Mellon's "Poor Cousin" Happy In Little Shanty

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 23.—A "poor cousin" on Andrew W. Mellon, the millionaire banker, was found today living in contented poverty amid a scene of empty packing boxes, rusty cans and other tenement debris.

He is gray-haired William Andrew Mellon, son of the late Samuel Mellon, only brother of Judge Thos. Mellon, the noted banker's father.

Investigators, called to the dingy little house tucked away between imposing structures in the Pittsburgh triangle section by erroneous reports that the 60-year-old man was in need, found him living there happily.

Likes It.

"I wouldn't trade this place for the best suite in the best hotel," the Mellon "poor cousin" said. "I need this place because I can have home-cooked food and because I can read, study, think and dream here."

He disclosed that he slipped into town from the West "some time ago" without the knowledge of the wealthier members of the Mellon family and that he had been on a $1.50 weekly relief roll until Andrew Mellon learned of his presence and offered aid.

"He sent Fred Mellon, another cousin, and attorney for the Mellon real estate interests, to see me," the shabbily-clad man said, "but I told him I like it here.

"I 'hatch' along, getting my own breakfast and home-cooked dinners from the lady next door. But Fred said that Andy wanted at least to take care of my deficit in my monthly budget and they have been sending me money since then."

In addition to reading and compiling a new genealogy of the Mellon family, he said his only other interest is in a Colorado mine which he hopes to develop.

"I was going to obtain financial aid from sources outside the family," he added, "but then it just happened they became interested and Andy has promised to help me."

William Andrew Mellon once worked in the T. Mellon and Sons bank, launched in 1870, but after the death of Andrew's father he went West and lost his money in a railroad enterprise.

Sitting on a box in a cluttered backyard, the man talked of his adventures with and without riches. With respect to the $1.50 weekly relief he formerly received from the county, he said:

HINTS FOR THE HOME

By NANCY HART

Grease stains may be removed from leather most easily with either benzine or pure turpentine.

Line the baking pan with parchment paper when you are baking fish and you'll find the pan will be much easier to wash.

When you're scrambling eggs, add a few bread crumbs in the mixing. It changes the flavor a bit and it makes the eggs go much further.

Separating eggs is a simple matter when you break them into a small funnel held over a cup or a glass. The whites go through, of course, leaving the unbroken yolks at top.

Avoid chipping and nicking delicate china in the dishpan by covering the bottom of the pan with a thick Turkish towel folded to fit.

An excellent cover for the ironing board may be made of old white window shades that have been washed and ironed. They do not burn readily and they're strong and durable.

Dull oilcloth may be brightened up easily with equal parts of turpentine and milk.

Add a little vinegar to the water in cleaning linoleum and it will dry unusually bright and shiny.

To clean coral beads, dip them in a solution of one teaspoonful of borax to a pint of warm water. When they are clean rinse with tepid, clean water.

To clean ink-stains from linen without damaging the fabric, dip the linen in milk and let it stand for two hours. Then wash the linen with pure soap while the milk is on the spots. This method is almost always successful.

The grunt fish makes a grunting sound when caught.
