

Alfalfa In This Section Getting New Leaf Spot

C. E. Gardner Reports That Unfavorable Weather Cause Spread Of Disease

A new leaf spot, pseudopeziza medicaginis, is attacking alfalfa in this area at the present time and it is very important that this disease not be confused with one of the mineral element deficiencies, C. E. Gardner, assistant county agent, stated yesterday.

He pointed out that this fungus is spread by spores which attack the leaves and that the small brown spots can be seen on the leaves and as a result of these brown spots, the leaves turn yellow and fall off.

Mr. Gardner stated that if the alfalfa shows symptoms of this disease and if the leaves begin to fall off, farmers should mow their alfalfa or hay so as to save as many leaves as possible.

"Specialists at the North Carolina State College stated that this disease is probably seed borne and that there is no control for it at the present time," the assistant agent said.

There is a possibility that unfavorable weather conditions may cause this fungus to spread more rapidly, he added.

"By particularly early cutting, the disease may not be as severe in the second or third cutting," Mr. Gardner said.

But the bird on the hat of Carmen, New York model (left), would make "The Bird on Nellie's Hat" of the gay 90's take a back seat. Carmen's "Scarlet Chanticleer" won first prize at the Ball of the Birds at New York's Waldorf Astoria. The man is a senior at the University of Rome, having a last fling before the scholars settle down to serious study following a fiesta that included a ceremony of the caps. Whether this whacky chapeaux won a prize or not is unknown. It is trimmed with coins, dolls' heads, model airplanes and a model, horse-drawn fire engine.

WILL HOLD HEARING ON BEER QUESTION

The State has revoked the permits of 27 beer dealers since July 1. Director C. A. Upchurch, Jr., of the ABC Board's Malt Beverage Division reported Tuesday.

Upchurch said the revocations have come in all cases after evidence that dealers were violating State laws regarding beer sale.

The division's 25 investigators are making enforcement of the new beer statute their biggest job now and more revocations can be expected, Upchurch declared.

Dealers whose permits are taken from them are given the privilege of appealing to Upchurch and eventually to the State ABC Board. No appeals, however, have come before him in any of the 27 revocations, Upchurch said.

The group voted to hold its next meeting at Glendale Springs on Tuesday October 11.

stated Before July 1, Upchurch's agency granted State permits to around 5,600 beer sales places. More than 500 other applications for permits were denied. After the screening of applications was completed on July 1, the 25 investigators began devoting their time to law enforcement.

Upchurch has said that his division, which was set up by the 1949 General Assembly, intends to "clean up" the beer business in this State.

STILL IS TIME FOR SIDEDRESSING CORN

By H. D. Quessenberry

There is still time for sidedressing corn. Use nitrogen sidedressing up to 80 pounds of pure nitrogen (600 lbs. Nitrate of Soda) is economical on most farms with a good stand of corn.

Where farmers could not get enough nitrogen at "lay-by" time additional nitrogen up to 32 pounds of N per acre, can be sidedressed from "lay-by" time to tasseling time.

Remember that a good acre of corn requires 20 to 30 pounds of N per week at silking stage (125-190 pounds of soda). Corn may look green now, but may fire later.

During this silking period an extra amount of nitrogen is needed.
