NORTH CAROLINA TOWNS

Raleigh, N. C., March 27.—By recent legislative enactment the population of Raleigh was increased approximately 2,500, according to the estimate of Representative Creekmore of Wake county, who introduced the bill. The chamber of commerce had previously listed this city's population as 32,600. The additional territory, based on this, brings the present total population to nearly 35,000.

On account of the number of schools and colleges located here, the writer population is estimated to be about 10,000 in excess of the summer population, which means that from September 1 to about June 1, each year, there are in Raleigh more than 40,000 persons.

Raleigh boasts of one of the largest auditoriums in the South. This assembly hall has a seating capacity of about 4,500.

The city of Raleigh has recently spent $388,000 on its water plant, increasing the storage capacity to 540,000,000 gallons.

In 1912 the taxable property in Raleigh was listed at 11,250,000 and yielded an annual revenue of $146,278. Ten years later the assessed valuation had risen to $38,879,000 while the tax collected was $432,000. The assessed valuation of real estate alone was $7,793,000 in 1912 and $29,538,000 in 1922.

Raleigh has several parks, including Pullen Park, which contains 74 acres. This is a semi-forest reserve.

In Raleigh there are numerous civic and patriotic organizations, as well as educational organizations. All leading fraternal orders have substantial organizations here. The Masonic fraternity, in 1907, erected a seven-story temple, in which the state grand lodge meets annually. The Odd Fellows have just recently completed a ten-story building, one of the most impressive in the city.

Practically every religious denomination is represented here. The churches are housed in commodious and modernly constructed buildings. Several churches have recently erected new houses of worship and others are planned.

Raleigh is one of the largest publishing centers in the entire south. It has leading into it numerous improved roads, including several hard-surfaced highways. It is on the main line of the Seaboard Air Line railway and is also reached by the Southern and the Norfolk Southern lines.

Greensboro, one of the leading manufacturing cities of North Carolina, showed a population of 43,523. Present estimates carry the total as high as 48,000. In 1910 the population was only 15,805. The city is run by a non-partisan commission. Soon after this system was adopted in 1921 an experienced city manager was engaged. Greensboro is an insurance center, as well as a manufacturing center. Beside numerous other tall buildings housing great business enterprises, it has a 17-story sky scraper. The city has nearly 700 retail stores and banking resources close to $25,000,000, with deposits approximating that amount.

Greensboro is located in an historic section of the State, near the Guilford battle ground of Revolutionary fame. The assessed valuation of Greensboro's property is between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000. It has nearly 75 miles of paved streets and more than 6,000 automobiles, besides numerous cotton mills and other industries.

Dunn, located in Harnett county, was established in 1887. Its first mayor was J. J. Wade and its present mayor P. A. Lee. It has a population of more than 4,000 and is run under an aldermanic form of government. It has two white schools and one negro school. It is in the center of an agricultural section, but has an industrial population of 500 who draw $5,000 weekly.

Charlotte, the county seat of Mecklenburg and one of the leading manufacturing cities in North Carolina, claims a population of 70,000. The 1920 government census gave it 46,538. The city is under a commission form of government. It is surrounded by an agricultural area and entered by numerous improved roads. It has more than 100 miles of paved sidewalks and claims an equal mileage of improved streets. It is a banking and motion-picture film distributing center. It is also the headquarters for extensive hydro-electric development.

Charlotte was the scene of the signing of the Mecklenburg declaration of independence, May 20, 1775. This gives it an historic setting.

There are many cotton mills located within the city and adjacent to Charlotte.

Henderson, the county seat of Vance, was chartered in 1847, at which time it was in Granville county. The 1920 census gave the city a population of 5,232, of whom 3,166 were white and 2,066 negroes. Henderson is governed by a mayor and eight commissioners. It is one of the leading tobacco centers of North Carolina and has numerous industries, including three cotton mills, a motor truck factory, a fertilizer factory, a furniture factory and other manufacturing plants.

Enter Probe

Dr. Charles C. Faiman, above, and John P. Marchand, below, have made startling disclosures in the investigation of the death of William McClintock, Chicago's "millionaire orphan." They have testified that William Shepherd, foster-father of McClintock, sought information from their school on bacteriology and that after his visits two tubes which contained typhoid germs were stolen from the school.
