Zeke Jones and His First Trip Away From Home.
 T. B. Laney in Monroe Journal.
 When I was young and didn't have much sense about town and shows I came to town one day and it was show day and I was scared to death. I did not want that elephant to tramp on me and the lion was awful and them monkeys, just as I was stepping into the show I felt like it would be my last breath, as a monkey jumped down from the rope and landed on my head and lord, lord, I thought I had to go. I remember the time very well when the old monkey went back up the rope and carried my cap and I begged to go home for I never had seen anything wild but a rabbit and I wasn't scared of them.

 It takes time to get used to all you run up against. I remember first time I was in town they had no light much, jest lamp lights and everybody was smokin' and I thought it was lightnin' bugs or jack-o-lanterns and I was afraid to move, but I got used to that.
 I never will ferget the first opera show I went to and when the curtain went up and all of them show gals there a kickin' up their heels made me so shamed I wanted to go home. And out at the show I went over where I heard the strangest music and I seed others goin' in and I went in jest for curiosity and when I got in what I seed made me so ashamed I wanted to go home agin.
 And the other day I was up the streets and I seed a lots of fine folks and the wind was whistlin' down from the north pole when them aviators scared it up and when it got down here to North Carolina it was goin' so fast that it got in there little sylish skirts and it ballooned the skirts and it made me feel so bad I wanted to go home.
 And I was goin' to Charlotte last summer and a bunch of girls was up on the high dive all stooped over and I was right there in the road passin' along and I looked and it made me feel so bad I wanted to go home.

Didn't the Old Grandmothers Smoke?
 T. B. Laney in Monroe Journal.
 The heads of colleges have placed a ban on the smoke habit, and I am with them on the question but I wonder if any of us ever think about old grandmas when she used to place a quid of tobacco in her jaw and shower a mouth full of tobacco gravy on the log fire and nearly put it out. I wonder if anybody ever saw grandmas smoke the old clay pipe of peace. Now all grandmas didn't do this, but some of them did and they were just as good grandmas as ever lived.
 Way back in the days of the red man when this old country of ours was inhabited by them, when they wanted an important gathering and held a consultation they smoked the pipe of peace, each taking his turn, and from that day to this the old pipe has given millions peace and pleasure.
 The old pipe is brought into use when the meal has been finished, when the wise boys want to induce some thought to come into their heads. When they want to produce some high brow writings like the editor's product, it is then the pipe is filled with the weed and the fire applied and the man who wants solitude falls back in the cushions and smokes the pipe of peace.

But like the college heads who have placed the ban on smoking, I think they are right. But I am going to let every individual choose for himself. There is no law against it, smoke and be happy, but don't burn the hay.
Chicken Fight Near Statesville?
 Statesville Daily.
 It is common rumor around the city that a chicken fight was staged a few miles north of Statesville Thursday, and that the attendance and gate receipts were no meager items. Who sponsored the event and who participated therein are matters yet in the dark, so far as this paper knows.
 Anent the above rumor, Deputy J. E. Murdock heard it and went out to investigate. He reported finding only a barbecue in progress, with not over a dozen present. Whether the deputy found the same place and occasion that Madame Rumor had in mind is not known.
 Anyhow, the fact that a large number of cars, occupied by strangers, crossed the square Thursday, headed north, attracted attention of stand-arounds about the square. Some of the cars bore license of the states of South Carolina and Virginia.

 "Busy Bee" is more than sorry to inform "Black-eyed Susie" that she cannot accept the honor of having written all those items signed by other names. You should be pleased to know that this good neighborhood can afford more writers than you and I. I think I could tell you who some of them are although I decline to do so; and also wish to say you are just as much out of the way as a bake-oven on a barnroof if you think I do not know who "Black-eyed Susie" is.

Mesdames Frank Wright and Lot-corrier, of Landis, spent a while one evening last week with Mrs. H. H. Overcash.
 Relatives and friends of Mrs. Moses Upright, of Concord, will be glad to learn that he is greatly improved since his return from the hospital, where he recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.
 Come on, all you scribes from this and other sections, and lets send in more neighborhood news, which makes our page so interesting.
 We are glad to say that the general health of our immediate community is very good at this writing, with the exception of the usual complaint, bad colds.
