God's Commended Love

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D. Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—But God commendeth His love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners Christ died for us.—Rom. 5:8.

Love, all by itself is priceless. God's love, just that, naked and alone, who can tell how compelling! But what shall be said of his love commended to us? We have another word frequently used in the English language when we wish to convey the idea of the greater acceptability of a gift or a person, it is the word "re-commend." And the use of this word implies an effort to reduce to the last fraction or else to entirely eliminate doubt as to the worth of the thing or the person considered. Allowing that they were commendable, now we recommend them. And now, God's love is upon us and he has commended it.

When the mother appeared before the judge to request that her son's penalty of a life-term imprisonment might instead be hers so that the boy might go free at the price of her suffering, that request commended her mother-love. There was the love, and there was added the act that said: "Here is an exhibition of my love." Similarly, but with infinite range of meaning, God commendeth His love toward us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us. There had been the holy out-going of God's heart but the death of our Lord Jesus exhibited and urged it upon the attention of sinful man. Not before the Cross could the words have been received so absolutely,

O Love, that will not let me go. It is as if, up to Calvary's Cross God called, God sought, God pleaded, but when the cry went forth from the Cross, "It is finished," God claimed. Have you considered those words "made manifest" and "the appearing" in the first chapter of the second epistle to Timothy? There we are told that before the ages began God's purpose and grace were in Christ Jesus; but with His blessed mission on earth they were "made manifest" and so made because of His "appearing." This fact dates for us a new world in which to live. For, there was love talking, love walking, love sighing, love weeping, love thirsting, love groaning, love tasting death for us—suffering love, beseeching redeeming love, exhibited before the gaze of sinners. Obscurity then gave way to manifestation. As he said: "I am come a light into the world." Never thereafter may sinful man make the plea that love (the love of God) is not manifestly apparent.

In part, it may be due, too, to the crowding forces of affliction and trial that God has planned to so enlarge the manifestation of his love toward us. Blinded by the fury of the blight and the pest and the pain men cried for the flesh-pots of Egypt. But now, beholding what Love has offered from Calvary how sinful the sin that would charge God with harshness or forgetfulness because of the rage of the conflict that engages men. In short, look at the Cross, really look there, and you do not see the blight; live beneath the Cross and you do not feel the storm; accept the Cross and nowhere is there left on all the surrounding field the sign of defeat. For, there is love—love over the blight, love in the storm, love mightier than the foe; love so manifest and apparent that they cannot appear as before, in its light. It is no extreme imagining that announces:

O Cross, that lifted up my head. No, for the crutching and the disheartened droop cannot be when the heart sees the Cross as it is. It so commends God's love that we reasonably exclaim: "He that spared not His own Son but freely gave Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things?"

Ah, yes, and this love of God is commended, not because Jesus died on the Cross for the good or the worthy but, "in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us." God's love apparent to unfallen angels would be easily accepted as a fact compared with this. This is so astonishing that He commends it. Christ Jesus "came to seek and to save that which was lost." "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." The saved man sees it, yet it is never his to claim that the slightest goodness or merit of his own part could have brought it about. Ask him, "Why were you saved?" He must reply: "God loved me so." And he became aware of it by believing the message concerning what Jesus did on the Cross. Search through the Bible for the plainest comment upon the little word "so" in "God so loved the world" and see if you do not find it in this very expression: "God commendeth his love." You will never find the meaning of that little word "so" in John 3:16 outside the Bible, and can you imagine any other way to explain God's commending of His love than to use that little word with infinite meaning? If possible it would appear to be love exhibited as more lovely. And that for the souls of perishing sinners! Thus taught by God Himself what an estimate He places on His love for us, it can only be ungodliness that would reject it.

The First Application Makes Skin Cool and Comfortable

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarrassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

This sulphur preparation, because of its germ destroying properties, seldom fails to quickly subdue itching, even of fiery eczema. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are healed right up. Rowley Mentho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant cold cream and is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good druggist.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! How good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffing, blowing; no more headaches, dizziness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what suffers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.
