District Junior Dairy Shows Planned For State In August

Dates for the 1950 series of district junior dairy shows in North Carolina were announced this week by John A. Arey, in charge of extension dairy work at State College.

The series will be held about a month earlier than usual, Arey said. The first will be held in Asheville on August 15 under sponsorship of the Asheville Merchants Association. The Belk Stores will sponsor one in Statesville on August 17 and another in Wilson on August 29. The show at Lexington, to be held August 18, will be sponsored by Coble Dairy Products Company.

Purpose of the shows is to interest and train young people in the proper methods of handling dairy cattle. The first show was held at Statesville in 1941, when about 200 animals were exhibited. Last year, 709 animals were exhibited in the four district events, which were preceded by 18 community and county shows in which some 800 animals were entered.

Senate Unanimously Passes Draft Extension Measure

Washington — Unanimous Senate action, 76 to 0, gave President Truman a year's extension of the draft Wednesday without congressional strings on his power to start inductions.

he sees the need. The measure could pull more than 600,000 more men into service quickly if the President chooses.

The new weapon for the battle to stem Communist aggression was forged at emergency speed in a direct response from Congress to the Red invasion of South Korea. Senate - House conferees, previously deadlocked over varying provisions of the bills passed earlier by the two houses, got together quickly Tuesday on a bill stronger than either branch had adopted originally.

The House approved the agreement, 315 to 4, Tuesday. The legally authorized strengths of the various services puts a ceiling on how many men could be called either through the draft or through active duty for the reserves. Congressional authorities said the arm is 244,000 shy of its authorized force of 837,000, the navy and marines are 239,882 under their 666,882 limit, and the air force is 152,000 shy of its quota of 592,000. That leaves an opening to call in 635,882 men to build up to the over-all authorized fighting strength of 2,005,882.
