

One of the largest and most fashionable crowds ever assembled on a similar occasion in Raleigh, greeted the University and Wake Forest teams at Athletic Park, on Friday afternoon. Raleigh society was out in full force, and large delegations came to witness the game from neighboring cities. Special trains brought the students from the two colleges and for the time being, the city was given over to the collegians and their friends.

The white and blue of the Varsity boys, and the black and old gold of the Wake Foresters were conspicuous on every side.

Long before the time appointed for the game, there was a steady march to the grounds, and before three o'clock the crowd was quite large, and when the game commenced at 3:30, the sight within the Park was most inspiring, and the excitement and interest were such only as result from the contact of college men. The odds were about three to one in favor of the University, with few takers.

Tallyhoes, phaetons, victorias, buggies, carriages, and every imaginable kind of vehicle, filled the grounds, and almost without exception, they were decorated with the white and blue of the Hillians. The scene in the grand stand was even more inspiring, for there the gentler sex was gathered in great numbers, some with the black and gold and others with the white and blue, whose applause and cheers were calculated to urge on their chosen warriors to renewed efforts. But on the bleacheries was the "howling mob" of college students with their supporters. There they were gathered with all their annual vigor, eager and anxious to applaud their representatives, and often did they give vent to their feelings. The Wake Forest yell would be answered by the "Rah, Rah, Rah, white and blue, vive-la, N. C. U." of our boys.

Among the Raleigh young ladies present, (with the Varsity colors) were: Misses Lucy Hawkins, Mary Snow, Helen McVea, Henrietta McVea, Anne Busbee, Kate Haywood, Lillie Hicks.

From the first, it was evident that our nine was more than a match for our opponents, and we forged ahead in the second inning and kept the lead throughout the game, gradually augmenting our score until it reached 23 against 6 runs for our antagonists. We showed ourselves superior to our opponents at every point, except in ability to make errors. Taylor was literally batted out of the box; 15 hits with a total of 21 going to our credit, while only four were made off Kenan. The game was played without hitch or unnecessary kicking, and the two colleges are to be congratulated upon the friendly relations which were manifested.
