Souvenirs at the Jenny Lind Concert.
The souvenir to be given in Concord January 30th at the Jenny Lind Concert, at which Frieda Hempel will impersonate her famous predecessor, is a fac-simile of the highest priced ticket sold at auction to hear the Swedish nightingale. It was bought by Colonel William Ross, of Providence, R. I., for $653. The most remarkable thing about the ticket according to Rosenberg's book on Jenny Lind's Tour in America, is the fact that Col. Ross did not go to the concert—in fact he did not hear Jenny Lind until she sang in Havana, and then he went every time she appeared.

Colonel Ross' grandson, who inherited the original ticket, brought it to Miss Hempel on the memorable day that Springfield, Mass., turned back the clock more than seventy years and repeated its welcome to Jenny Lind.

The demand to hear Jenny sing was so tremendous the great showman conceived the auction idea. The auctions were events in themselves—and like all Barham ideas decidedly interesting. John N. Geah, a New York hatter, paid $225 for the first ticket, to the Castle Garden Concert. He was thereafter called "The Mad Hatter," but his extravagance made him famous. Other highest prices paid for tickets at auction were Ossian E. Dodge, Boston, $625; M. A. Root, Philadelphia, $625; Mr. D'Arcy, New Orleans, $240, and a daguerrotypist in Baltimore, $100. After the sale of the first ticket, the premium usually fell to $20, and on downward in the scale of figures. The fixed price of tickets ranged from $7 to $3. Promenade tickets, a more romantic name for general admission or standing room, were $2 and $1 each.

On the reverse side of the souvenir ticket is a picture of Miss Hempel as Jenny Lind, reproduced in an oval frame of 1850.

No Super-Intellect in Future Men, He Says; Have Too Much Already.

London, Jan. 29.—Map in the distant future will not be a super-intellectual creature immersed in abstract problems and lofty conceptions, but a person of robust physical constitution with much of the animal about him. This is the opinion of the noted anthropologist, Sir Arthur Keith, whose view that the human brain is diminishing rather than increasing in size was set forth in an interview yesterday. His conclusions are based in part on his study of the prehistoric skull unearthed in Rhodesia four years ago.

Sir Arthur remarked that he hoped his theory was correct, because a "hyper-intellect" causes its owner more pain than pleasure, making him too keenly conscious of his frailty and shortcomings. Moreover, he said, if everybody became hyper-intellectual, the race would perish, as is the animal instinct which has kept the genus homo on the earth.

In spite of the fact that men's brains are smaller today than those of their prehistoric predecessors, he added, "people today have ten times more brain power than they are ever likely to need, and most of them use a very small part of what they have got. They are like people dwelling in a big house but occupying only the cellar."

The modern newspaper, he went on, is a good index of the average human mind, not more than 5 per cent, of it dealing with intellectual matters, the remainder being entirely of "human interest"—crime, sports, sex and politics. "Even the cross-word puzzle craze is an ebullition of the animal nature," Sir Arthur asserted.

Persons who have engaged tickets for the Frieda Hempel concert, are asked to get them as soon as possible so as to avoid the last minute rush for tickets. These tickets may be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce at any time during the day.

CONCORD NORTH CAROLINA

MISS HEMPEL WILL BE THE GUEST OF MRS. C. B. WAGONER

She and Her Party Will Arrive Friday Morning on Train No. 33

The Hempel concert Friday night is attracting interest, not only in musical circles in the city, but also in the social life of Concord. Much is being planned for the coming of the celebrated singer.

A special committee will be at the train at 8:27 tomorrow morning to greet Mme. Hempel and her party when they arrive on train No. 33. From the train, she will immediately be taken to the home of Mrs. C. B. Wagoner on West Depot Street, where she will spend the day.

After the concert, which in itself will be a gathering of local society, a reception will be held at which a number of persons will be invited, Mme. Hempel and her party being the guests of honor.

Mme. Hempel leaves for Asheville on Saturday morning. Her concert in Asheville on Monday night, constituting the principal event for music week.

North Carolina Educational Association (By the Associated Press)

Raleigh, Jan. 29.—Members of the North Carolina Educational Association are assembling here for the State meeting of the association, which will be held here Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, January 29, 30 and 31. The majority of the members are expected to arrive tomorrow and the entertainment committee states that the hotels will be taxed to their capacity to care for those in attendance.

The first session of the association will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock, at which time business matters will be discussed, resolutions submitted and proposed amendments to the constitution received. A feature of the evening's program will be a concert by the Raleigh high school orchestra and an address by Dr. George D. Strayer, teachers college, Columbia University.

Friday's program will consist largely of addresses before the various groups of the association. Friday evening a pianologue and musical program will be rendered by Edwin M. Stekel, of the Gastonia city schools. Speakers for the evening include N. A. Townsend, chairman of the legislative commission for the study of school finance, and A. W. Honeycutt, of the Hendersonville city schools, who will discuss the "Status of Physical Education in North Carolina."

The department of farm life teachers will hold business sessions during the day and in the evening an informal banquet will be held.

Continue Child Labor Fight.

New York, Jan. 28.—The fight for a child labor amendment to the constitution, will be continued even though thirteen states, or more than one-quarter of the necessary three-fourths, have refused to ratify it, said a statement issued here today by the national child labor committee, organized in 1907. The adverse vote of the legislatures is not final, according to the statement, and the amendment "has not been defeated or shelved." The committee expects six of the thirteen states to reverse their action and "go on record in favor of the amendment when they discover that the present scene of a super-socialism is groundless."

It is a poor town that cannot boast of something to the stranger within its borders.

Showing of Oriental Goods.

Mrs. B. G. Vance, distributor for the Girls' Industrial School of the Orient, will have a showing of linens, lace, beads and embroideries from these schools at the First Presbyterian Church, Friday afternoon from two-thirty to five-thirty, Saturday morning from nine-thirty to twelve-thirty at the home of Mrs. Thos. H. Webb, on West Corbin street.

The public is cordially invited to attend. 28-31-c.
