THE PEOPLE TO BLAME AFTER ALL

The Washington Post publishes, for the enlightenment of its readers, the following clause from the Revised Statutes of the United States:

The secretary of the Senate and sergeant-at-arms of the House, respectively, shall deduct from the monthly payments of each member or delegate the amount of his salary for each day that he has been absent from the Senate or House, respectively, unless such member or delegate assigns as the reason for such absence the sickness of himself or some member of his family.

The Washington Post also, deprecating Congressional absenteeism, makes this charge: "Of the New York delegation in the Sixty-ninth Congress no fewer than seven have been absent from the city a greater number of days than they have been here during the twenty half-days that the House has actually been in session since the 7th of December," and it adds: "There are many of the representatives of the people who appear to labor under the impression that so long as they are on hand to take the oath of office at the beginning of Congress and are able to sign the pay vouchers with unflinching regularity each month they are immune from attendance upon the sessions."

The Asheville Citizen thinks "a Congressman who does not earn his pay by staying on the job in Washington when Congress is in session, is recreant to his trust," and adds, "but the private citizen who takes no interest in politics is also recreant to his trust. The standard of government is set by the attitude of the man in the street. When his interest lags, the standard sags."

There is no denying The Citizens' statement. The man in the street can get things right in Washington if he will demand them. The Congressman will loaf on the job in many instances unless there is some one to check him up. Why doesn't the man who makes out the checks have some system by which he can tell when a Senator or Congressman has been on the job? The law specifies that a member of Congress shall be paid for the time he works, and if this law is complied with the Congress members will stay on the job more.

MORE SCHOOL FACTS.

State School Facts in recent issues has given valuable information concerning the kinds of elementary schools there are in the State. In a recent issue it gives the following summary of the rural schools having seven teachers or more:

1. That there were 208 rural elementary schools of this type in 80 counties, twenty counties having no school of this type.

2. That there were 2,603 teachers employed in schools of this type, of which number only 108, or 4.2 per cent, held non-standard certificates.

3. That the average teacher in these schools had an index of school-

PNEUMONIA.

North Carolina Health Bulletin.

We are just now reaching the season when pneumonia is beginning to take its most terrific toll of human life. During January, February and March more people died from this disease than during the remaining nine months of the year. During these three months of 1925 pneumonia killed, in North Carolina, at the rate of over five hundred per month.

If you live in a village of five hundred people, think of an entire village the size of yours, men, women and children, being completely wiped off the map in this state each month during January, February and March. Remember that is just what this one disease, pneumonia, is doing. The total is approximately 3,000 deaths per year.

Pneumonia can much more easily be prevented than cured and prevention is a personal matter depending on each individual. The doctor will do all he possibly can to relieve a patient that is sick, but preventing the disease is a matter entirely in the hands of the individual. The doctor cannot do that for him any more than he could eat his food for him or sleep for him.

In one series of 1,408 pneumonoid patients, taking them as they came, 852 gave a history of having been ill with a common cold for several days previous to the development of pneumonia.

Some important measures in preventing pneumonia which every one should know are:

1. Consider seriously and treat adequately all "common colds."
2. Dress to suit the weather, remembering that clothing is for protection, rather than for adornment.
3. Avoid sudden chilling, wet feet and wet clothing.
4. Vitality, or resistance to infection, is greatly lowered by lack of exercise, excessive fatigue, loss of sleep, excesses of any kind, and poor food.
5. During dangerous seasons be especially careful to maintain vitality at its very highest.
6. Avoid all unnecessary contact with persons sick with pneumonia, influenza or colds. They are contagious.
7. Keep hands clean.
8. Do not let fingers or anything else except proper food and drink enter the mouth or touch the lips.
9. Avoid overheating of living rooms and be assured that there is ample ventilation to keep the air fresh.

A SMART HISTORIAN

Charity and Children.

Frank Lawrence Owsley, associate professor of history in Vanderbilt University, has broken out in a new place. He ascribes the defeat of the Confederacy to "gross incompetence and the lack of national spirit at home." He thinks the Confederacy collapsed because the Confederate states distrusted one another and became all of them distrusted the central government. He lambastes Gov. Joseph E. Brown, of Georgia. "He withheld supplies," says the historian, "as well as men and so did most of his brother governors." He makes special mention of Gov. Vance, who had 22,000 uniforms in his warehouses at the close of the war and large quantities of blankets, shoes and tents" though Lee's soldiers were in rags and bare feet. We do not know a thing in the world about what the war governors of other southern states did, but North Carolinians generally will resent this gross reflection upon their great leader and statesman. It is unthinkable that Zeb Vance would withhold anything he had from the suffering soldiers of his state. He loved his people and was loved by them. There may have been 22,000 uniforms in his warehouses, but if so there was a reason beyond the governor's control that they were not given out. We have no doubt that the matter will be cleared up and that Vance will be exonerated from all blame. If he had a weakness it was that his sympathy for his suffering people sometimes overbalanced his judgment. There was no cruelty in his nature. He is considered the most provident war governor of the Confederacy. Nothing that he could ever do was left undone for the comfort of the soldiers in the field. Mr. Owsley has undertaken an impossible contract to convince the people of North Carolina and Virginia that Zeb Vance was either incompetent or thoughtless of the boys on the battle field. There are some things we know, and that Zeb Vance was the best friend that Southern soldiers had, is one of them.

Start Work on World's Tallest Structure.

New York, Jan. 20.—Work on the world's tallest building began Monday in Broadway, between 122nd Street and 123rd Street, where the 65 story Christian-Missionary building is to tower 800 feet, or eight feet higher than the Woolworth Building. The structure, which will house a hotel, a church, a hospital and a bank, is being built by Oscar E. Konkle, president of the Realty Sureties, Inc., in gratitude for the recovery of his son, Howard Konkle, now studying at Colgate University to become a medical missionary.

There are to be 4,500 rooms in the hotel end of the building. The top price for rooms will be $21 a week. Ten per cent of the earnings of the building, said Mr. Konkle, will go to found and maintain a medical missionary base on the shores of Victoria Nyanza, an African lake that feeds the Nile. Drinking and smoking, possibly, Sunday newspapers will be banned in the building.

Building operations got under way by virtue of contracts which Mr. Konkle signed with the Clements Contracting Company for the removal of rock from the site. The site extends on both streets for 225 feet, giving an area of more than 45,000 square feet.

The construction cost, exclusive of the land value, will be about $14,000,000.

Art hills are established at the base of orange trees in China and fruit trees in Italy, so that the ants will protect the trees from injurious insects.

None of the Wage Commission's Business.

Raleigh Times.

Three departments of the State government, according to reports made by Pardon Commissioner Sink, who canvassed them, had determined to take Lee-Jackson day, a legal holiday, off. We hope they lived up to their convictions.

Indeed, it would have been just as satisfactory had every department given holiday. Lee-Jackson day has been celebrated for many years by North Carolina officials, and we have never heard of any untoward results. The fact that the salary and wage commission has not included this holiday in its list of days off presented to the departments for their guidance is of slight concern. A legal holiday, as we understand it, is one fixed by the legislature. As such it could not possibly be the business of the salary and wage commission until that body had secured authorization for the general assembly to revise the list of holidays.

This authorization has not been given, and the legislature, while it may have consented had it been apprised of the commission's action, never dreamed that it was providing the governor with an agency which would attempt to fix hours of labor and the like for the officers of the state and their departments.

We trust Pardon Commissioner Sink, who is secretary of the salary and wage commission, will pardon us for suggesting that nothing could be less of his business than whether the other responsible members of the state government observe or do not observe the holidays as fixed by law.

Rub Rheumatic Pain From Aching Joints

Stop "dozing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism balm which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It's for pain, bruisings and stiff joints, aching joints, muscles and bones; stope sciatias, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment, you'll be free from pain, stress and distress. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, crocote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crocote, other healing elements which soothe and heal inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the crocote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (ad.)

POLICE CHIEF SHOWS TEETH

McLaughlin Dismisses Patrolman and Warns Others Discipline Will Be Enforced to the Limit.

New York Mirror.

A husky, distinguished looking man walked into Brooklyn police headquarters yesterday and entered the trial room. He sat down and waited. First Deputy Commissioner Leach entered.

Immediately things began to happen. The visitor, who had pushed his way past fifty patrolmen, was none other than the new commissioner, George V. McLaughlin.

The first policeman called was Patrolman John Fagan. Fagan was charged with entering a restaurant at No. 807 Coney Island Ave., Brooklyn, off duty and allowing a man to take his gun and shoot another man. Fagan did not make an arrest.

Fagan denied the charge.

Commissioner McLaughlin said: "I don't believe your story. You are dismissed."

Fagan: "Won't you give me another chance?"

The Commissioner: "No."

Other cases were quickly disposed of and then the commissioner said: "Let this be a warning. I won't tolerate drunkenness, extortion and pistol flashing. Any man guilty of any of these offenses will be instantly dismissed."

Brooklyn police learned their new chief was a man of action and few words.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Friday, January 22, 1926

Centenary of the birth of Gen. Meriwether J. Thompson, a Missouri commander in the Confederate States army.

Twenty-five years ago today the British nation mourned the passing of Queen Victoria. She died at Osborne, January 22, 1901.

Today is the twentieth anniversary of the wreck of the steamship Valencia off Vancouver Island, with a loss of 129 lives.

Joshua W. Alexander, who was secretary of commerce in the cabinet of President Wilson, today enters upon his seventy-fifth year.

Commander Franco, Spanish military aviator, is scheduled to start from Palos today in an attempt to fly to Buenos Aires and thence to the United States.

A proposal to reorganize the entire legal profession of New York State as a corporation which every practicing attorney would be required to join, will be discussed today at the annual meeting of the New York State Bar Association in New York City.

To exhort the Great Spirit to call off "ghosts," which have been visiting death upon Indians of the Tulip Reservations, in Washington, the Indian medicine men have decided on an old-time tribal Tamanewis dance today, as the only way to allay the scourge.

Boy's Money Making Scheme is a Failure.

Baltimore, Jan. 21.—People who get hit with automobiles always get money, nine-year-old Frank O'Neil argued with two chums when the trio found themselves down town and broke.

The chums demurred but Frank saw prospects of cash in hand—he might even get $50. He hurried himself in front of the first car that approached. It was loaded with coins and the brakes were good.

Frank was unharmed, but his future money making scheme will be supervised in St. Mary's Industrial school, to which the trio was committed yesterday when the tale was unfolded in Juvenile court.

Evangelistic Campaign.

Kennapolis, Jan. 21.—Rev. Charles E. Manderly, of Raleigh, closed a successful evangelistic campaign of 10 days' duration at the First Baptist church here today.

"Satan in Sables" with Lowell Sherman is a picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

The story opens during the revelries on the night of the Fete de la Mi-Careme in Paris. In his sumptuous apartment, Prince Michael Yervodoff, an immensely wealthy Russian noble who has made his home in Paris since the debacle in his own country, is giving one of the wild parties for which he is renowned. Erskin, an English lord; Ninon, a fashionable demi-monde, and Armand, a man-about-town, are among the guests helping to make Michael's gay life gay.

Ninon makes Erskin jealous, whereupon he punishes the whole crowd by singing.

CHAPTER I—Continued

Rendered in cloying tones, feebly assisted by the orchestra, which vainly tried to follow his erratic tempo, Freddy's singing made a strange impression on his victims. Girls pretended to be overcome by sentimentality and emotion, strong men affected to weep, and Ninon theatrically engaged in convulsive sobbing on Armand's shoulder.

Nothing daunted, Freddy commenced the second verse.

"Moi, pour ces deux mots, ces mots d'amour—"

"One moment, Freddy," interrupted Michael holding up his hand, "for some unaccountable reason the people outside seem to be objecting to your singing. Listen—"

"Holla, holla, good people, and who is dying up there?" a girl's clear voice floated through the window on the crest of a wave of laughter.

Michael and his guests walked to the balcony and looked out upon a land of revellers who had evidently stepped aside from the main am and lingered to enjoy the atrocity of Freddy's vocal effort. A strange sight they presented.
