Roxboro Weed Market Average $33.85 Yesterday

Market Seems To Be Getting Stronger Each Day

Opened High But Shows Gain Every Day; Many Farmers Averaging $50.00

BRING IT TO ROXBORO

As reported in our last issue the market opened strong, with blocked sales, but notwithstanding this the sales have been good and prices seem to be climbing to new heights each day. For the four days last week the market sold 400,000 pounds at an average of $29.00 for the week. On Monday the sales amounted to 80,000 pounds and averaged $32.80. The sales yesterday were not so heavy but the price was better, the average being $33.85. The warehousemen say they have never seen better sales or more happy farmers, in fact every one is happy for it looks like that corner has been passed.

We may be mistaken but we always thought it was a good time to sell when prices were good, and we know prices are good, better than they have been since 1919—and many say they are higher today than at that time, for the quality is not so good as then. And we believe Roxboro is the best place to sell, because here you can come in with your load, sell, do your shopping and get back home the same day; and further, no market, either eastern, middle or old belt, is averaging higher and you certainly will lose nothing by selling on your "Home Market."

Bring it to Roxboro!

AVERAGES $55.00

When a farmer averages fifty dollars a hundred for tobacco it sounds mighty good, but our friend, Mr. Rudd, made an average Monday at the Pioneer of fifty-five dollars a hundred. If this was his first curings—as most of them all claim—we can put wonder what he will average when he gets to selling some of his real good tobacco.

DIZZY DEAN TOO MUCH FOR MICKEY'S BOYS

Medwick, St. Louis, Smacks Out A Homer In The Fifth, And Greenberg, Detroit, Turns Same Trick In The Eighth

Before a crowd of forty-seven thousand fans St. Louis Cardinals today defeated the Detroit Tigers in the first game of the World Series played on Navin Field in Detroit. Neither team scored in the first inning, but St. Louis scored twice in the second, and once in the third, once in the fifth with a homer by Medwick, left fielder, and four runs in the sixth to bring their total to eight. The Detroit Tigers scored but three runs in the entire game, their scoring being so well scattered that they never threatened after the first part of the game. Dizzy Dean pitched the entire game for St. Louis. The Tigers started with Crowder, relieved him in the sixth with Marbury, who was relieved in the same inning by Hoguehead. He finished the game for the Tigers. Two home runs featured the game, one by Medwick for the Cardinals and one by Greenberg in the eighth for the Tigers.

GERMAN IDENTIFIED BY WORKER IN YARD

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 2.—An unknown friend of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, who rushed to the aid of the Lindbergh suspect when he aroused a lumber yard man's suspicions with a $10 gold note that may have been part of the ransom money, today became the quarry of a police manhunt.

Hauptmann has been "positively identified" from a photograph by William J. Reilly, the Bronx lumber yard superintendent, as the man who tendered the gold banknote last February in payment for a 40-cent wood panel, Col. H. Norman Sch-

JUDGE BROGDEN SPEAKS TO THE KIWANIS CLUB

Speaks On Supreme Court And Its Fundamentals, Defending The Court System

Associate Justice Willis J. Brogden of Durham and Raleigh, for nine years a member of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, spoke to the Kiwanis Club and its guests on Monday night in the regular meeting of the club. Judge Brogden picked up the historical thread in 1776 and traced the development of the Supreme Court from that time until the organization of the court as it now stands under the constitution of 1868. He defended, where so many people have berated, the court system in our state and nation. Judge Brogden pointed out that there was no more direct way for a man to get justice than to go into the courts for an alleged wrong and seek retribution at the hands of the courts "that stand guard at his fireside at night, that surround his liberty and his property." His remarks, sprinkled with his original wit and humor throughout, were listened to with close attention and were enjoyed by his hearers. In concluding his remarks Judge Brogden urged the Kiwanians and others who were present, to base their opinions of statecraft and affairs of government, not on hearsay or prejudice, but on profound thought and study.

The ladies of the Methodist church served an excellent chicken dinner in the basement of the church. Guests for the evening were: Justice Brogden, B. T. Bumbardner, Mr. Davis of Durham, Dr. A. F. Nichols, John Tucker of Yanceyville, F. O. Carver and R. L. Harris.

NEW NRA LEADERS TAKE OVER DUTIES OF HUGH JOHNSON

Retiring Administrator And Donald Richberg Shake Hands In Friendly Style

JOHNSON DENIES ANY PERSONAL FRICTION

Washington, Oct. 2.—In an atmosphere marked by the first handshake in weeks between Donald R. Richberg, unofficial chief of NRA, and Hugh S. Johnson, its retiring administrator, the new governors of the Blue Eagle today began their task of reshaping its control over industry.

The industrial recovery board, newly-named by the President, was cloistered in executive session four hours with Richberg, director of the policy shaping committee. The conference ended without action.

Then the entire group paid their respects to Johnson, builder of the industrial code structure. It was the first meeting—and a smiling one—between Richberg and his old chief since their differences over reorganization methods, generally credited with hastening Johnson's withdrawal.

No Quarrel

"We had a friendly little chat over future NRA policies," Johnson said later. "We've had no disagreement and all that talk about it is the bunk."

S. Clay Williams, chairman of the new board, spoke for it at the end of a day's session.

"We have been outlining for ourselves just what our job is," he said. "We took no action. These discussions will continue for several days."

Richberg declined to discuss the meeting, emphasizing that "the board will speak for itself."

"Chiseling," as Johnson expressed it, has long been recognized a major threat to Blue Eagle codes. The board was reported to be fully aware of this problem and to plan a painstaking survey of existing compliance machinery with an eye to a general tightening up.

What such action might involve in the way of code amendments was not immediately evident. In any event, the recovery governors were determined on an "evolutionary" approach to their work.

As To Salaries

Even the question of salaries for board members remained to be settled. Johnson drew only $6,000 annually until President Roosevelt personally boosted his pay in mid-summer to $15,000.
