Chautauqua Will Not Return to Monroe.

Many Monroe and Union county citizens no doubt will learn with sincere regret that Redpath Chautauqua, when it closes, its present engagement here will not return next season.

This is because the public has failed to purchase the number of tickets to guarantee the organization returning.

At a meeting this morning of the guarantors it was learned that the ladies who had charge of ticket sales had failed to sell the quota, and the seventeen guarantors were required to forfeit $25 each. However, there is no criticism of the ladies who had sales of tickets in charge. They did their best, but the public was not responsive.

It appears that our people are willing enough to attend part of the time, and no doubt many will pay at the box office for the various splendid events more than the price of a season ticket.

As stated in the outset it is to be regretted that Redpath Chautauqua will not come to Monroe next year as it has each succeeding season for the past fifteen years or more. It is out of the question for Chautauqua is more than worth while.

Gov. Smith is Right.

Governor Smith has taken a stand against the rule requiring a two-thirds vote in Democratic national conventions.

It is only necessary to think back to the last convention, when endless balloting went on the delegates and wearied the country, to understand how right he is.

The endemocratic and counter-revolutionary, an anachronism, dating back to the early days of the party when the scheme was put into effect to defeat Martin Van Buren, who was the popular choice for the Presidency. It should have been abolished long ago.

The Republicans have no such

IN AND ABOUT THE CITY

MONEY FOR SEWER BONDS RECEIVED IN THE CITY

Money Being Used to Complete Sewer System in All Parts of the City. The city of Concord Saturday received $50,000 for the sewer bonds which were recently sold to a Cincinnati company.

The money is being spent for a modern sewer system which will cover all sections of the city and which has been completed in the larger portion of the city already.

When the bonds were sold at a premium of $1,500 city officials started at once on the system confident that no technicalities would interfere with the completion of the sale. For several months street forces had been engaged in the sewer work but the sale of the bonds allowed the city to put on this work on a larger scale.

All of the mill communities will be served with a sewer line and all houses will have to connect with the line. More than 100 houses of the Locke Mill already have been equipped with toilets, thus allowing an equal number of surface closets to be closed up.

It is probable that several months will be required to complete all of the work contemplated.

TON LITTER CONTEST FOR CABARRUS FAIR

Three Litters Being Weighed Today. —Will Be New Feature of Fair.

Much interest is being aroused in the ton litter contest for the Cabarrus County Fair this fall. This will be the first time this contest has been held at a local fair.

County Agent Morrow, of Iredell county, and R. D. Goodman, county agent for Cabarrus went to Mooresville this afternoon to weigh the litter entered by James Godfrey. This morning Mr. Goodman weighed the litter entered by A. H. Litaker and his afternoon Mr. Goodman and Mr. Morrow will weigh the litter entered by Mr. Goodman.

Dental Clinic Starts; T. B. Clinic in the City.

The three-months dental clinic for school children of Cabarrus county was started this morning at Kannapolis where the work will be carried on for several weeks. Dr. Adams, sent by the State health department, is in charge of the clinical work.

The tuberculosis clinic which was conducted in Kannapolis last week, was moved to Concord this morning. Dr. S. E. Lee continued in charge of the clinic which will be continued here during the week with the exception of Friday when it will be held in Kannapolis.

It is not known just how long the dental clinic will be kept in Kannapolis but Dr. S. E. Buchanan, county health officer, plans to give every parent there a chance to get school children between six and twelve years of age examined.

After the clinic is moved to Concord, where the work will be done for several weeks, Dr. Buchanan may arrange to conduct the clinic in some of the rural communities. This will be determined later.

Persons who have been given appointment dates for the tuberculosis clinic here are urged to keep them. When persons fail to show up at the appointed time the regular schedule becomes disrupted and often valuable time is lost.

Examinations in the clinics will be made without cost.

Mr. Doyle Remembered.

Prof. Price Doyle, who has had charge of the music at Central Methodist Church for more than two years past, finished his work in this capacity Sunday night. The evening was given over largely to a music service by Mr. Doyle and his well-trained choir, which was much enjoyed.

At the conclusion of the service a surprise was given both Mr. Doyle and the congregation when D. P. Coltrane, chairman of the board of stewards, arose and presented in a short speech to Mr. Doyle a beautiful umbrella, on behalf of the church.

Mr. Doyle has ended his work here as director of music in the public schools to take a course at Columbia University. He has been very popular here and his work to advance the cause of music not only in the schools but in the city generally, and he will be much missed.

Listing Taxes in Business-Like Manner.

People are not so lax about listing their taxes this year, a county official stated this morning. "I have never seen so much interest in the matter," this official said, "and it looks now as though every one will get their taxes listed without paying a penalty."

Under a recent ruling of county officials persons who fail to list their taxes at the required time will be made to pay double taxes. This ruling, it is said, is responsible for the unusual interest shown in the matter.

Heretofore some of the county officials have been put to much trouble and expense by persons who neglected to make their returns at the proper time and the new ruling was made for the benefit of these officials.

Miss Eastbrook Coming Back to County.

Miss Helen Eastbrook, who spent two days here recently giving dress making demonstration to women of the city and county, will be here again next week. Miss Cooley, home demonstration agent, announced this morning.

Miss Eastbrook expects to be here next Tuesday and the demonstration will be given in the offices of the county home demonstration agent.

Lesson number two, which shows the use of the foundation pattern, will be given here by Miss Eastbrook.

All interested women are invited to the demonstration.

It would also be news if the boot-legger raided the police station.

LIVE CHRIST SAYS PREACHER TO HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

teach us that we are to look along the skyline of life. We are to see Him in every touch of His hand; through the tender light of gratefulness, and to answer the ordering of His wisdom with an unflinching tribute of joy. His words are: "Rejoice evermore." "In everything give thanks." And here, my young friends is the deep philosophy of religion. It is contrary to the wisdom of the world. It remains the unquestioned fact, the more closely we walk with Christ the fewer failures in fidelity to Him—the higher we attain in the overcoming life, and the more constant will be our joy, and the more continuous the increase of our thanksgiving prayers.

The question to which I called your attention in the outset, "What shall I do Lord?" suggests that there is something for us to do in these coming years. The following statement may seem extravagant, but I am persuaded that the skyline of our duty in these next few years will reveal undulations and obligations not essentially different from those revealed to Paul along the line of his own life's vision. To what was he called? To what are we summoned? Measuring his path of duty he said, "For me to live is Christ." This is greater than preaching. Greater than organizing churches, greater than writing letters. The mightiest thing we do in life is to live Christ. This is the life of the world and of the Kingdom today. It is the need which I believe is beginning to be manifested by an anxious restless multitude. They are seeking for something, prompted by longings never yet satisfied. They are not demanding new humanitarian crusades. They are already bewildered by the multiplicity of local and worldwide movements. They are not asking for more sermons on the new day and the new age. They know its greatness. They are not in general deeply concerned about denominational name and banner. The church is not first in their quest. If I understand aright the deep eaving of the demand from what we often call the thoughtless, indifferent world, it is nothing less in the sight of God than the cry of eternity-bound souls for leaders who know God, for teachers who live Christ.

The man or woman whose first aim is to be a reflector of Jesus Christ is coming very close to the Heavenly skyline for the urgent daily duties of future years.

The Master himself settles the profoundest problems of the Christian life when He sketches the outline in this one sentence "Ye are my witnesses." In the court room of this world we cannot be a failure if we have a faithful testimony for Christ. After the heart throbs is still we live on and on in the beauty of an afterglow where God and man seem to dwell together.

This was an inspiration to Paul as he moved on from continent to continent. No Board of Missions was behind him. No great church organization supported him, but at last this flaming torch for a world illumined the shores of Europe and finally shone in the gloom of an Italian prison. The line of guidance is still seen in the heavens. Christ says, "I am the light of the world. The field is the world. The touch of my hand has opened the path for my messengers to the end of the earth. I have placed the treasures of creation in the lap of Christian lands. I am drawing the nations into a Christian brotherhood. I have no outline campaign different from the one I issued on the mountainside of Galilee.

If in person or influence you will start on this highway of the king with the treasure of my gospel, I give you the pledge of my promise, that I will go with you personally, all the days. How many heart blessings we might have, and how many precious soul experiences we would enjoy, did we only follow the path along which Jesus promises to go. The blessedness of His companionship is conditioned upon our giving the herald-news to the world. Had Paul when he received his world commission, "For henceforth thou shalt be a witness to all men," declined the post and settled down to much-needed home work in Tarsus, do you think that his heart life would have been so wonderfully enriched? Had a self-conceited vision caused him to forget the Heavenly vision, do you question that, as in the mobs of Jerusalem, the storm of the Mediterranean, and the riot of Corinth, he would have found his life a loving Heavenly Savior comforting his troubled spirit?

Among the many calls that came to this great Apostle was one to the good Samaritan rescue work. We have before us the greatest of human preachers.

He opened to a dying world the treasures of the Kingdom of Heaven. How profoundly he unfolds the riches of Calvary; the glories of the resurrection; the precious indwelling of the Holy Presence? And what is this strange line the great herald is following. He is gathering the multitudes in Asia and Europe. Out of depths of the poverty of his mission stations, he is collecting a little Mission money for the famishing brothers and sisters in Jerusalem. He believes that we are to love a brother whom, as in the case of God, we have not seen. He is trying through the love of woman, to focus the love of heaven upon a striving boy or girl in the land of his fathers. As we ride throughout our country today we find that our cities are grand, the villages are happy. The homes are homes of beauty and comfort. The churches and schools are without number. The mills and factories in city and hamlet and along their abounding waterways, are better than gold mines. This great wealth inspires the prayer that our fellow countrymen may see today on the skyline of duty the light of heaven as clearly as Paul saw the light in the hour of his conversion. And then may America hear anew the words of the glorified Master, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." May all Christendom come into a clearer realization of the thoughts of Christ as they speak to us in these words. The food and the garment sent to save the thirty million of China and the Near East are given to Him.

This Jesus who took the little ones in His arms and blessed them, has a benediction for those who have helped to keep alive the three and a half million of helpless, innocent, starving waifs of Central Europe. None can block them out of My Father's hand. Beloved Armenians, that pilgrim of faith, as she has moved down the pathway of history, and has fallen among thieves and robbers of the nations. The good Samaritan who does not forget the suffering has a personal word from Christ which makes the future glow.

God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love which you have showed toward His name in that ye have ministered to the saints and do minister. My young friends I do not consider it too early in your lives to call to your attention that your service which you will be expected to render will be worldwide.

As you go further into the activities of life you will discover more and more that there is a need for the power of a comrade's touch all along the way. Paul's experience might be thus stated. I have personally touched a life here and there. I won Timothy away at Lystra, where there was no church. I gained Lydia and was not a stranger in her home. I drew the jailer to Christ with the walls of a prison. I have summed up my work of about one Jesus. The hour in which we live calls for evangelistic conversation, or conversational evangelism, more emphatically than it demands the great concourse of evangelistic gatherings. A certain truth lies in the oft-quoted sentence, "We are born one by one; we die one by one; we are lost one by one; we are saved one by one." God's plan of reaching men is through men. As young people, let me impress upon your minds that the freest field for real service and profit is in touching the lives of others.

And finally my friends, as God's servant, I cannot allow this opportunity to pass without calling your attention to the great lack and need of prayer-life among the youth of today. There seems to be the idea dwelling in the mind of the youth of the land that the prayer life is to be lived only by the older ones. Begin your lives anew today by lifting your faces toward God. And do it bravely. The first breath of Paul's awakening was a prayer. When he was blind he did nothing but pray. The first thing he did in the new-world of the west was to go to a prayer meeting. When his feet were in the stocks he prayed. Within his tenderest farewell words were spoken, he knelt upon the shore and prayed. When he was in prison awaiting the victor's sword, his greatest recorded prayers were uttered. The prayer life is the only life that follows God's skyline. Is this a reality? Is it only a vision? My young friends in your joyous hours today I want first to say that it is the wish of everyone in this presence that it may ever be as it is now.

And second, I say that there will come many sorrows, and trials in your lives, but I want to tell you that there is one promise that will be like an open window to your soul. And at this window may sit in peace through the years. It will be to you as beautiful as the rainbow of the covenant, and may it be as real to you as the rainbow is beautiful. Here it is, "In nothing be anxious; but in everything by prayer and supplication, let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall guard your hearts and your thoughts in Christ Jesus."

You are now at another turnstile of time. The year of your school course thus far is tinged with the hope and brightness of new endeavors. Just here let the vision of our faith be steady. The value of a human life is found in its relations to Jesus Christ. In the things which He appears to us, in the past, in the future, are found the deep lessons of life, and the precious treasures of the soul.

Locusts as Food. Speaking of John the Baptist the Bible says that his meat was locusts and wild honey. Many early Biblical commentators thought the locusts referred to were of a kind of fruit, but the fact is that the locusts are the insects called locusts are widely used for food in the Orient. There is no reason why such may not have composed the food of John the Baptist. Locusts diply appear in the markets of Arabia, Syria, Egypt, Madagascar and many other countries. They are also preserved in brine or dried in the sun and exported as an article of commerce.

The locusts are caught in the early morning when the dew is heavy and the air is chilly. Under favorable conditions the insects can be literally shoveled into baskets. After the long hopping legs are removed the locusts are dipped in salt. They are then steamed, fried, stewed, mixed with flour and pounded fine or boiled in water. Foreign tourists report that in Arabia where locusts form an important part of the native diet the dish is quite palatable.

Adaptability. "A wise man will change his opinion, occasionally."

"Whether he changes his opinion or not," answered Senator Borah, "he will know when to change his line of talk."

Mrs. Margaret S. Gay of Pawhuska is president and active director of an oil and development company in Oklahoma.

Gloom For Farmers.

Statesville Daily. The radio is used for political broadcasting from Washington. It is the custom for Republican and Democratic speakers to salute the country on Saturday nights by way of the radio. On Saturday night, the 15th, Congressman Doughton, of this district, was the speaker for the Democrats. True to his trade our Congressman talked about agricultural conditions and the picture he gave of agricultural America isn't a cheering one. Following is an extract:

"Agriculture, which is conceded by every one to be the most fundamental, basic and necessary industry, has never been so thoroughly demoralized and so completely paralyzed. The protective tariff law now on the statute books, placed there by the Republican party and guaranteed to produce agricultural prosperity, has signally and completely failed.

"In the last five years the farms of America have declined in value at least thirty billion dollars. The indebtedness of the farmer today is more than twelve billion dollars, increase of about eight billions in the last five years, making the farmers of America at least thirty-eight billion dollars poorer than they were on the 4th of March, 1921, when Mr. Harding was inaugurated President.

"Farm failures during the last five years have increased 1,000 per cent. in contrast with commercial failures. The direct losses on the crops produced have been many billions more. A larger number of American farms and homes are under mortgage today than ever before in the history of the country. More bank failures have occurred in agricultural sections of the country in the last five years than had occurred in twenty-five years preceding that date.

"After reading that one can better understand the pressure on Congress for farm relief measures.
