(Hy the Associated Press.)

Washington, Nov. 15.—Greeting delegates to the annual convention here of the Southern Medical Association, President Coolidge in a brief address today told the physicians that they and members of their profession were rendering a service that renches beyond any trade or occupation. "It is often one of the greatest charities in the world," the President said in an address delivered from the South portice of the White Horse. "You are members of a learned profession engaged in a public service, for the public health lies at the foundation, the very foundation of all human welfare. Unless that is conserved and protected there is very little use in any other activity for the promotion of public welfare. In practicing your profession you not only have opportunity to advise patients as to health, but to advise in other activities and assist in lifting them up to a standard of good citizeushilp."
