CLEAN-UP WEEK.

It should not be necessary for the good women to have to call attention to the fact that certain days or weeks have been set aside for clean-up week, but it is necessary. The truth is, wouldn't you hate to have to live in a town or city where there were no good women to keep you in the straight and narrow way. This by the way, in calling attention to the notice elsewhere that next week, beginning Monday morning, is Clean-Up Week, and the ladies are expecting every firm in this good town to begin early Monday morning to clean up that back lot, and our advise is to do it, for a committee composed of these same good women are going to inspect that back lot, and woe betide the man who has not heeded this injunction.

In discussing state politics the other night a gentleman of rare judgment said to us that "The machine was out in the last election—both in the primary and at the polls on November 4th, but it would never be quite the same again." Yes, honestly, we believe the "machine" has found out that while machines can, or have been, directing affairs that it takes votes to count, and that in the future the masses will have more to say about who will be the candidates. In other words this thing of slating governors and other officers from four to sixteen years ahead is a thing of the past. And so note it be.

The proof reader, the linotype man, and the galley man who did the correcting balled us up last week in our little squib about the Greensboro News and our good friend, Gerald Johnson. What we tried to say, was: We do not know what the inducement was, whether from a financial standpoint or otherwise, but we sincerely regret that whatever it was the News did not meet it and refuse to let Gerald Johnson leave his post as associate editor. We miss his writings, and, somehow the News does not charm as it once did.

Congress met Monday but other than pass the necessary deficiency bills little will be done during the remainder of this session. The Republican caucus read out La Follette and two or three other insurgents, and this act may give some trouble in the near future, but the Republicans figured that they could not do much hurt during the remainder of the short term, and at the beginning of the next session they will have sufficient majority to leave them go.

DREAMS COME TRUE

North Carolina is one of the oldest states in the Union. Twenty years ago it was one of the poorest. Today, with practically no immigration from other states, with only the increase in population that comes from its excess of births over deaths, it finds itself one of the richest states, progressing rapidly in every desirable instrument of civilized life—a community of contented, industrious citizens, with beautiful and modern homes, thriving farms and factories, hotels in every small city that can not be excelled anywhere, highways that make travel and commerce comfortable and expeditious, schools that are good and daily growing better, a public health department that has brought its death rate to the lowest in the country and best of all, a people of one mind upon the great issues of life, inspired by a common ideal, informed with a common purpose, spurred by their success in the pursuit of a great vision, and confidently pressing forward to further achievements.

About twenty-five years ago there was a man named Aycock—From French Strother's Article on North Carolina: Dreams Come True, in Strother's Work, November, 1924.

Death of Mr. Cozart.

The deceased was able to walk about a little each day up until a month ago when he was forced to take to his bed and following that time gradually grew worse until the end came. Dropsy was the direct cause of his demise. The funeral service was conducted Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and the interment in the cemetery.
