The condition of Roland Haupt, who has been ill at his home on Elm street for several days, is reported today as being somewhat improved.

ROOSEVELT'S BACK, "FIT FOR A FIGHT"

Hasn't Changed Opinion His Future in Public Life, Says T.R. Jr.

Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt returned yesterday from the wilds of Central Asia where they went shortly after Theodore failed to take the Governorship of this State after the Alfred E. Smith, in the 1924 election.

Since then they have been hunting big game like their father, the late President Roosevelt.

"I am coming back fit for a fight or a frolic," the elder brother said yesterday afternoon as the pair came up the bay on the Berengaria.

He would not tell whether this meant his hat would be in the ring again in a few months against Governor Smith. But he did say he had not changed his mind about his future being "in the public life."

"For seven months," said young Theodore, "we were where there was no telegraph and no mail. Every day since I got back to civilization I am finding out something important that has happened while I was away and is so old now that nobody tells me about it."

No Political Welcome. His return did not seem to be a political event to the dozen friends and neighbors who met him at Quarantine and shook his hand. There was notable absence of politicians of his own party. The welcoming committee of a dozen was led, in so far as it had a leader, by Murray Hulbert, former President of the Board of Aldermen in the Hylan Administration.

Two dozen photographers and a dozen reporters took him away from the welcome committee and asked him all about the big game hunt and the ovis poli.

"We shot Tibetan antelope at 18,000 feet," Col. Roosevelt said.

The Colonel told his tale in his own way. He told of his caravan of yaks and ponies that left Srinagar about the middle of May and climbed into the high places of Tibet. He took his audience through the pass of Karakoram in perpetual snow. He rolled the resounding names of Marco Polo might have done at a State audience when he returned to Venice.

"We went to Yarkand," he said, "in the Tiah Shan Mountains; then back by Ghigit to Srinagar, where we met our wives."

"They're gorgeous names, aren't they," he said.

Finally he came to the ovis poli. "In the Pamirs of China and Russia," he said, "we shot the ovis poli. The Pamirs are rolling ground, high in the air, with patches of grass here and there on which the ovis poli lives. It is bitterly cold.

"We got eight ovis poli, with horns fifty inches or longer. It's a big sheep called poli, after Marco Polo, who discovered them on his voyages to Cathay from Venice in the thirteenth century.

At the Ovis Poli.

"The ovis poli has been for many years an animal that hunters have considered a particularly fine trophy. It is particularly hard to get because you have to make a long trip and go over the Himalay Mountains for it. Those we got were the first shot in a few years."

"Did you eat any of it?"

"Of course we did."

"How did it taste?"

Words failed Mr. Roosevelt. He could remember names, but tastes apparently do not stick in his mind. "Anything would have tasted good after you hunt the ovis poli," he said.

The subject quickly changed. "We shot tiger in India, with both Mrs. Roosevelt. Each lady shot her tiger."

"Were they in any danger from their tigers?" a reporter asked.

"No," said Theodore, grinning at his wife, who looked startled at his answer. "Both ladies shot very well," he added, grinning at her again.

Entertains Club Members.

Mrs. Frank Armfield was hostess to the members of the Friday Afternoon Book Club Friday at her home on West Corbin street.

The subject of the meeting was "Negro Art and Literature," Mrs. W. M. Linker reading the principal paper of the meeting. Several other poems and stories written by negroes were read at the meeting by other members.

Refreshments were served during the afternoon.

In Great Britain blind persons without means are eligible to the old age pension at the age of 50.

Members of Trinity Reformed Church To Use New Building

Members of Trinity Reformed Church will hold services tomorrow in their handsome new church building on North Church street.

The building, erected at a cost of approximately $55,000, is the latest church structure in Concord and it combines modern arrangement and equipment with a simplicity and beauty that make it one of the handsomest edifices in the city.

The architecture of the church is Tudor Gothic, the general scheme of the interior and exterior following lines called for in such architecture. Simplicity marks the outline and finishings of the structure, giving it a most pleasing dignity and impressiveness.

On the ground floor are located the class rooms is located the boiler room, where is generated steam heat for the entire building. Four toilets also are located on this basement floor.

Each window in the auditorium is a memorial, these including:

One by David and Ethel Lippard. One by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peck for their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Peck and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Heilig. One by Mrs. M. E. Barrier and family to the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Shuping.

One by R. T. Lippard to his daughter, Mrs. Carry Bell Royser.

One by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lippard to Mrs. Susan Frances George and Crooks Lippard.

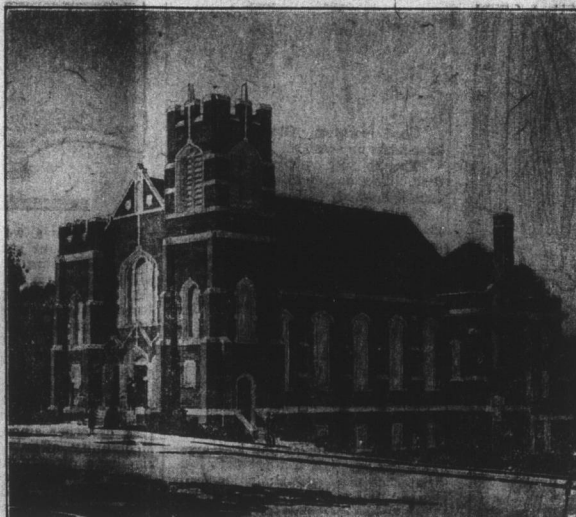

One by E. G. Cook.

mother, Mrs. Cobb Moose.

In the front of the tower are two windows by Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Lyerly to their living sons, William Clarence Lyerly, Jr., and Ray Lentz Lyerly.

Rev. W. C. Lyerly is pastor of the church, and is now serving his eighth year with the congregation. Members of the building committee were: J. O. Moose, chairman; J. H. A. Holshouser, J. A. Peck, H. S. Barrier, J. C. Lippard, M. B. Moore and Mrs. H. A. Goodman.

There are at present 164 members in the congregation and the new church stands as a testimonial of their loyalty and devotion to the Christian church.

Unfair to the Weak.

Winston-Salem Journal.

We are surprised to see the Charlotte Observer advocate "an extension of the existing system by which each county wanting the eight-months school term might vote a different tax upon itself, leaving the opposing and weaker counties to rock along with six or seven-months term, as the case might be."

Under the present system it is true that the Observer's own county of Mecklenburg can get along with a school tax rate of only forty-four cents. But the people of Watauga county are forced to pay a rate of sixty cents. And that figure would have to be raised considerably if Watauga went to an eight-months term.

This is unfair, of course, to Watauga county. But Watauga is by no means the only county that is suffering the grossest injustice under the present system. For while the rich county of Mecklenburg pays a comparatively small rate for schools, other agricultural counties, which have no great corporations or big cities, pay a school tax rate almost twice as high. For example, Stokes pays eighty-one cents; Polk pays eighty;

Dare pays eight; Hyde pays $1.35; and Clay pays ninety cents as against Mecklenburg's forty-four, Guilford thirty-seven, Buncombe thirty-five, and Forsyth twenty-seven.

Rabbi Marius Ranson, Temple Beth-El, Albany, New York, urges that the world court be established in Jerusalem. He claims that passages in Isaiah and Micah forecast such a tribunal there.
