J. Pierpont Morgan's Will Peculiar to His Life's Policy

New York, April 19.—"I commit my soul into the hands of my Savior, in full confidence that having redeemed it and washed it in His most precious blood, He will present it faultless before the throne of my Heavenly Father; and I entreat my children to maintain and defend, at all hazard and at any cost or personal sacrifice, the blessed doctrine of the complete atonement for sin through the blood of Jesus Christ, once offered, and through that alone."

This is the extraordinary and striking utterance which begins the last will and testament of John Pierpont Morgan, who died at Rome on March 31, last, whose body, heaped over with flowers from the crowned heads of Europe, was, a fortnight later, brought back to his own land and last Monday was borne to its last resting place at Hartford.

Ever since the funeral the publication of the great financier's last will has been awaited with keen expectation and it is safe to say that of all the interesting testaments of eminent citizens of America, that of Mr. Morgan, to be offered for probate here Monday morning, is by far the most interesting.

Amount of Estate Unknown.

As to the amount of the estate, which is one of the first questions the public naturally is asking, there is nothing in the will to give any accurate idea and the executors declare that no announcement will be made on this point until the appraisal has been made for determining the state inheritance tax.

The amount of bequests and trusts, named by specific sums, is under twenty million dollars, but the entire residue of the estate is left to J. P. Morgan, Jr., who is designated by his father to become the chief heir not only to his fortune but to his many charitable and artistic activities.

As to the document itself, it is unusual in many of its features and, according to those two or three intimate friends who already have had a glimpse of it, it is a portrait of Mr. Morgan himself, beginning with the striking confession of his religious faith (a side of his character which was known to his close associates but not to the world) and running through all its thirty-seven articles, duly set forth in the same logical and orderly fashion which his friends say marked all Mr. Morgan's mental process.

He has apparently provided with painstaking care for every contingency that might affect his family or his banking firm, and to his executors, namely his son, J. P. Morgan, Jr., his two sons-in-law, William Pearson Hamilton and H. L. Satterlee, and his friend, Lewis Cass Ledyard, he gives careful directions under many clauses as to alternate courses of procedure. It is to be noted also that his grandson, Junius Spencer Morgan, Jr., a young man of only twenty-one, now student at Harvard, is repeatedly nominated to take up important duties in the event of the death of his father, John P. Morgan, Jr.

Public Charitable Bequests Small.

Public charitable bequests are, as was predicted by many of those conversant with his immense benefactions made during his lifetime, comparatively small, and are in the direction of those objects to which Mr. Morgan's benefactions are already well known. For instance, in the case of the great lying-in hospital in New York to which Mr. Morgan gave over a million and a quarter of dollars, he uses the following language:

"Without imposing any duty, trust or obligation upon my residuary legatee, I request he continue, so long as in his judgment the same shall be necessary for its support, the same assistance which I have been in the habit of giving during my lifetime to the society of the lying-in hospital of the city of New York."

This annual gift here alluded to is known as having been $100,000.

It is worthy of note that the will was executed as late as January 4, last, and a codicil was attached in January 6, only the day before Mr. Morgan took leave of America on the trip abroad, from which he never returned.

The will gives to his executors the following:

Full power and authority to recognize and pay as among such debts and promises or obligations made by me, verbally or otherwise, which although not in such form that the holder could compel payment thereof by my estate, my executors think proper to be paid in their own judgment or because from memoranda or verbal directions left by me or from other sources they are satisfied that it would be my wish to have paid."

Disposition of Estate.

The disposition of the estate then follows, the first provision being that of his own family. To his "beloved the income for life of a trust fund wife, Francis Louisa Tracy Morgan," the income for life of a trust fund of one million dollars with power to dispose of the capital by will.

Mrs. Morgan is already entitled to the income of a trust fund created by Julius Spencer Morgan (Mr. Morgan's father) by deed dated July 1, 1897. The will provides that she is now to receive for life the income of an additional trust of such amount that her total income from these two trusts shall (aside from the income of the one million dollar fund) amount to $100,000 a year. Mrs. Morgan also receives during her life "Gragston," the Morgan country place at Highland Falls, N. Y., and also the Morgan home at No. 219 Madison avenue, New York, together with the furniture.

SOCIAL
(By I. I. P.)

Club At Mrs. Tate's.

The Entree Club held a most pleasurable meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Albert E. Tate on Broad street. Although just an ordinary little club meeting with the same crowd—members—and vacancies filled, yet the two hours were filled with happiness, and the adapted game of Rook was enjoyed. The refreshments were simple, but delicious, and the favors were dainty and pretty, being the little high handle flower girl baskets, beautifully woven in pink and green, tied with pink and green ribbon and filled with ginger sticks, nuts, candies and other assorted bon-bons. The visitors who filled the vacancies were: Mesdames. Oscar Moffitt, Gurney Kearns, Alexander Rankin and Miss Jones, of Winston-Salem, the guest of Mrs. Virgil Idol.

Coffee Drinking.

The same afternoon Mrs. Archibald Sherrod gave a small and informal tea drinking in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. C. H. Baker, of Hamilton. There were about a couple of dozen of callers who enjoyed meeting the honor guest and coffee and cake served by Mrs. Robert Morrow and Miss Mary Sherrod in the spacious library where dogwood blossoms gave certain touch of spring.

Mrs. James Joseph Farriss was the honor guest Saturday afternoon at a Bon Voyage party given by Mrs. Charles Hauser. The home was lovely with a mass of the whitened sprays of the soft white dogwood blossoms. Prior to the game of Rook the hostess, honoree, and Mrs. Ellis, of Trinity, received the guests in the library. The guests included the members of the W. O. T. and the Entree Club of which the honoree is a popular member. No vacancies were filled, and these club members were lavish in their good wishes for the honoree who sails the 26th of this month for an extended visit abroad. In serving the frozen course the hostess was assisted by her lovely little daughter, Margaret Louise, who with all the grace of an adept, devoid the consciousness, was the admiration of every one. No prizes were given, but each guest was presented with the dearest little "Bon Voyage" baskets filled with nuts, candy and assorted bon-bons.

The progressions and the game were made by little flags of the countries to be visited by the hostess. The flags were most attractive were mounted on polished sticks with spear-heads.

Yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock two boys out for a walk found near the septic tank in the southern part of the city, the body of a baby boy wrapped in a black skirt and part of a sheet. The officers were notified at once and the remains were taken to the undertaker's shop of J. W. Sechrest. Post mortem examination was made last night but it was not definitely ascertained how the child met its death. Possibly by strangulation.

Coroner Wood arrived here this morning but as there was no evidence yet an inquest was not held. The officers, however, are working on the case and may have some developments soon. The crime is a horrible one and it is to be hoped that the heartless criminals, both the man and the woman, may be apprehended.

The child was well formed, weighing about 10 pounds and as the coroner said, was one of the most likely babies he had ever seen. It had every mark of refinement about it, usually showed in the hands and feet and in facial expression.
