WOMAN CHARGED WITH SLAYING GOES ON TRIAL
Defendant Admits Killing Her Supposed Husband But Says It Was Not Intentional.
Monroe, Jan. 25.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon in superior court in Union county, Bertha Case, alias Bertha Fowler, went on trial for her life for shooting and killing Frank Fowler with whom she had been living for three years as man and wife, on his large farm six miles southwest of Monroe.
The young woman is now 23 years of age and is the mother of one son about three years old and a posthumous daughter, six months old. Deceased was a working man and a man whose integrity was not questioned. He was honest and upright in all his business dealings and was pushing ahead in the accumulation of wealth. His relatives and neighbors had up to the time of the killing thought that the couple were legally man and wife.
History of Shooting.
On the morning of the 23rd of last February, Frank Fowler was carried to the Ellen Fitzgerald hospital with a bullet hole through his stomach as a result of a pistol fired by Bertha, his supposed wife. At the hospital Fowler told his relatives the whole secret of how he had been living and how he had received the wound which he said would prove his death. He asked that the woman with whom he had been living be not prosecuted. He made his will leaving his entire estate to his two-year-old son by Bertha Case. It developed that he had been married to Miss Etta Bagwell with whom he had not lived for some time and from whom he had secured a divorce three months prior to the killing.
Other Wife.
From newspaper accounts of the killing his legal wife learned that she had been divorced and brought suit to have the proceedings set aside. She won the case and comes in for her share of the estate of the dead man.
The Testimony.
The first witness on the stand was Will Fowler, brother of the deceased. He testified that on the morning of the killing he went over to Frank's house to help him work. When he arrived they were eating breakfast and that he had sat down by the fire. Frank Fowler had the baby on his lap. Bertha remarked that she threw a shoe at Frank last night. He replied, "you didn't hit me." Frank addressing Bertha said "I threw a shoe at you last night," she replied, "yes but you didn't hit me." Bertha then asked Will Fowler if he saw that woman's short dress, referring to a trip which had been made to South Carolina. Frank said "oh I care nothing about that." Bertha then began to abuse Frank for alleged attentions to other women and to curse him in the vilest of terms. He insisted that she hush, and she struck him with the churn dasher. A scuffle followed in which the witness said that he had sat down by the fire, the fighting woman, "I was splashed her cheek one time. When the scuffle had quieted, Frank said to his brother, Well let's go to work, and went to the front room, for his hat. Bertha rushed ahead of him and instantly on their arrival in the room he heard two pistol shots. He went toward the room and saw Bertha coming out with the gun in her hand. She threatened to shoot him, he said and he said to her, "here take the baby," he handed her the child and proceeded to find his brother wounded.
Bertha on Stand.
Next on the stand was Bertha Case who was not in the least frightened, entirely different in all of its respects from that told by Will Fowler. Miss Case was not in the least frightened. She set out to relate the affair in an enthusiastic and rapid manner. She observed the rapid movement of the stenographer's pencil, and paused to ask the judge if she was talking too fast. In essentials, Bertha's testimony was that on the morning of the shooting a mule escaped the stall and that her supposed husband whom she called Frank Fowler, had had a lively chase. That while he was on the chase, she had eaten her breakfast. That Frank Fowler came in mad and cursing her. That he cursed the salts which she had prepared for him, cursed the cold ration, and began to feed the baby on coffee, and an adult diet, that she protested that it would ruin the child, and he responded that it was his and he would feel it what he pleased. That he cursed her to ugly things, and that she told him he was the same. That a scuffle followed, and that he threatened to kill her, that she went toward the room and the door was locked. She said he came after her with a razor and she pulled the gun, that she shot in the floor to scare him, and on his further advance she thought she shot to cripple him in the leg, and did not intend to kill him. The testimony of several witnesses who took the stand after Miss Case was to the effect that she gave on the stand the same evidence which she gave at first on the morning of the shooting.

Henry Ford's Idea of Life.
Henry Ford in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan.
I don't believe in making things too soft. Men are put on this earth to gain experience. That's the only thing that really counts in this world—experience. I don't believe in putting people in handboxes, packed in cottonwool. God made fleas to keep dogs busy and troubles to keep man busy. But it all comes down to the thing of gaining experience in this life.
Each life we live simply adds to our total experience. Everything put on earth is put here for some good—to get experience which will be stored up for future use. There is not one bit of man—no thought, one experience, one drop—that does not go on. Life is eternal—so there can't be any death.

DEVELOPMENT OF BIG PLAY GROUND AT MT. MITCHELL
Group Has 1,000 Acres Which Will Be Developed Eventually.
Asheville Citizen.
Plans for the development of 110 acres as the first unit of a gigantic "mountain playground" three miles southwest of Little Switzerland near the McDowell-Mitchell county boundary, was announced yesterday afternoon by Dr. Norwood G. Carroll, of Raleigh, who has associated with him Thomas Dixon, noted writer and author of "The Clansman" on which "The Birth of a Nation" was based. "The Leopard Spots" and other narratives of the reconstruction period.
Work has already been started on a hotel, the first section of which will accommodate approximately 150 guests, and numerous summer cottages for tourists, according to information obtained yesterday. Sewerage, water, electric light systems will be installed as soon as weather conditions will permit, Dr. Carroll declared.
The Mount Mitchell Association of Arts and Sciences, which soon anticipates filing an application for incorporation, promoting the mountain subdivision. The first unit, lots of which will be placed on sale within the next two weeks, has been named "Wild-acre" by the developers.
The rustic hotel, which will contain the natural rugged characteristics of the mountain section, will be constructed of rough boards and rock and will grace the heights of Pompey's Knob, the altitude of which is about 450 feet. The property is situated along State highway route No. 19 and is about 50 miles from Asheville by way of Marion, and is also accessible by way of Weaverville and Burnsville.
The Mount Mitchell Association of Arts and Sciences owns approximately 1,000 acres in northern McDowell county and southern Mitchell county, which owners tentatively plan to develop at a later date.

EVERLYN THAW TALKS OF HER SUICIDE EFFORTS
Drank Champagne, Then Poison, "If You Know What I Mean," She Says.
New York Mirror.
Evelyn Nesbit Thaw arrived in Atlantic City yesterday after her unsuccessful attempt at suicide in a Chicago hotel.
And this is what she has to say: "I had been on the water wagon for six months. I had not tasted liquor of any kind for so long I hardly knew what it tasted like. I had champagne on that New Year's Eve party and it went to my head."
The former wife of Harry K. Thaw smiled a knowing smile. She continued:
"When I arrived at my hotel I started reading a book of essays on 'Suicide.' I just went in the bathroom and drank the poison. I knew what I was doing, then again I didn't, if you know what I mean."
To tell the truth the interviewer didn't know.
Evelyn denied that her nose had been broken at the New Year's party. It only bled a bit, she said.
"Will you ever go back to Harry?"

EMBARASSING MOMENTS
New York Mirror.
The other day my boss left the office and said he would not be back until the next day. A few minutes later I called out to a salesman in the outer office and said, "Thank God the boss is gone and won't be back before tomorrow. I'm going to a show." I certainly was embarrassed when the boss answered back, "Is that so?" He had returned to the office.
My hair being very thin and short, I tied a long switch to it when I sat at the window. Some neighbors who were standing beneath were remarking about my beautiful locks when down fell the switch to the street.
