MR. AND MRS. C. E. LAMBETH ENTERTAIN AT COUNTRY CLUB

In Charlotte in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. Martin L. Cannon.

Charlotte News. An elaborate and charming affair, ushering in the Christmas season, was the dance given Friday evening from 9 to 1 o'clock at the Charlotte Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lambeth, complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hill, of Winston-Salem, and Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Cannon, of Concord, who will move to Charlotte soon to make their future home. Mrs. Hill and Mr. Cannon are sister and brother of Mrs. Lambeth.

The spacious ball room of the club was elaborately decorated. Holly and trailing cedar covered the walls and hung from the ceiling and the windows outlined with cotton to give the effect of snow. The mantel was banked high with holly and silver handkerchiefs, holding lighted red candles, were placed at either end. On each side of the mantel were small Christmas trees decorated with tinsel and bright ornaments, and the guests were received at the door of the ball room by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Lambeth, the latter wearing a blue taffeta made bouffant style and trimmed in crystals, her corsage being of violets. Mr. and Mrs. Hill, the latter, wearing a becoming gown of pink chiffon embroidered in crystals and an old-fashioned bouquet; Mr. and Mrs. Cannon, the latter attired in a pink chiffon embroidered in pastel shades of beads, with an old-fashioned bouquet.

A delightful program of dance music, including the latest pieces was rendered throughout the evening by Mark Goff's orchestra.

Punch was served throughout the evening. The punch bowl was on a prettily decorated table in the reception hall. Red carnations and red tapers in silver holders were used on the table. Baskets of holly were placed on tables around the room and on the mantels in the reception hall and reception room.

A grand march was held at 12 o'clock, led by Mrs. Hill and Mr. Lambeth, during which pretty and appropriate favors were given the guests.

They were then invited into the dining-room where a buffet supper was served. A long table in the center of the room had as its centerpiece a huge mound of holly, surrounded by six red candles in silver holders. Holly and cedar were also used around the windows.

About 200 guests enjoyed Mr. and Mrs. Lambeth's hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Cannon, of York, S. C., were among the out-of-town guests.

Hall-Newton

There was a quiet but pretty wedding solemnized on Saturday at 9 o'clock at the home of Mr. H. T. Newton on Second Buffalo street, when his daughter became the bride of Mr. Cicero Hall. A few few friends witnessed the ceremony.

Rev. H. T. Blackwelder performed the ceremony.

TWENTY YEARS OF FLIGHT.

Work of the Wrights in 1923—Developments Now Head Like a Fairy Tale. Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Today is the twentieth anniversary of an event epochal in the history of aviation. On December 17, 1903, at Kitty Hawk, N. C., Orville Wright rose from the ground in the frail structure of wood and wire and fabric that he and his brother had built at Dayton and equipped with an engine also of their own design and construction.

The flight that resulted was a trivial effort by the standards of today. It continued only a minute and covered about two hundred yards, but it was the first. Never before in recorded history had a man left the ground and remained aloft in the power-driven heavier-than-air craft under his control, and the work of the brothers Wright adds an imperishable glory to the story of American science and invention.

It is not always fully realized how young the art of flying really is, and it sometimes comes as something of a shock to realize that the first man in the world to fly is only in early middle age at the present time. The accomplishment of these twenty years has been so great that it is difficult to realize the shortness of time within which that tremendous development has been compressed.

The work of the Wrights was particularly remarkable in the extent to which it was purely American. The experiments of Maxim and Ader and others had been made in Europe in the last decade of the previous century, and each had added his share to the knowledge which was to form the basis of the final successful achievement. None, however, had reached the goal, and when the Wrights started their work they found much of inspiration but comparatively few data of direct value in the records of the struggles of their predecessors.

The year 1903 saw the work both of the Wrights and of Langley using the stage of conclusive trial, and the eyes of the aeronautical world were fixed firmly on America. The Langley aerodrome received its second unsuccessful trial, terminated by a failure of the launching apparatus at Wilewater only five days before the successful flight of Orville Wright over the North Carolina sand dunes.

FRANK ARMFIELD, Commissioner.

Maness, Armfield & Sherrin, Attys. This December 18, 1923.

there should be no reason for controversy between the partisans of Langley and those of the Wrights. Each made a distinct contribution. It was for the Wrights that the final triumph was reserved, but America has reason to be very proud of the work of the former secretary of the Smithsonian Institution as well as that of the Dayton inventors.

Those who have undertaken the development of aeroplanes in America since 1903 have not been recreant to their trust. The effectiveness of their work is best portrayed by the position that American aviation occupies today, with the world's records for altitude and speed held on American airplanes, designed and built and piloted by Americans.

During the late war the marvels of aviation development in the United States were almost like a fairy tale. One of the most remarkable achievements was the production of 14,000 Liberty motors during the brief period of the conflict. Another wonderful device that was given birth at the same time was the radiophone, an invention which enabled American air squadron commanders to direct and control by voice the movements of individual units, who in turn helped Allied artillerymen to silence the German guns.

'Tis a Mystery. "So there's another rupture of Mount Vesuvius," said Mrs. Farrington, as she put on her specs. "The paper tells us about the burning lather running down the mountains, but it don't tell how it got afire."
