

MR. GOLD HEARD BY THE ELKS OF WINSTON-SALEM

High Point Attorney Delivers Memorial Address at Lodge of Sorrow

Thomas J. Gold, of High Point, delivered the memorial address for the Winston-Salem lodge of Elks in that city Sunday afternoon. It was a splendid speech.

Mr. Gold said that Elks approached the Lodge of Sorrow with mingled feelings of sorrow and joy. Sorrow for the loss of those who were gone, and joy that Elks were permitted to recall their noble qualities and companionship. They might be dead, and yet do they now still live, for one of the loftiest principles cherished by the Elks is immortality of the soul. Just as surely as birth was followed by death, so death was followed by life. Mr. Gold emphasized the value and worth of true living and of true service, and pointed to the cross for an examination of living and dying that others might live. No factory was ever built, no army ever organized, and no great purpose achieved that did not have back of it some great soul. Guided by selfishness, the individual, state and nation were ultimately lost. They were unworthy of success.

At this point in his address Mr. Gold paid tribute to R. J. Reynolds, whose name, he said, he saw in the list of "our absent brothers." Mr. Reynolds, he declared, devoted himself to his great ideal, and grew and grew, giving employment to thousands of people, and contributing vastly to the welfare and development of his city, state and country.

Mr. Gold spoke eloquently of the progress of North Carolina, and referred specially to the advancement of education and to those great leaders who went up and down the state, denouncing illiteracy and bringing to pass the organization of the splendid school system that North Carolina now has.

He spoke of the marvelous developments of the present age, and paid tribute to the great men of age gone by, to the inventor of writing and of printing and of so many other possessions which we now look upon as the simple things.

Pointing to Babylon, Egypt, Rome, and other vast and glorious empires ago, and of their wonderful advance in civilization and their final decadence and disappearance, Mr. Gold expressed the belief that their downfall was due to the envy, greed, selfishness, and crookedness of certain people who went around grumbling and criticizing and hunting for the spot where they might place the dynamite of destruction. This same danger threatens America, said Mr. Gold, and the only way to meet it and to overcome it is to tackle it in the open, to present and expound the right principles, to uphold the constitution of the United States, and in doing so the life of the nation would be wholesome, strong, and enduring.

It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly. It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

Few Folks Have Gray Hair Now

Druggists Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grand-mother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, have only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by the addition of other ingredients for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Lower Cost of Higher Education Democracy's Need, Says Conwell

In direct contradiction to recent pronouncements for a college aristocracy, notably by President Cullen of Colgate University, is a declaration for higher education for all who will take it, made by Dr. Russell H. Conwell, noted lecturer and college president, on the eve of education week.

Dr. Conwell declares that higher education is getting too high for the masses to reach, and advocates educational facilities which will bring the cost down to the level of the average student's pocket.

"With the cost of a year in college hovering around $1,000, we are losing sight of our democracy of opportunity," he said. "When the average student can't afford to go to college we must bring college to him, or government by the people will go out of business."

Dr. Conwell, in his eightieth year, is contributing to democracy in education by enlarging the capacity of Temple University, Philadelphia, to 25,000 students. He started Temple University 28 years ago as a night class in a church basement. It now has 10,000 students, most of them working their way on a part-time basis. "I have no quarrel with the universities," he continued, "except that they are out of reach of the masses."

CASHIER MAKES PROPOSAL TO PAY

STATESVILLE, Dec. 5.—A decision from Chief State Bank Examiner Latham, of Raleigh, as to whether he will accept in lieu of a $10,000 bond held by the Stony Point bank on A. W. White, cashier, who left an alleged shortage of $14,000 when he disappeared November 2, a $17,000 bond made by White's friends, is expected soon by officials. White's son recently visited him and returned with a letter in which a proposal was made to pay any alleged shortage he may have with the bank, according to the son and A. S. Watts, president of the insti-

"Correspondence schools and part time schools, making earning and learning possible at the same time, are the solution. They represent real democratic education. Work is no handicap to study."

"The greatest men in this country secured their education through the basic correspondence school principle—home study. Many of them have done this without the direction of effort and supervision which correspondence schools give. This being true, certainly it is possible for the average student to do as much under a staff of skilled instructors."

"The facilities of correspondence schools of national standing compare favorably with those of the universities. Their influence penetrates to the remote quarters of the country. That means the open door to the best instruction for everybody. That is what I mean by democratic education."

With one lecture, the internationally famous "Acres of Diamonds," which has been delivered nearly 6,100 times, Dr. Conwell has earned in 51 years $4,000,000. Every cent of this money, above expenses, has gone into Temple University. The Baptist Temple, of which Dr. Conwell has been pastor for 40 years, has the largest Baptist congregation in the world.

The whereabouts of White were not revealed.

SWEDES GO AFTER FOREIGN TRADE

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 14.—A new Viking vessel from Sweden manned with expert salesmen armed with literature on up-to-date railroad engines, will sail shortly for South America.

This unique way of finding new markets for their products has been devised by Swedish locomotive builders, who have just delivered the two hundredth locomotive on an order from the Russian soviet. A fine steam yacht of 500 tons has been purchased in Spain, and will be fitted out for the expedition. A commander of the Swedish navy has been secured to serve as skipper, and his crew will include several of the men who have just completed a round-the-world cruise on a sailing yacht.

The president of the company, together with several of his technical experts, will direct the work of the expedition. It is expected that most of the South American republics will be visited.

Swedish locomotives has formed a big item in Sweden's exports to Russia, and shipments are continuing though the number originally ordered by the Soviet has been reduced.
