A MISREPRESENTATION

A reply to the copy headed "Too much lost motion" in the last week's Courier. It was a bad misrepresentation. The farmer who dropped in the market last Saturday only went to one market and asked the price of cattle, and the farmer asked $27.00 for his cow and the market man offered him $25 and he took it, and he got mad about it, wanting to knock the market men any way. He did not go to any other market man in town to get prices, but went around and told his story. He must not have tried very hard to get more for his cattle, if he had looks like he would have gone to some of the other market men. I think he was pretty well satisfied but just wanted to growl a little with the market men. And besides, there was no 2 1/2 cents offered at all for cattle, for no market man in Roxboro has ever offered 2 1/2 cents for cattle in a very long time.

So that was all a great misrepresentation and when the writer of the article headed "too much lost motion" tells the farmers he is paying 35 cents a pound for steak I want the people of this town who are reasonable to please understand that a very small portion of a cattle is steak. Besides there is a fourth lost in every cattle by scraps and bones which we throw away. And another thing, a good many people don't know that it takes a very fine cattle indeed to dress half. So you see very plainly that the writer of the article referred to did not show you but just one small portion of the cattle business—that was the position he knew, that he was paying 35 cents a pound for steak. That is all he knows about the business. And he tries to leave the impression that we get sale for most of the cattle at 35 cents per pound, which is badly misrepresented. He knows no more about the meat business than I know about his business in which others may think he is making an awful percentage of profit himself, and nobody is knocking him. It seems that too many people try to knock the meat market men any way, and no one ought to kick or knock anything or anybody unless they know positively what they are talking about. Friends, this fifteen hundred per cent business, when the great writer of the too much lost motion is speaking about is entirely misrepresented. He makes a great mistake in his figures of percentage because he leaves the impression that the market men get the sale of 35 cents per pound for all of their cattle, which is not true, for a very small proportion of the cattle is steak. He did not mention anything but steak trying to leave the impression as bad as possible on the market men.

Friends, when he speaks of the former having no right to slaughter his cattle and bring them to town to fiddle out and the market men being prohibited by a town ordinance, I think the market men have a right to be protected when they pay $45, don't you. And friends, when he mentions the fifteen hundred per cent margin it is absolutely misrepresented.—H. A. C.

THE DIFFERENCE

That coroner's jury which "investigated" the murders at Harin, Ill., beats any coroner's jury the south has ever had in way of her lynching investigations. The Herrin jury blames the murders on the owners of the mines, and fixes the responsibility of only one death, and that was laid at the door of a cnelegged superintendent of the mines. He was merely defending his work and his life, yet he is held for murder, while the mob which rushed the mine and opened fire on the workers is not held responsible, but is almost praised for its work. But that is in the north. If it had taken place in the south, Boston, Chicago and other northern south-hating newspapers would be carrying scare heads all over their front pages telling of the horrible crimes committed by southern barbarians. There would have been a dozen bills introduced in congress and no doubt there would have been a demand to send federal troops down here to take charge of our courts and civil government. But in Illinois they did not send state troops. In North Carolina if a lynching had occurred in a remote section before troops could have possibly been sent there, the rabid agitators in the north would have been raving about the lack of protection given criminals. But in Illinois, despite the fact that ample warning had been given that there would probably be trouble, no troops were sent to protect innocent men engaged in lawful work. They were attacked and when they defended themselves from the murderous assaults, the coroner's jury comes along and says that they by defending themselves were responsible for the deaths. Who was responsible for the men tied up in groups, and shot? Who was responsible for the deaths of those men who with stones around their necks were thrown into a pond?—Durham Herald.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR'S WORK

The Textile Department of the N. C. State College which is the North Carolina Textile School has had a very successful year's work. More students have been registered this year than in any previous year, and also a larger class has been graduated. The graduating class which numbered twenty-four, have all been located and will work in the different mills and allied industries.

At the commencement exercises Mr. L. W. Clark, General Manager of the Carolina Cotton and Woolen Mills Spray, North Carolina, presented to Mr. Wesley Pickens, of Charlotte, N. C., the student's medal which is given annually by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers to the student having the highest proficiency in his work. In order to obtain this medal the student must fill the following requirements: There must be a good equipment for instruction in cotton manufacturing. The instruction must be of recognized standard. There must be at least fifty students taking the textile course, and at least four competitors for the medal. The Textile Department fills all these requirements, as there were registered one hundred and seventy-five students and a graduating class of twenty-four. This is the first textile school in the South that has been awarded the medal.

RESOLUTIONS.

After a short illness of paralysis Mr. Stephen James Melton departed this life April 3rd, 1922. He was born May 29, 1838, married Miss Annie G. Downey 1893. He was true to his marriage vows, 9 long years she has been an invalid. He was patient and loving to her, seeming never to tire. He was a kind husband, brother and neighbor. He professed faith in Christ and joined Olive Branch Baptist church, Person county, N. C., in 1879.

The community has lost a true friend, the church a faithful member, ever ready to help when called upon. We will miss him but we feel that the Lord knew best. We trust he is with the redeemed.

He leaves a wife, two brothers and two sisters to mourn their loss. The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. E. G. Usary, and his body was laid to rest in the old family graveyard.

Resolved, That in token of our fellowship and love we extend our sympathy to the bereaved ones and point them to the Creator who giveth and taketh away according to His divine wisdom.

2nd. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, to the Biblical Recorder and to The Courier, Roxboro, N. C., and copy be spread on the minutes of the Church.

GIRL IS CARRIED HOME BY MOTHER

Helping Couple From Roxboro Caught When They Reached City—Man Deserts Her.

A romance was nipped in the bud by members of the local police force Saturday night when, acting on the instructions of the girl's mother, a young couple, M. M. Husky and Birdie Eugenia Tingen, were taken in custody by an officer as they stepped off the Norfolk and Western train reaching the city at 9:15 o'clock Saturday night. They were carried to the police station and there occupied the office of the chief, where the girl remained until her mother came to the city and carried her back to Roxboro.

The couple came to the city, according to their version of the affair, to get married. The girl was 16 years of age and therefore under age. A touching story was related by the girl and substantiated by the man of her life. She said she was a member of a large family and was forced to work in a mill every day and give the money over to the parents paid her on Saturday of each week for her work. She came to the city with the man to end this state of affairs by taking him as her wedded husband.

He was told after having been kept at the police station for a short time to get a doctor's statement as to his health and to get the registrar of deeds out of his hands to perform the ceremony. He left the police station in all haste to secure the things necessary to allow him the right to change the girl's name and failed to show up for it. He sent the girl's watch and a few other things to her on Saturday of each week for her work. She came to the city with the man to end this state of affairs by taking him as her wedded husband.

Here Is the Tool That Completes the Fordson Farming Cycle. FOR many years the tractor has performed satisfactorily with plow, harrow, drill and belt-driven tools. But, how to utilize Fordson power in cultivating corn has been a problem. That vacancy in the cycle which would otherwise be complete has now been filled by the Amco Two-row Cultivator. With this machine, the Fordson cultivates thoroughly from the first cultivation to the last. This new machine has accomplished remarkable results. It marks the end of monotonous cultivating behind slow plodding teams. The construction of this machine is simplicity itself. No unnecessary parts. No unnecessary friction. The cultivator is light running and easy to handle. This is the last word in Standard Fordson Equipment, and every farmer in this community should see it. CROWELL AUTO CO. ROXBORO, N. C. Here at Power Farming Headquarters you will always find the latest in labor-saving tools.
