

The Christmas Month

MISS WHITE BECOMES THE BRIDE OF MR. R. W. CRUMPTON

A marriage of unusual beauty and publicity, and one of much interest was celebrated Saturday at 1:30 o'clock in the home of Mrs. S. K. Cobb, South Main street, Danville, when her sister, Miss Anna White, daughter of the late J. F. White and Mrs. James Franklin White, was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. J. F. White to Mr. R. W. R. Crumpton of this city. Dr. Samuel T. Scattermaster of The Mt. Vernon M. E. Church performed the ceremony.

The living room in which the wedding took place, was decorated with exquisite artistry, the banks of evergreens and white chrysanthemums illuminated by pink and white candles beautifully placed, was a scene to long be remembered.

The musical program was rendered by Miss Nell Cobb, niece of the bride.

The bride's only attendant, Miss Lena Cobb also her niece wore a lovely gown of brown chenille velvet, with a hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses.

The bride wore a beautiful suit of tan crepe cloth with corresponding accessories. Her corsage was of Brides roses and Sweetheart buds with little ferns attached by white ribbon streamers.

The bridegroom was accompanied by his son Raney Crumpton of Roxboro.

Immediately after the ceremony a delicious luncheon was served in the dining room and afterwards they were accompanied by many of their Danville friends to the groom's home at Roxboro.

The party reached home about 5:30 o'clock. They were met and greeted by many of their Roxboro friends. Then they were all given a most delightful turkey dinner, there being three tables accommodating twenty people each.

This handsome... which is one of the most modern in the county... was a scene of love in its decorations of mistletoe and roses illuminated by the soft red glow of many electric lights.

Mr. and Mrs. Crumpton are both well known here and in Danville. The bride has been a successful teacher in her county schools and has held a responsible position in the Cobb Memorial School for several years.

Mr. Crumpton is a... County's most successful and influential farmers, it being generally known that he has won more prizes at the various fairs for tobacco than any other farmer in this community.—L.

FARM POULTRY

PRACTICAL HINTS ON MARKETING TURKEYS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Turkey time's a-coming! If you want top prices for your birds, here's a few tips from the United States Department of Agriculture:

Range fattening is more satisfactory than pen fattening, the department says. Begin fattening about three weeks or a month before marketing, and proceed gradually by feeding lightly on corn in the morning and again in the evening, a short time before the turkeys go to roost. Increase the quantity of corn fed gradually until the birds are getting all they will eat. Be careful not to feed new corn too heavily until the turkeys have become accustomed to it, to prevent digestive troubles.

Good-sized, well-matured birds in good condition for fattening can often be marketed to best advantage at Thanksgiving. Small, immature turkeys should be held until Christmas, for further fattening, but if the birds are unthrifty market them at once. Sales outlets to raisers within express shipping distance of good markets are local consumers, local buyers and dealers, more distant buyers or receivers or commission merchants of live or dressed poultry in large cities. To determine the best available outlet study shipping charges and keep in touch with both local and distant buyers as to price. Distant buyers will mail quotations on request.

Most producers market their turkeys alive. Shipping dressed turkeys to markets is justified only when making local sales or there is an unusually favorable outlet for the dressed product. Shipping coops should be high enough to enable the birds to stand up. A coop 3 feet long, 2 feet wide and 20 inches high will accommodate five or six turkeys. Overcrowding may result in bruising, which detracts from the market value; overcrowding may also cause death and complete loss.

If the birds are on the road only a few hours, do not feed before shipping. If they are on the road a longer time water and feed liberally to prevent shrinkage in weight. Ship in time to place the turkeys on the market a day or two before the holiday. Late arrivals may reach an overstocked market, and arrival after the holiday usually means lower prices.

Killing and dressing birds is simple when properly done. Hang up the turkeys by their legs and, with a single stroke, push the point of a sharp knife up through the roof of the mouth into the brain. When properly done, this operation paralyzes the bird and loosens the feathers so that they come out easily. Then sever the veins in the throat just beyond the skull for bleeding. The turkey should be dry-plucked, and plucked clean. Thoroughly cool the carcass after plucking, inasmuch as failure to remove all animal heat promptly will result in early spoilage. Cool either by hanging outdoors, if the temperature is between 50 and 45 degrees, or by immersing in cold running spring water or ice water.

When thoroughly chilled, the carcasses are ready for shipment. A barrel is a convenient shipping container. Place a layer of cracked ice in the bottom of the barrel, then a layer of turkeys, followed alternately by layers of ice and turkeys, and topped off with a layer of ice. Tack burlap over the top of the barrel.

If you are building a permanent turkey business be sure to retain as many of the finest, largest, quickest-growing young birds needed to rear this year's flock, and at the same

Continue to cull your flock.
Caponize all late cockerels.
An abundance of shade is a help in keeping the birds thrifty.

Hens cannot produce eggs without raw materials for their making. Feed 'em well, summer as well as winter.

Avoid the thin crow-headed pullets which are rather listless and generally lacking in pep.

Retain the pullets that feather early and have plump meaty bodies. The active singing birds with good marking for their breed are the kind to save.
