and the law will be applied.

There is one thing to be said about the ruling—It is going to take keen government agents to keep the alcohol down to 3.75 per cent. Does the government propose to examine every bottle or will it trust the manufacturspecies or win it reast the manufactur-ers? It is the plan of the breveries, it is said, to put so much malt solids in the beer that the person drinking enough to become intoxicated will be-come sich at the same time. Will

Night Coughing Relieved At Once

Why suffer continually from a per-sistent, weakening night cough when you can get almost instant relief, and yeu can get almost instant relief, and usually break the cough completely in 24 hoursby a new method based on the famous Dr. King's New Discovery?

Here is the method: You simply take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. It has a double action. It not only soothes and heals irritation, but also removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of the coughing. As a result even the worst cough usually disappears quickly.
Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children, too—no harmful drugs. Very economical, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

When the music died in a plaintive bar, the dancers stood, expectant of the customary encore. The

"I'm glad you didn't," she returned. I'm atraid I might have given in to that."

The starter appeared at their running board and asked them to proceed. They crept, noiselessly, out of the parking yard. Until they came to the first turn, some sixty yards away, the fickering lights from the club house aided them. In the dim light shed by a dozen lanterns placed about the earthen floor they saw half a dozen men and women whose costumes and dominos proved them to have been revelers at the club house, lined up against the walls, the men standing stiffly at one side, their hands bound behind them, women in an excited group. Armed rufflans guarded the women at one side, and the sullen men at the other. Kenilworth was ordered to take his place among the men. For a brief moment he gave a sign of attempting fight, but Joanna murmured a reassuring word to him and without awaiting the command from their captors moved over to join the group of women.

As Kenilworth had prophesied, moved over to join the group of women.

As Kenliworth had prophesied, the bandits robbed their victims with profuse apologies uttered in their guttural tones. They seemed however, to be strangely inefficient in their plundering. The man whose hands explored Kenliworth's linner pockets did not discover his wallet, in which was a sizeable sheaf of bank notes, nor his platinum and diamond studded watch in the watch pocket beneath his waistcoat. A few gold louis, and an English pound note in his change pock was confiscated. His pearl dress studs were not noted. Curlously, he observed that the other robbers, relieving the other men of obvious valuables, ignored costly pearl studs. On the lane of one victim, a tiny decoration built around a huge diamond, was unnoticed.

The same incongruous carelesseness prevailed at the plundering of the women. Their fingers brushed lightly over gleaming throats: they begged a pardon for every jewel, of which they took only those that sparkled flagrantly. A pretty young woman—a very pretty young one with the small, angular face and smooth eyelids of an early madonna, dropped teher knees hysterically when frough hand reached to a sapphire bendant which hung deep on a bare chast from which, in her excitement, she had almost torn the already scant reach of her gown "Please," she pleaded to the bandit, "do not take my necklet. It of small value. I have hidded diamonds that I will give you, My necklet is a reminder of my husband."

A troman scho had become correless breezed up to Brendon and boldly commanded him to take her from the floor.
