law-abiding citizen and regardless of whether or not he thinks it is all right for a man to take a drink he knows that it is right for the dry laws to be enforced so long as they are on the law books.

Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, is actively engaged now in the enforcement of the dry laws, also. He has started an active campaign in Pennsylvania, and his actions have been so thoroughly approved by anti-saloon league members and other persons who favor prohibition that William Jennings Bryan, one of the leading Democrats in the United States, recently made the statement that he "would like to swap Governor Smith, of New York, a Democrat, for Governor Pinchot, a Republican."

That football is increasing all the time in interest in North Carolina is evidenced by the tremendous crowd that witnessed the State-Carolina game Thursday. More than 12,000 persons witnessed the game.

and there were others who were unable to get into the grounds. Athletics in colleges is getting cleaner each year, and this fact has much to do with the increasing interest in all forms of college athletics.

SINK 10,000-TON BOX 107 FEET MARK IN TUBE

Engineering Feat. Doubled by Many of World's Experts, Accomplished in Hudson Vehicular Tunnel.
The engineers of the New York and New Jersey vehicular tunnel between Canal street, Manhattan, and Jersey City were jubilant last night over an engineering triumph that has engaged the attention of sub-sequence experts around the world for many months.

Risky Feat Accomplished.

The engineers have battled at times with wind, wave and tide, and more than once received scares as the big steel box showed signs of tipping out of line, but when the measurements were taken last night they forgot all of their previous anxiety when they realized that one of the riskiest objectives of the project had been attained. A little job will have to be done later when a twin caisson is sunk immediately to the south of the first one.

The worry of the engineers is over for the time being, but not so with the "sand hogs" who are at work on the bottom of the caisson 107 feet below high water and under a steel floor of the caisson. These, principally West Indian negroes, are now working under an air pressure of forty-two pounds, and the working shift has been shortened to two hours for a day's work—two shifts of one hour on with four hours off constituting the working day.

With a bonus added, the sand hogs are earning about $10 a day, but they don't like what they are doing just at present for the reason that in addition to the high air pressure they are compelled to work in a temperature of from 140 to 150 degrees Fahrenheit. This heat, with the hot coffee the physicians insist upon their drinking in order that the pores of the skin shall be kept open, make even a two-hour day seem plenty long enough.

Compared to skyscraper.
The excessive high temperature is an account of the heated concrete and bituminous materials used in the floor of the caisson.

The sinking of that caisson was like the setting of a ten-story building, 50x30 at the base and 107 feet high, through eighty feet of silt and putting it on its foundation with such exactness that it takes the finest instruments to determine that it is one-quarter of an inch further to one side than the plans call for," said one of the engineers in Chief Engineer Holland's office yesterday.

Mr. Holland said that the progress on the construction was up to schedule. September was a record breaker in construction. On the north tunnel on the New York side 257, 1-2 feet of tunnel was built. On contract No. 3, running from the Manhattan side 600 feet into the North River, 2,350 feet out of 4,025 feet are completed. In the south tunnel on the New York side the workmen are busy in solid rock, and progress is slow.

DINNER STORIES

The mother of twins found them fighting furiously. Willie, the larger twin, was on top.
"Why Willie, how dare you strike your brother like that?" cried the mother taking the boy by the ear and pulling him off.

"I had a good right to hit him," answered Willie.
"Who do you mean?" she asked.
"Who?" said Willie, with righteous air, "didn't I let him use my baseball bat all last Saturday on condition that he'd say my prayers for me all this week? And here I've just found out that he skipped three days."

Father (to Sammy, coming home in a bedraggled condition): Great Scott! How you look!
Sammy: Yes, Pa, I fell in a mud hole.
Father: What! and with your new pants on?
Sammy: Yes, I didn't have time to take them off.

A certain town had bought a new fire engine, and the superintendent, after gathering all his men together, suggested that an appropriate motto should be placed over the station.
The thing was debated at some length and several suggestions were made. Finally one man rose and said:
"You act as if it were a total loss. You never see the good in things."
"Well, what good is there in this?"
"Why, it tickled the baby so. He laughed right out loud when it went bang!"

There had been a blowout, and the father of the family was perspiring and profanely changing tires.
"I don't see why you have to talk that way," said his wife reproachfully.
"You act as if it were a total loss. You never see the good in things."
"Well, what good is there in this?"
"Why, it tickled the baby so. He laughed right out loud when it went bang!"

The young man arrived at the party and made his way to the hostess, greeting her and apologizing for his lateness.
"Awfully glad to see you, Mr. Jones," said the hostess. "So good of you to come. But where is your brother?"
"He was unable to come. You see, we are busy just now that it was impossible for both of us to get away, and so we tossed up to see which of us should come."

"How nice! And you won?"
"No," replied the young man absently. "I lost!"

The Kiss That Counted.
"I kissed her in the moonlight.
I kissed her in the dark.
I kissed her in the parlor.
I kissed her in the park.
I fooled the other fellow.
I left him in the lurch.
I kissed her almost everywhere.
But he kissed her in the church."

"Doesn't that mule ever kick you, Sam?"
"No, sub, he ain't yet," answered Mistuh Johnsing, "but frequently he kicks de place where Ah recently was."
"Hello Al."
